

to do the work required for 1889-90, for 1890-91 and for 1891-92.

(c) From what has been stated in (a) and (b) it is evident that the present Faculty with an additional professor, who will lecture on Latin and Greek, will be fully able to do all the work required for 1889-90 and 1890-91; and with a second additional professor all the work for 1891-92. At the beginning of 1892-93 the full Arts Faculty will be required, as the lectures on all the subjects of the two courses will commence at that time. The following scheme of lectures will serve to show how the work for 1889-90, 1890-91 and 1891-92 can be distributed among a limited number of professors as suggested.

(d) It will be noticed, by referring to this table, that some years the work assigned is very light. This is unavoidable, on account of the transition from the present condition of things to University work proper. Where this, however, occurs, it is proposed to arrange courses of lectures for the Professors in Moulton College.

*The number after each subject denote the number of Lectures per week to be delivered upon the subject throughout the College year.
