Hopefully Awaits the Irish Report

THE COMMISSION'S FINDINGS ARE EXPECTED TO MOLLIFFY FREE STATE OPINION.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Westminster Gazette says the Irish Boundary Commission's report may be made within fortnight. Dr. McNeill, the Irish Free State's representative on the commission, arrived in London yesterday and the three commissioners will meet to tabulate the evidence obtained and draft a report. Much of the evidence is yet to be dealt with. President Cosgrave, of the Dail, on Tuesday, procured an adjournment of the Dail for a week owing to Dr. Mc-

Neill's visit to London. He said at the time that the work of the commission was nearing an end.

According to the Gazette the report of the commission is hopefully awaited in Free State circles, and from this it infers that Joseph B. Fisher, North Ireland's representative, who was appointed by the British government, has consented to such rectifications of the frontier as will mollify Free State opinion. The newspaper adds that if a compromise is reported between the commissioners it is unbelievable that large transfers of land will be proposed.

Armistice Day Celebrations

AT THE NATIONAL MEMORIAL. The Remembrance Day ceremony at the National Memorial was participated in by a large concourse of citizens, including the pupils of the Junior College and Normal School, who attended in full regalia. His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Lady Allardye, Miss Allardye and Major Shand, and Hon. W. S. Monroe, Prime Minister, and Mrs. Monroe, arrived at the Water Street entrance to the Memorial shortly before 11 a.m. They were received by Commander Howler, President of the G. W. V. A., and members of the Reception Committee, and escorted to the platform from where His Excellency read the following address:—

Mr. Prime Minister, War Veterans, Citizens.—
We have assembled here to-day to pay a tribute to those, our gallant comrades, whom this Memorial commemorates. We renew afresh our pledge to continue unceasingly the struggle of right against might and to protect the fatherless children, widows and aged parents of the men who gave their all for God, King and Country. May we, as veterans and citizens be fully charged with the sense of our duties and responsibilities and ever strive to lift high the torch lit by our comrades who, in a true spirit of self-sacrifice passed out of this life through the gateway of duty, and who are calling to us to keep faith with them. May each one of us carry forth from this Memorial a solemn realization of what Remembrance Day means and may our lives be devoted to the cause which so many died to uphold. I shall call upon you all, at the sound of the gun, to stand with bowed heads for the spaces of two minutes, out of love and respect for those who have answered the last roll call.

When the appointed signal was given, silence was observed for the space of two minutes, after which the Last Post was sounded by Bugler Cook. Then followed the laying of wreaths by the Governor, as well as several organizations and citizens.

The short but impressive ceremony was carried out without a hitch under the direction of the G.W.V.A. Executive.

AT THE SERGEANTS' MEMORIAL.

Preceding the ceremony at the National Memorial, the members of the Sergeants' Mess assembled at the Monument, in the square at the foot of Garrison Hill, when President R.S.M. Neil Patrick read the ritual for the occasion and a two minute silence was observed. The simple ceremony of remembrance concluded with the Last Post and the placing of a wreath.

Following the ceremony at the National Memorial yesterday, His Excellency visited the General Post Office, where a large assemblage of people were gathered for the purpose of taking part and witnessing the unveiling of a Memorial Tablet in commemoration of those associated with the Posts and Telegraphs Department, who made the supreme sacrifice.

His Excellency was accompanied by Lady Allardye, Miss Allardye and suite. As they approached the Eastern entrance they were met by the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Hon. Mr. Woodford; Deputy Minister, J. G. Hodder; Asst. Deputy Minister, William Campbell; Supt. Lloyd and Miller, and representatives of the Postal and Telegraph Associations. The interior of the building was appropriately decorated for the occasion. The Tablet—which was in the western section of the main lobby—was covered by the Union Jack, whilst overhead was a picture of His Majesty, King George V. A guard of honor, comprising postal and telegraph officials who saw active service were in charge of Sergt. Morrissey, late of the Newfoundland Regiment, who is now a postal official. Following military custom, the guard of honor stood to attention whilst the National Anthem was being played by Supt. Lloyd on the organ. Mr. Woodford, the Minister of Posts, afterwards escorted His Excellency and Lady Allardye and suite to the section near the Tablet, and opened the proceedings by welcoming His Excellency and Lady Allardye and thanking them for their attendance, after which he touchingly addressed the assemblage as follows:—

Hon. Mr. Woodford's Speech
Your Excellency and Lady Allardye: I have the honor of inviting you here to-day on behalf of the Post and Telegraph Departments, to ask you to preside and conduct a very important ceremony—the unveiling of a Memorial Tablet to our noble dead.

