fore his death very few cases of any importance were treated in this city without the advice of Dr. Campbell having been obtained. His grand knowledge of pathology, naturally clear insight into the varying shades of distinction between clinical conditions apt to resemble each other, made him our expert in diagnosis. Surgery was always his forte, and his great reputation was chiefly made by many successful achievements in operative work. In 1835 Dr. Campbell was appointed to the Chair of Surgery in McGill University, which position he continued to hold with credit to himself and great advantage to the school until 1875—exactly 40 years—when, owing to failing health, he resigned. He was made Dean of the Faculty in 1860, taking then the place of the late Dr. Holmes. The duties of this office he fulfilled even after his resignation of the Chair of Surgery, and it was only in March last that Prof. Howard was appointed Acting Dean in order to relieve him of some necessary work and supply his place during temporary absences.

The example of such a man as Dr. Campbell cannot fail to be productive of great good. An accomplished physician and skillful surgeon, an upright, honorable citizen, a kind and considerate friend to the poor, a loved and honored counsellor of the rich, zealous in business but scrupulously honorable, a firm protector of the dignity of his profession, and, above all, a thoroughly consistent Christian gentleman.
