Care and Abuse of Farm Machinery

Recent investigations by the Conservation Commission reveal some very interesting facts regarding the effect of care, or neglect, as the case may be, upon the life of machinery on the farm. Between 90 and 95 farms divided into three districts, were visited in each of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In Saskatchewan, out of 94 farms visited by the Commission's representative, 76 leave all of their implements out of doors. On 73 of the farms, there were no implements of any description. On 21 of the farms, sheds large enough to cover a part of the implements were found, in most cases this being only a buggy or a democrat, but not on one single farm was the machinery all housed. Not one farmer was found who painted his implements to protect them from the weather.

In Manitoba, only 14 out of 94 keep their machinery under cover during winter, while 44 claim to keep a part of it inside. On 34 of the Manitoba farms no provision whatever is made for protecting implements, and only four claim to have done any painting.

In the three districts visited in Alberta, mixed farming is carried on quite extensively, making more barn room available, so that implements are more likely to be protected, but even here, 37 out of the 92 visited leave all machinery out of doors.

In one district in Ontario where 40 farmers were visited, every man housed his implements during winter, although none of these men do any painting.

In the Ontario district visited where the implements are housed, the average life of the binder was found to be between 16 and 21 years. Many binders were seen which were in good running order after cutting 100,000 bushels of wheat.

In Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where so much of the machinery is left out of doors, the average life of the binder is given by the farmers as about 7 years, which is less than half that of the binder protected from the weather. Many binders do not last as long as seven years. One farmer near Moosomin, Sask., who, after 12 years, was retiring from the farm, held an auction sale. His binder after cutting 12 crops sold for $80, or 50 per cent of the original cost and his other machinery at proportionately high prices. It had all been well housed and the necessary painting and repairing had been done to keep it in good order. On a neighboring farm a binder which had cut only three crops, but which had been neglected and had stood out of doors, was being relegated to the early painting and repairing had been purchased.

An implement shed costs money, but if its use will double or treble the length of time the machinery will last, it is a good investment. Farmers often say that they cannot afford to be without one. Apart from the additional power necessary for operation, the depreciation on un-housed machinery on the average sized farm is so great as to amount to much more than the cost and upkeep of an implement shed. The binder works for only a short time during the year, while machinery in a shop works the whole year through and lasts proportionately many times longer. It is simply a matter of care. The life of a machine extends in direct ratio to the care it receives and abuse and neglect will shorten the life of any mechanism. The manufacturer is not responsible for the care of the machinery after it is sold. This rests entirely with the farmer, and as a common-sense business proposition he should look after his own interests sufficiently to house his implements and thus save the thousands of dollars wasted annually in unnecessary depreciation.—F. British Trade Shows Big Decrease

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The effect of the war on British trade is shown in the figures published by the Board of Trade for the month of October.

Imports decreased £20,170,000 and exports decreased £18,020,000. The principal loss in imports was £5,500,000 on raw cotton from America, and £1,500,000 on cotton from Egypt, together with £7,000,000 on manufactured articles. The exports of coal declined £2,000,000, and the exports of manufactured articles declined £13,500,000. Of the latter cotton yarns made up £5,250,000, and wool yarns £1,250,000.

A Bradford, Ont., despatch says: "The Six Nations Indians will furnish a company of 120 officers and men, all redskins, for the second contingent. They will mobilize at Cayuga at once."

No Liquor for the Soldiers

Order-in-Council Passed at Ottawa Shows It is Serious Thing to Break This Law.

The following order-in-council was passed at Ottawa on September 12, last, under section 6 of the War Measures Act, 1914, and in view of intoxicated soldiers occasionally seen on the streets, it will be read with interest by the public and by those who are in the habit of either giving or selling liquor to the military:

No person shall give or sell to a member of any of His Majesty's forces employed in the defence of any railway, dock, or harbour, any intoxicating liquor, when not on duty, with intent to make him drunk; or when on duty, to render him unfit for duty; or when on duty, to render him unfit for duty; or when on duty, to render him unfit for duty.

It may be added that the penalty for violation of this order-in-council is a fine of $5,000 or a maximum of five years' imprisonment, or both. The recovery of the fine and enforcement of the penalty is provided for under part 15 of the Criminal Code.

When Rheumatism Strikes the Heart It Kills—"Nerviline" the Cure

Effect of Nerviline on Chronic Cases is Almost Magical

Exposure to wet or cold is apt to bring on an attack. The muscles stiffen, the joints swell and exertion brings on excruciating twinges.

Often the pain shifts from one part to another, and this is dangerous, as the heart is apt to be attacked. Death as a rule follows a heart attack.

The pain of rheumatism is quickly rubbed away with Nerviline.

This is a swift, lasting, and safe way to "cure" rheumatism. You can depend on Nerviline. It has the power, the penetrating force, the control over pain that is so essential to a rheumatic remedy.

Lots of testimony to prove Nerviline's certainty to cure.

The following letter is from Mr. E. G. Sautter, Port of Spain, Trinidad: "Last year I was severely troubled with rheumatism. I had it in my arms, shoulders and knees. The pain was at times excruciating, and laid me up so that I couldn't work. I went to Smith Brothers' Drug Store and was advised by the manager to use 'Nerviline.' That was excellent advice. I used Nerviline as directed and was cured, completely cured of every trace of my old enemy."

Once you use Nerviline you'll realize it's different from all others—that it contains something that gets right 'at' the pain the minute you rub it on. The large 50-cent family size is the most economical—get it today, or else the 25-cent trial size. Sold by all dealers everywhere, or the Catterthorne Co., Kingston, Canada.

Even Russia

Russia has prohibited the sale of Vodka, their national drink, this to continue even after the war and visitors say that there is such a change that the country is hardly recognizable. Peasants, who before the war had fallen into hopeless indolence, and depravity have already become self-respecting citizens. The effect on character is already visible in neatly brushed clothes instead of the former ragged and slovenly attire. Huts which were dilapidated are now repaired and improved.

Society has become more orderly and the peasants indulge in wholesome amusements. They now save fifty-five per cent of their wages which was formerly spent for drink and their earning power has been increased through sobriety. This extra money is now spent for necessities and comforts. This startling regeneration of the peasantry is, in the opinion of the Russian authorities, likely to have an important effect on the social and economic conditions of all Russia.

Why cannot we have a similar blessing? Are we not badly in need of it?

M. ARNOTT, M. B., M.C.P.S.

Worse than War

Listen to these great men. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain said: "No statistics are needed to assure you that temperance reform lies at the bottom of all further political, social and religious progress. If I could destroy tomorrow the desire for strong drink in the people of England what changes we would see. We would see our taxes reduced by millions sterling. We would see our jails and work-houses empty. We would see more lives saved in twelve months than are consumed in a century of bitter and savage war."

Gladstone said that drink destroyed more lives than war, pestilence and famine combined.

Dr. Sir James Crichton Browne says that the harmful influence of drink is exerted more strongly on fine and sensitive natures. He found graduates of England's proudest universities among the most degraded tramps of Australia and two hundred college graduates in one month in the midnight breed line of the slums of New York. Every one of these was victimized by the false idea that he could take it or leave it alone.

Cronwell said, "This national crime is a thing that God will reckon with and I wish it may not be on the nation a day longer than you can find a remedy for it."

When will statesmen arise strong enough to grapple with this great national enemy?
