He hoped the newspapers would exercise discretion in printing news from the Sou-dan, so as not to make public information useful to the mahdi. to tell that to Blaine. He accused Blaine of being in league with the catholics of this city, and of corresponding with Cardinal McCloskey, who, he said, had pledged to Blaine the catholic vote of the city. Dr. F. R. Morse, moderator, said : I must say I do not agree with any one of the numerous statements of Dr. Fulton, and I sincerely hope this conference will not disperse without having repudiated his entire essay. He has no right to make the charge that James G. Blaine is allied to catholicism. No matter what may be said of Blaine, he believes in christian marriage and family purity. Dr. Fulton said: I'll give my proofs. Wait a few minutes, said the moderator. Tnat's it, said Dr. Fulton. You ask for proifs and then shut my mouth. Rev. Dr. Hiscox said he believed the republican leaders were corrupt and he coincided in Fulton's statements. Dr. Sheldon said he could not agree with any portion of the essay, that Burchard had no business to give vent to such an expression and in the first place ministers had no right to visit Blaine with political intentions. It was not their place to do so. He believed all persons should keep within the bounds of common sense and that Burchard's speech was entirely out of place. Sir Charles Dilke denied the reports of cholera in England. In the house of lords this evening Gran-ville, in reply to Salisbury, said the gov-ernment intended that the passing of the franchise bill must precede the passage of the redistribution bill.
