BENJAMIN TOOMBS.

The necessity of some kind of cheap but substantial roofing for building has long been felt here and elsewhere, that need has however been overcome by "Scott's patent Sheet Iron Roofing," and wherever builders have given it a trial it has, in all cases, given the utmost satisfaction; so much so that there are over five million square feet in use at the present time, which fact is proof of its superiority. Mr. Toombs, who is agent for this very valuable article of commerce, conducts his business on Euston Street near Great George Street. He is also agent for the "Great western well auger" and will at all times enter into contracts for the sinking of wells of from 3 feet to 6 feet in diameter and, what is a most important item in this branch of business, he will guarantee a bountiful supply of water. As may be seen on reference to page 223.

STEPHEN T. STUMBLES.

A number of first class livery stables should always be maintained in all cities pleasantly situated, surrounded by beautiful scenery, and having first class drives, Charlottetown is so situated, and has excellent drives, but strange to say there are few Livery Stables. Among the foremost of those which are established is that of Mr. Stephen T. Stumbles which is located on Upper Great George Street. Here may be found a number of handsome vehicles, and excellent roadsters which he is ready to hire for conveyance to any required distance at very moderate charges. See his advertisement on page 114.
