a little harmless gossip.

As cook said, Miss Lucas was always interested in any scrap of news and really seemed as fond of Miss Lilian as Sir Ralph himself.

The days rolled on.

The young girl, more beautiful than ever, with her pale face and soft, dreamy look, never uttered the discarded tutor's name, and scarcely mentioned any other.

Sir Ralph was at his wits' end.

He grew more stern, more exacting with his tenants, more sad in solitude and at night. And Miss Lucas, unal-terably frigid and emotionless, witnessed borhood.

One day Sir Ralph, while walking over his estate, saw a tall gentleman with a mild, pleasant face, dark eyes and long, thick hair standing gazing at the sky with a meditative air.

"Indeed," said Lilian, in her joyless way. "When did you hear that Kate?"

"At my doctor's; I suffer from the headache, and have been seeking advice during my visit to town."

"Eh?" said Sir Ralph, awaking from a grim reverie. "A doctor here! What doctor?"

invain's deileacies, her gentle heart's or stored with kindness and pity.

A welcome awaited her wherever she went, a blessing followed her departing footsteps.

Lilian was another word for angel with the poor round Rivershall, and not a man or woman but would have gladly died to bring the old joyful, careless look upon her sweet young face.

As she entered one of her cottages to visit a bed-ridden girl, dying by inches of consumption, she hesitated and drew back.

At Lilian's entrance the invalid looked up with a world of humble love in her eyes, and made an eager gesture for her not to go.

"Is it you, miss? Don't 'ee go. This gentleman is a doctor, dear Miss Lilian, come to see me out of the goodness of his heart."

The doctor, who had transferred his benevolent smile from the invalid on the bed to the invalid at the door, bowed with respectful dignity, and Lilian, flushing—a strange face, the slightest incident out of the ordinary, brought the rich blood to her pale face now—returned the bow and drew near with her basket.

"Are you better to-day, Mary?" she asked, stooping and taking her hand with the soft touch of loving pity.

"Yes, miss, I am better to-day," said the girl, casting a shy glance at the doctor. "I've been laughing at the gentleman, and it's done me good."

Lilian looked surprised, and raised her large, sad eyes to the doctor's face.

"Jaughing!" she said; "at what, Mary?"

Lilian felt embarrassed.

Then she moved on and entered the next cottage.

glowing eulogies on the stranger, returned to the Hall.

Strangely enough, she could not have accounted for it herself, even, she felt a repugnance to mention her meeting with the tall doctor, and sat silent and meditative as usual.

It was a beautiful night, the moonlight streaming through the painted windows of the hall and throwing fantastic shadows upon the huge slabs of mosaic.

Lilian, her head aching with the twinkling waxlight of the drawing room, opened the door quietly and passed on to the hall.

There the solitude, the ghostlike, mystic beauty of the moonlight charmed and fascinated her, and, walking to and fro noiselessly in her tiny, white satin boots, she went over the story of those last few sweet days and their dreadful climax.

She shuddered whenever her memory

She shuddered whenever her memory pictured that handsome, grave, mournful face, with all its youth erased by the shameful, soul-staining sear!

And he had suffered all this for her, and she would never see him again; a bitter thought enough, and so overpowering that with a low cry she stepped aside and hid her tears even from the moonlight behind a statue.

As she did so, scarcely had she reached the shadow, than a light footstep, almost as noiseless as her own had been, sounded near her.

Fearing that one of the servants might find her and see her tears, she drew yet farther back and waited for the owner to pass.

Lilian's curiosity was excited for the moment. Who could it be? One of the maids on her way to met some young lover who had arranged a moonlight as-

"Ah, well, poor girl," she sighed, "love is master of us all; it is the keynote of life in all is grades. May it bring her more happiness than it has brought me!"

At which kindly wish her eyes filled with tears again.

"Papa will see that I have been crying," she murmured, suddenly. "And it will grieve him. Alas—he is sad enough as it is!"

And, overcoming her weakness by a great effort, she went to her dressing room to bathe away the traces of her tears. She needed no light, the moon was flooding the room, and after she had smoothed back the thick, luxurious hair from her brow she turned to descend. It was impossible to leave the room without looking upon the night, so she stepped to the window.

