The Proof the British Medical Journal. The Progress Medical publishes a paper by Drs. Regnard and Loyse on the examination of the head and body of a convict immediately after his decapitation by the guillotne. The prisoner was calm to the last, and not make seen when his neek was fixed ready to receive the fatal knife. Two seconds after decapitation the checks were still rosy, the cyts wide open, with moderately dilated when a finger was placed close to one eye no charge of expression took place, but on touching an eye or the tips of the lashes during the first five seconds, the los closed just as in life. The reflex action could not be excited from the sixth second after decapitation. The jaws were tightly closed and could not be opened by manual force. No similar muscular contraction could be detected in the trunk or extremi-ties. One ninute after desti the face began to tum pale, the trunk remained flacid, the maining in the circulatory stee. At the end of four minutes the face was quite pike, the structure dis were half closed, the jaws less for the structure atter desti the face began to tum pale, the trunk remained flacid, the maining in the circulatory stee.
