Rare were the sports round that wild home.

When little hands were twined—
And echoing woods swept back the joy,
Like voices in the wind.
And there, gay birds on bending spray,
Their wild-wood songs have given;
The robin sang at dawn of day,
And white-noor-will at even.

But leaves are scattered not more mild. mn winds up-h By autumn wirds up-hurled—
Than all that group of faces bright,
Upon this wide, wide world!
But still on memory's page, in light
When time cannot destroy—
Stand out those genes—the house, a
A lost, but sucred joy! —the house, and tree—

Varieties.

THE PLEASURE OF KNOWLEDGE.

I appeal to the experience of any man who is in the habit of exercising his mad vigorously and well, whether there is not a satisfaction in it which tells him he has been acting to one of the great objects of his existence? The end of nature has been answered: his faculties have done that which they were created to do—not languidly occupied upon trifles—not enervated by sensual gratification, but exercised in that toil which his programmed to this nature. vated by sensual gratification, but exercised in that toil which is a congenial to their nature, and so worthy of their strength. It life of knowledge is not often a life of injury and crime. When does such ambition oppress? With whose happiness does he interfere? Whom does his ambition destroy, and whom does his fraud deceive? In the pursuit of science he injures no man, and in the acquisition he does good to all. A man who dedicates his life to knowledge, becomes habituated to pleasure which carries with it no reproach; and there is no security that he will over love that pleasure which is paid for by the anguish of heart—his pleasures are all cheap, all dignified, and all innocent: and as far as any human being can expect permanence in this changing scene, he has secured a happiness which no malignity of fortune can ever take away, but which must cleave to him while he lives, ameliorating every good, and white no mangerity of fortune can ever take away, or trust cleave to him while he lives, ameliorating every good, and diminishing every evil of his existence.—Sydney Smith.

The Bar is fast losing its attractions to the young men of The Bar is fast losing its attractions to the young men of this city. There are now thirty young gentlemen, that have received liberal educations, who are serving their "time" as ship-wrights, architects, carpenters, &c. In a few years the United States will have the most accomplished mechanics in the world. A new class is springing up, who will put the present race of mechanics in the shade. The union of a substantial education with mechanical skill will effect this. Indeed, aircady we could name some mechanics, who are excellent mathematicians, acquainted with French and German, and able to study books in those languages connected with their vocations. Heretofore, fond fathers were wont to educate their sons as doctors or lawyers, to ensure their reswith their vocations. Heretofore, fond fathers were wont to educate their sons as doctors or lawyers, to ensure their respectibility and success. That day is past. Mechanics will now take the lead, and, in a few years, will supply the larger portion of the State and Federal Governments.—New York Mirror.

TRIFLES NOT TO BE Described—The nerve of a tooth, not so large as the finest cambric needle, will sometimes drive a strong man to distraction. A mosquito can make an elephant absolutely mad. The coral rock, which causes a navy to founder, is the work of worms. The warrior that withstood death in a thousand forms may be killed by an insect.

Nature requires five, Custom gives seven,
Laziness take nine,
And wickedness eleven.

You rarely, if ever, see a politician with smooth hair—a great scholar with fine hair—an artist with red hair—a fop with coarse hair—a minister with long hair—or an editor whose hair is earefully adjusted.

REVERIES OF AN OLD MAID.—In the course of a book lately published at New York, entitled the "Reveries of an Old Maid," we are told, that the weapons to subdue man are not to be found in the library, but in the kitchen! "The weakest part of an alligator: his stomach. Man is an alligator. Let the young wife fascinate her husband with the teapor! Let her, so to speak, only bring him into habits of intoxication with that sweet charmer, and make honey suckle clamber up his chairback, and grow ab at the legs of the table—let the hearth rug be a bod of heart's ease for the silken slippers, and the wickedness of the hateral enemy must die within him." What excellent wives some of these old mains who write books would make.

ECONOMY OF TIME -The Chanceller D'Aguesau, finding that his wife always kept him waiting a quarter of an hour after the dinner beil had rung, resolved to devote the time to writing a work on Jurisprudence. He put this project in execution, and in the course of time produced a quarto work of

PAUSE BEFORE YOU FOLLOW EXAMPLE.—A mule laded with sait, and an ass laded with wool, went over a brook together. By chance the mule's pack became wetted, the salt melted, and his burden became lighter.—After they had passed the mule told his good fortune to the ass, who thinking to speed as well, we'tted his pack at the next water; but his load became the heavier, and he broke down under it. That which helps one man may hinder another. PAUSE BEFORE YOU FOLLOW EXAMPLE. - A mule laded with Nicone Damus.—A Negro preacher, very recently, selected the visit of Nicodemus, as the foundation of his observations.

"My bred'ren," said he, "dere was in old times a great many preachers on de 'erth, who went about among de people. Many of dom white preachers, such as Peter, James, and John preachers on de 'erth, who went about among de people. Many of dom white preachers, such as *Peter. Jumes, and John Dere was also a great many coloured preschers, and de great eat among dom all was the Nigger Demus!"

BERT SUDAR IN UTAR.—Mesars. J. W. Coward, Collinson and Russell, who have recently emigrated from England to Utsh, have taken with them machinery for the manufacture of beet-tool Sugar on the largest scale. They are wealthy men, and have invested $ 250,000 in this enterprise alone.

CALIFORNIA FORTURES.—It is calculated that out of every hundred persons who have gone to California, fifty have been ruined, forty are no better than they would have been had they emained at home, five a little batter, four something better still and one has made a fortune.

A New Parry.—Water lime (hydraulic cement), mixed in an earner way with oil as Blake's Ohio paint, or any of the secral mineral paints lately brought into use, has lately been acovered to be equal to any other substance ever used for inting walls, roofs, floors, fences, or any other work, while point of economy, it is one to eight or ten. The discovery has accelerately made by Mr. John Herald, of Humpstead, ong Island.—The Plough.
