THE COUNCIL ABOLISHED.

If ever a government was entitled to congratulate itself, that felicity is due to the present administration over the abolishing the legislative council. Amid the taunts of their enemies, against opposition open and secret, with the sincerity of their professions discounted, indeed, by some of their friends, they have steadily pursued and finally accomplished the most important reform that has taken place in this province since confederation. council, much might be said to little pur- three miles. pose. But at last the great object has been branch of the legislature. We are not of two miles of said line. those who are inclined to say harsh respected men assuming their seats in the council and, without the slightest regard to fundamental reasons or the views of the large and intelligent minority, instantly voting themselves out of existence, would not have been a delectable one, nor have reflected much dignity upon the legislation by which it was brought about. Nobody has any personal ill-will towards the members of the council. Among them are included men of the highest ability and integrity. The matter of their remaining in office for a year or two, and | five miles. until a new house of assembly is chosen by the people to discharge the added functions which by abolition is entailed upon them, is a matter of the utmost insignificance in view of the all-important, unrevokable fact that abolition has been of public opinion and under that alone. Mr. Hill, a member of the legislative council, has always been an opponent of abolition. His course for years past has been an independent one; certainly he cannot be accused of having unduly favored the government. His view, therefore, of what the government has accom-

That policy they had carried out with a reasonpolicy they had carried out with a reasonable degree of persistency ever since they had been a government. They had not succeeded until now, but no matter whether the amendment passed or not they had accomplished the object of their desire. Though it might be some time yet before the change went into effect, yet they had carried it nevertheless. They had attained a great success and with that they should be satisfied."

THE SUBSIDY BILL.

A most important measure was that submitted by the government this week, and which duly passed the legislature, provided for the construction of lines of railway in various parts of the province. The opposition orators in the assembly, some of them, criticised the measure, realizing that it removed the only substantial grievance yet remaining against the government in some parts of the province, but none of them had the courage to vote against it, and it passed the representative branch unanimously. The upper house was also a unit in favor of the bill, the only opponents of it being hon.

Messrs. Hill and Jones. The Fredericton-Westfield line, when completed, will be of the utmost advantage to the business interests of the city, and it is not surprising that the people living along the achievement at last of their policy of river between here and Gagetown are very enthusiastic. The road from Cross Creek to Stanley will be a great boon to the people of that flourishing settlement, and it is to be hoped steps will be taken for immediate construction. The roads provided for by the measure, as it passed the upper branch, are as follows:

He is represented as having denied receiving such a petition. This repeated misrepresentation would suggest that the desire in some quarters was to create the idea that he had some unfair object in view regarding the petition. As matter of fact he had never denied having received the petition. What he did say in answer to Mr. Shaw's question was that he did not recollect having received it, that it might be in his desk with other papers that he had received, but which he had not yet had time to carefully examine.
