FIGURE-6043.

A short, semi-fitting coat is a very necessary adjunct of the modern wardrobe, for there are many pleasant days, even during the cold-weather months, when a longer wrap is a good deal of a burden. The coat sketched will be found very practical, and not too complicated for home development, while it has an extremely trig and smart effect. The slight fitting that is needed to adapt it to the figure is effected by means of the short side of old slippers that Max threw after Her heart beat with anxiety and exleces, which are attached to the backs and fronts under the shaped trimming bands.