$1,300,000 Contracts Forced Through Montreal Council.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 3.—Ald. Giroux, chairman of the Civic Road Committee, this afternoon succeeded in foreing through the City Council reports recommending the giving of contracts for paving streets and sidewalks to the extent of $1,300,000. There has been big opposition to the reports. The Citizens' Committee announces that it will at once take injunction proceedings to prevent the contracts being awarded and to compel Council to give the contracts to the lowest tenderers.

STUFFED CUCUMBERS. STUFFED CUCUMBERS.

Pare and cut into halves, lengthwise, good sized cucumbers. Scoop out the seeds with a spoon. Mix one cupfuli fine crumbs, one tablespoonful of metabutter, a scant teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of grated onion, and a finely chopped green pepper. Fill the cucumbers. Set in a baking pan and in the bottom of the pan put one-half cupful of water and one teablespoonful of butter. Cook in a quick oven thirty minutes, basting several times.

FRIED CUCUMBERS.

Cut the cucumbers into slices half

Cut the cucumbers into slices half an inch thick, salt the slices, and leave them to drain, four them, and cook them brown in boiling fat. This veget-able is a dainty accompaniment to game or fowl.

STUFFED CUCUMBER SALAD.

STUFFED CUCUMBER SALAD.

Peel cucumbers and cut in two, lengthwise, scrape from each half all the seeds and fill with this mixture. Take one small tender leaf of new cabbage, two or three fine lettuce leaves, half a dozen pitted olives, two or three sprigs of parsley, some sprays of watercress, chop rather fine and dress with oil,
vinegar, pepper and salt in the usual proportions, and add, if you like, a bit of horseradish.

BAKED CUCUMBERS.

Peel good sized green cucumbers.

BAKED CUCUMBERS.

Peel good sized green cucumbers.
To each six allow one pint of finely chopped meat, to which add a table-spoonful of onion juice, one teaspoonful of salt, and a saltspoonful of pepper. Put this into the spaces from which you have taken the seeds. Pat cucumbers together, tie or fasten them with skewers and stand them in a pan. Put in the pan a teaspoonful of salt, one chopped onion, two peeled and chopped tomatoes, and half a cupful of water. Baste every ten minutes. Strain sauce in pan when cucumbers are done and pour over them. Serve at once. The crooked necked squash may be stuffed and baked the same.

DANGEROUS PARANOIAC. Thaw So Described by Alienists in

White Plains, Aug. 3.—Three alienist White Plains, Aug. 3.—Inree alcohols in the Supreme Court to-day made it unpleasant for Harry K. Thaw, who now demands his release from the Matteawan Asylum as a mentally normal man.

All three testified that he was insane

All three testified that he was insane and when Thaw took the stand briefly, after some disconcerting testimony, he was plainly ruffled and nervous, but Mr. Jerome dismissed him after a few comparatively unimportant questions. Of the alienists who testified, Dr. Austin Flint, Dr. William Hirsch and Dr. Amos T. Baker, the last named gave testi-

Of the alienists who testified, Dr. Austin Flint, Dr. William Hirsch and Dr. Amos T. Baker, the last-named gave testimony of the most importance. He is acting superintendent of the Matteawan and is the only alienist to appear as a witness in the case without compensation. Justice Mills called attention to this fact, and took a hand in questioning him. Dr. Baker said that in his opinion, Thaw was not only insane now, but a dangerous person to be at large. Dr. Austin Flint, next called, described a paranoiae as a person dominated by certain delusions whose mental and physical state might not otherwise be affected, except in so far as these delusions influence him. The progress of the disease was usually very slow, he said. It rarely caused death, and except in the last stages, the patient might retain his faculites unimpaired.

"Paranoiacs," he concluded, impressively. "never recover."

"Paranoiacs," he concluded, impressively, "never recover."

Dr. Hirsch varied the general verdict by declaring Thaw a "degenerate paranoiac."

paranolac."

Charles, Morschauser, Thaw's attorney, attacked this testimony and caused Dr. Hirsch some uncomfortable moments by inquiring about a book he is writing.

"Do you in this book claim that Jesus Christ was a paranolac!" he asked. The alienist's reply was that he would not like to give an opinion on the subject.
