Conflict Involving Highest Officials Is Seen As Result of Landis' Method of Dealing With Giant Bribery Case

Barney Dreyfuss Hints More New York Players Implicated.

STRIKE LIKELY

Ban Johnson Thought One of Leaders Uniting Against Commissioner.

Associated Press Despatch. Washington, Oct. 3.—Factional strife involving baseball's highest officials may grow out of the O'Connell-Dolan bribery deal that has thrown the diamond world into turmoil.

Although the day failed to add fresh sensations to the bribery scandal, or point further suspicion to anyone outside the two giant players banished from the game, there were strong indications that the governing forces of the game were at the point of sharp conflict.

Culminating factors in this situation today were the announcement of Ban Johnson, president of the American League, that he would not attend the series because of the suspicion surrounding the Giants, and a statement by Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh club owner, which was viewed here as a challenge to the decision of Landis.

Johnson, who reiterated his contention that the series should have been called off, and Dreyfuss, apparently have taken the leadership of forces believed to be antagonistic to the regime of Commissioner Landis. Their statements today, following attacks of similar vein yesterday, are interpreted as the opening guns of a campaign which may shake baseball's whole governing structure.

Reiterating his previous statement that he believed there were "others in the background" who knew all about baseball's latest scandal, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Nationals, urged that Commissioner Landis reopen his investigation.

"I am going down to repeat all I said yesterday, and if anybody wants to start anything with me I'll be there to give them all the satisfaction they want," said the Pittsburgh magnate.

"If this thing is not cleaned up properly and to the entire satisfaction of the public, by bringing every guilty man to justice, there must be more than two involved—I will be in favor of eliminating the world's series for at least as a growing menace to the best interests of the game," said Mr. Dreyfuss.

Manager McGraw of the New York club has been quoted as taking exceptions to some of Mr. Dreyfuss' remarks, and to have said that he was still sore about the defeat of the Pirates in 1921, continued the club owner.

McGraw might not look very good, the day saying about people in glass houses, but he is not the last person ever to refer to 1921, but I am not going to get into any arguments with him. He is not in my class.

Outcast Bound For California

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Oct. 3.—Jimmy O'Connell, Giant outfielder, one of the central figures in the scandal that has shocked baseball fandom, will return with his wife to his home in California, he said today.

"Now I am an outcast and can only drift until this thing is cleared up. If ever it is," he said. "We are going to start back to California next Monday."

What I will do after that I don't know," he said mournfully. "I can't think; I am left adrift with the only big thing in my life taken from me. And I got mine simply for carrying out 'the orders of my boss.'"

Believe National League Champion Team's Morale Is Shaken.

CAPITAL REJOICES

McQuillan Expected To Oppose Johnson in Initial Game.

Associated Press Despatch. Washington, Oct. 3.—The 1924 world's series betrays the whole outcome of the American league, and the New York Giants, National champions for the past four years, will start tomorrow under circumstances which have no parallel on the eve of the game's greatest classic.

Today the playing issues of the struggle, a battle of promises to bring two closely-matched teams into action for the game's highest stakes, came back to the limelight, after having been obscured for two days by the sensational charges of bribery involving the Giants, and causing the banishment of two members of the club.

The capital was preparing to come into its own in baseball for the first time in its history, and from President Coolidge, who will throw out the first ball, down to the youngest hero worshipper of Bucky Harris and Walter Johnson, Washington's most gallant diamond figures, the city's population will pay its tribute to their champions.

It was conceivable to observers tonight that the whole outcome of the championship fight might turn on the popular attitude toward tomorrow, for the Giants, though they seemed to have regained their confidence and poise as they went through their final drill today, go into the fray keyed to a high nervous pitch.

Appear Calm. Their Giants morale, it is believed, has been shaken, although the players after their brisk workout in the Senators' park, declared they would take the field ready to coast aside all thought of the scandal, and fight unhampered for the game's major crown.

The Senators, under their 27-year-old pilot, Stanley Harris, who led the club to its first pennant in its inaugural year, declared they would put the finishing touches on their practice with an hour's drill this morning.

Walter Johnson, also put the finishing touches on his practice with an hour's drill this morning. Opposed to him probably will be Hughie McQuillan, although McGraw may figure, the city's southpaw sharpshooter, Art Nehf.
