dividuals accused of conspiring against the safety of the republic Convictions are determined on beforehand; false evidence is given for a price by mercenary ruffians, etc., etc. The fact is, however, that in all the world's history, no person accused of. political offence ever received a eally fair and impartial trial; and for the following reasons: A government which is powerful enough to rrest its enemies or alleged enemies ringing them to trial before the ourts of law, must necessarily have a vast preponderancy of public opinion on its side. In other words. the public at large are prejudiced against the prisoner before he comes into court; so are the jury, who are members of that public; so are the judges, lawyers, even the very jailors and policemen on duty. Such has en the history of all political trial in the past; and so long as political rosecutions continue to be resorted to by governments, especially in times of revolution, so long will the prisoner continue to be tried by a prejudiced tribunal made up, for the most part, of his opponents. Eight hundred persons, it is said, are now languishing in Portugal's jails merely as suspected intriguers. That, of course, is regrettable. But the Portuguese republic by no means stands alone. Time and again, in the United Kingdom itself, coercion acts have been resorted to in times of rouble in Ireland, and hundreds of ersons have been laid by the heels and detained in jail for months on bare suspicion of conspiracy. In Great Britain itself, the land of Magna Charta, at the time of the Great French Revolution the government of the day suspended the habeas corpus act, and everyone who expressed symoathy with the democratic longings of the French people was liable to be romptly hauled off to prison. So the Portuguese republic sins in good company, if all this is true. But the fact is that all the telegraph from Portugal, with very few exceptions written with a strong reactionary and Anti-Republican bias, hat is manifest to anyone who studies it with ordinary care; and that being so, it is superfluous to, add that Liberals need to take it "cum grano salis."

CLEARING HOUSE FOR LABOR. Without entering into the details of he trouble which resulted in the leath of the labor bureau, the Albertan believes that the outcome is re grettable. The move was one in the right direction, even though the city was losing money in the venture Hardly enough time was given for a satisfactory test, and during the greater part of the time that it was in operation the city authorities were not in sympathy with the management of the bureau.

In Wisconsin, the state conducts labor bureau with great success. I more the work of a province o state, or even of a Dominion than of a mere city. To be successful there should be cooperation. Miss Wileman has done some good by directing the different provinces and the Dominion towards a general povement of this kind. The establish ment of a general clearing house for labor throughout the Dominion, would be a move in the right direction. The Toronto Star in speaking of the sug-restion, in a recent issue says:-"Miss E. St. John Wileman, founde and manager of the Calgary Labor Bureau, is advertising a scheme of government bureaus for Canada. un der the control of the Dominion Department of Labor. There would be a bureau in each city and large town, di-

🕘 HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY 🧭

We Have Passed the 243rd Anniversary of Our History

HE Pilgrim Fathers did not land at Plymouth Rock with loftier ideals, a more heroic spirit or cleaner purpose than that which animated the missioners of this great enterprise who came to it with a mercantile spirit, and with a firm purpose of conducting an honorable profession of trade and government of a great and little known land.

This was over two and a quarter centuries ago, and yet this business is still young and growing.

The principles adopted by the founders of this great business upon its inception were strong and immutable, and have prevailed throughout. Though the growth of this business has kept pace and been part of the rapid development of our country, it has never outgrown these foundation principles of integrity in its dealings with the public, of sincerity in all its words and actions; of courteous service to its patrons and the greatest integral worth of its merchandise.

In the past we have made an honest endeavor to cater to the wants of the people in a manner which assures them of the height of service, the dependable quality of our goods, and a lasting satisfaction to our patrons.

As we look back upon the work of those who have preceded us,-a work well done -we feel the weight of a great responsibility, and look forward with the hope that because of extended facilities, we can serve you better each day. If we do so, it will be the happy furtherance of our ideals.

Our Contribution to Proper Dressing of Boys

TeT a boy used to clothes that make him comfort. le. fit him well and give him a certain pride in his personal appearance and when he gets old enough to buy his own clothing he will buy the right sort. Meanwhile, in pleasing him, please yourself. Buy him suits that you know will wear as well as they look. Let them be fairly priced, of course. It is easy to buy good clothing at high figures; the problem is to invest moderately and yet be fully satisfied.

And that's Hudson's Bay Clothing for boys. Not a suit that n't the best possible for the least money. Best in every essentia to satisfactory service.

Here's a birds-eye view of the new suits for summer that we ordered for sturdy western boys. In Russian blouse and Buster effects we are showing a large range of choice in fine tweeds and blue serges, including all the best shades of gray, brown and fawns; well made little suits either with or without braid trimming and leather belts Priced$3.50 to $7.00 For boys a little older we recommend the celebrated "Lion Brand" Clothes, acknowledged by those n a position to judge to be leaders in their line, as of boys' clothing exclusively. These tweeds, in browns, grays, greens and heather mixtures. Well cut and strongly put together in every detail. And two pairs of pants with each suit will be appreciated by both mothers and boys. Ask to see the "College" and "Harvard," two very ed styles with vent sack coats. These are the dresslest
