British Hold Vantage Points

London, June 21.—With the recent captures in the Meuse region the British now hold all the vantage points along their line on the Franco-Belgian front, as the result of which there has been an enormous decrease in the number of British casualties, says Major-General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the war office, in his weekly talk with the Associated Press today.

General Maurice pointed out that when the Germans were stopped in their drive on Calais, early in the war, they decided on defensive warfare in the west, and established themselves on such dominating heights as those of the Somme and of Meuse.

"All these positions have now been wrested from them," continued General Maurice.

"Our western front is approximately 130 kilometres long, and we are in the German trenches for this entire length with the exception of a few sections, which total about 25 kilometres.

"Naturally, since we now hold the dominating positions, there is an enormous reduction in our casualties."

General Maurice contradicted reports that have been circulated that the Germans have drawn large forces from the eastern front to take part in the fighting in France.

"The fact is," added the general, "that there has been no considerable movement of German troops from the east to the west."

"The Germans have sent fresh units to the western front but those were made up largely of men called to the colors recently."

"The Germans have been using the people in the occupied territories to replace laborers at home, who are thus released for the army."

Party Lines Disregarded In Conscription Debate

Ottawa, June 21.—Parliament heard today the conscientious convictions of men sitting on the same side of the house, life-long supporters and admirers of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, differing among themselves as to whether or not he was right in saying that national interests and war interests would be seriously jeopardized if parliament forthwith enacted conscription. Those who differed with him paid eloquent tribute to his lofty patriotism and his far-seeing statesmanship, but at the same time, they believed that conscription had to come, and that this parliament had the right to give the lead along that line. Those who agreed with him were equally sincere in claiming that under present conditions, especially under the present administration, the attempt to pass and enforce conscription would be folly entailing the most serious national consequence. The debate, maintained again today at a high level, emphasized the greatness and the complications of the issue forced upon Canada by the precipitate action of the government.

Mr. Pardee's Break With Leader

F. F. Pardee, the chief Liberal whip, recorded the first difference of a lifetime with his revered leader. The close associations and the affection of the Liberal whip for his chief were known to every member of the house. When Mr. Pardee spoke this afternoon, members on the government side who have perhaps been prone to play or suspect politics in every parliamentary stand realized probably as never before, the mistake of throwing the conscription issue into politics without reckoning on the consequences.

In concluding, Mr. Pardee accepted Premier Borden's invitation to the opposition for suggestions. He urged that before proceeding with the operation of the bill after its passage, "a last big and sincere appeal should be made to the patriotism of young Canadian manhood."

He believed that, under direct and real government leadership, with the co-operation of all parties, classes and provinces, the needed 100,000 men could thus be raised and a situation fraught with serious possibilities of schism and strife be saved.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, the solicitor general, who followed, referred to Mr. Pardee's utterances as a speech "which will live long in the records of this parliament." The solicitor general made the significant announcement that the bill was framed to "work more lightly on Quebec than on any other province of confederation," and intimated that the government was still ready to meet opposition in a friendly and lenient administration.

Hon. Charles Murphy, who warmly supported the referendum, stated that his opposition to conscription without the backing of the people was based upon the conviction that its principle, as well as its administration, would hinder, rather than help, in the winning of the war.

The evening sitting was marked by the declaration of another of Sir Wilfrid's strong supporters in the house, Mr. Crandall, of Saskatchewan, that he too, had reluctantly to differ from his leader on the referendum and conscription issue. Mr. Crandall was for the conscription principle, but he strongly urged the government with a view both to national and war considerations, to postpone any attempt to enforce until a general election had been held and the people's mandate been given to a new parliament.

Mr. Gauthier, of St. Hyacinthe, emphasized the grave national situation which would be precipitated by any attempt to pass and enforce conscription under present conditions. He solemnly warned the government that unless they heeded the demand from Quebec that the people should first pronounce upon the issue, there would be "a fight" and the "direct consequences" in his own province.

Suffered From Severe Headaches FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. L. N. Petersen, Danier, Man., writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors, but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am, and always will be, grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and best known blood medicine on the market today, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LIVE SIMPLY

Economy in Food Consumption is Imperative.

While the government is urging greater food production and the utmost economy in food consumption, the hotels, restaurants and clubs throughout Canada continue to present guests and members with menus which give no suggestion of war conditions. There is need for national organization to prevent waste. The time for three and four courses of soups, fish, meats and desserts has passed. War menus should be the rule and every care should be taken to provide against table extravaganzas. Simple living is required throughout the dominion. It would result in tremendous saving to the country. And Canada needs every cent it can secure for the prosecution of the war. There is a direct form of national service open to all by investment in the War Savings Certificates. Utilize your financial resources to help the men at the front. Every dollar counts. Your money is needed for victory to be secured. If you lend it to the country it can be used for national ends. Lend it, and serve by giving your money for war work. A-4.

HOW THEY WIN THE V.C.

A newspaper correspondent writes: "I once asked an officer in charge of all these matters of reward for a definition of the kind of bravery that it took to win the V.C., the highest and most coveted of all honors for gallantry, infinitely more precious and rare, for instance, than the Iron Cross or the French Legion of Honor. 'Deliberate,' he said, 'if I should have to define "V.C. bravery" I should call it that. Men do not receive the V.C. for spontaneous acts of gallantry that last for a second or two, incidents that crop up in the course of a day's work. The V.C. standard requires much more than that—the kind of bravery where the deed shows deliberation, where the man is fully aware of his peril, yet goes on with whatever he is doing, although it be beyond his duty."

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulled coconut oil (which is pure and grassless) and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dust, sand and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulled coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.