I regret exceedingly that this Memorial has not been previously unveiled, but the opportune moment has now presented itself and it is with particular pride that I have invited the relatives and next-of-kin of those who made the supreme sacrifice during the great and eventful war, to witness this unveiling.

Your Excellency, as you are already informed in the annual report, some forty-seven of our staff went Overseas. Out of that number, you will note by the Tablet, twelve gave their lives that we might live in peace and happiness, and Christ Himself says: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

I avail of this opportunity to extend my sincere sympathy, and perhaps I should say, congratulation, to the next-of-kin of those who fought so valiantly and died so gloriously.

It is not my desire to delay this ceremony, but one cannot help feeling emotional on such an auspicious occasion. Truly, "Their Name Liveth For Evermore."

The Minister's remarks greatly impressed the gathering, and his words seemed to have touched the hearts of those who were directly interested—the relatives and next-of-kin of the dear departed. At the conclusion of his speech, Supt. Lloyd, who presided at the organ, led the singing of "Oh, God, our help in ages past." His Excellency then expressed his pleasure at being present and rendered the following very impressive speech:

His Excellency's Speech
Fastmaster General, Members of the Telegraphs and Postal Association, Comrades, Friends.—
I am very sensible of the honor you have conferred on me in asking me to unveil this Tablet which your members of the Newfoundland Postal Association have erected to the memory of those of your comrades who gave their lives for their King, their Empire, and their Homeland.

During the three years I have represented His Majesty in this Colony, it has been my privilege to unveil a number of War Memorials. In the past, I may, perhaps, have been inclined to wonder whether these Memorials—by their very number throughout the Empire—did not indicate a fear that the memory of those who fell during the Great War, might fade, but as time has rolled on, I have realized more fully their strong purpose and their inestimable value. This Tablet is not only a record of the names of those brave men who fell in action, but it is also an eloquent—although silent—witness to the great lesson of sacrifice taught us by these, your comrades, and untold thousands who likewise died in battle. Here in this large and busy Post Office, where highly important work is being performed unceasingly, and where to-day an unique assemblage has met to do honor to the fallen, let us take to heart the great lesson of sacrifice in our daily lives, humbly strive to emulate their glorious example.

At the conclusion of his speech, His Excellency announced the unveiling of the Tablet, and in doing so drew on the cord thus placing the Tablet on public view. The Tablet is a bronze plate, surmounted by a Caribou Head, similar to those exhibited in many of the public buildings and libraries in the Old Country, and bears the following inscription:—

IN MEMORY OF THE MEN FROM THE NEWFOUNDLAND POST OFFICE AND TELEGRAPH STAFF WHO FELL IN THE GREAT WAR (1914-1918)

"THEIR NAME LIVETH FOR EVERMORE"

Perhaps the most touching scene of the entire programme was the observance of the two minutes' silence and the bugler's sounding of the Last Post and Reveille.

The Governor then left whilst Mr. Lloyd played in a masterly manner, the Allotulua Chorus. In all, the ceremony was one which was very inspiring and do doubt, will be remembered by the many who witnessed it.

The Minister of Posts' speech and afterwards, His Excellency's, indeed expressed the true sentiment of the Postal and Telegraph staff and Associations. The latter are primarily responsible for the successful carrying out of the programme, whilst a great measure of praise is due Supt. Lloyd and Sergt. Morrissey for the very able manner in which they discharged their respective duties.

CENTRAL LEATHER CO.

New York, Nov. 4.—Central Leather Co.'s third quarter showing of $124,566 net after taxes, depreciation and bond interest was undoubtedly disappointing to many, comparing with net of $421,469 in the preceding quarter of 1924, but was to be expected considering the strong buyers' position prevailing during the period, as previously explained in an analysis showing that the company could not possibly earn its full preferred dividend this year.

The upper leather industry, as indicated by results of American Hide and Leather Co. and Barnet Leather Co., has progressed considerably within the current year. But the sole leather industry not only has a production capacity far above the consumption it can reasonably expect but actual output of leather has been slightly above consumption as shown by the recent increase in stocks on hand, despite the low percentage of operation now well below 60 per cent.

In other words, the American sole leather industry is in a position to supply a large outside demand which does not exist. Leading factors in the industry frankly state that foreign markets which have been lost must be put out of the picture and the attention of the industry concentrated on bringing production into line with domestic consumption.

Outlook for the fourth quarter is brighter for Central Leather Co. Buying has improved considerably and shoe manufacturers are showing a disposition to commit themselves somewhat farther ahead. But this does not put these companies out of the hand-to-mouth purchasing category. With an abundance of sole leather stock to draw from, shoe companies at present are in no hurry to stock up, and the day when inventories in the shoe industry will be a factor in estimating probable demand for sole leather must await the restoration of a closer relation between production and domestic consumption.
