The judge secured a piece of land at Hubbards secured a piece of land at Hubbards and erected thereon a small summer cottage. He was immediately presented with a notice that the property had been assessed and that he would be required to pay taxes thereon. He explains that he has no objection whatever to paying a proper proportion of plains that he has no objection whatever to paying a proper proportion of the tax attributable to that piece of land, but he does object to being fined for having given employment to millimen, carpenters, bricklayers, sash makers, boat builders and others, and for having improved a little section of the wilderness on the shores of a lake in the woods. "What," he says, "have I done that harms any man, woman or child in the county of Halifax, or that done that harms any man, woman or child in the county of Halifax, or that puts any burden or responsibility pecuniary or other, upon the municipality?"

He points out that if a thousand or they could adorn the office.

The Halifax Chronicle and the Halifax Echo feature a letter written by one F. W. Bissett, who asserts that, "in view of the foregoing undeniable facts it seems nothing short of criminal folly to compel companies to send their large passenger ships past Halifax in the winter season; and it is certainly a crime against innocent humanity to carry men, women and children up through this Bay of Fundy in the winter season."

Mrs. Ida M. Walker, wife of William Walker, of 124 Mecklenburg street, passed away at an early hour this morning after a short illness. She was in her usual good health until Sunday, when she was taken suddenly ill. News of her death this morning came as a great shock to many friends. Mrs. Walker was forty-one years of age, and was an active member of Calvin Presbyterian church. She leaves her husband and one son, John, at home, her father, Fred Dorman, of this city, two sisters, Miss Maud and Mrs. J. W. Barnes, of St. John, and four brothers, William, of this city; George, of Moncton, and Harry and Charles, of Missoula, Montana. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon.
