The Canadian bank statement for the month of July came out today, and shows another big increase in public deposits.

THOUGHT DIVIDED A JOKE.

Wall Street Broker Cops Up a Notice Worth a Fortune.

Robert Wrenn, an extens champion of the United States, and one of the best known members of the New York Stock Exchange, has been asked to discover the announcement of Union Pacific 10 per cent. dividend placed on the Union Pacific stock at the opening of the market on Friday.

Drawing the attention of a friend to the typewritten announcement of a 5 per cent. dividend for Southern Pacific and a 10 per cent. rate for Union Pacific, he said that he had planned that joke, and to emphasize his belief that the announcement was a bogus one, he drew from the bulletin and threw it on the floor.

Neither he nor any of the other brokers in the Union Pacific stock exchange realized that Union Pacific common had actually been placed on a 10 per cent. dividend basis.

It was really not until the news agencies sent out the information that the Union Pacific stock had been placed on a 10 per cent. dividend basis.

WHY BUTTER-NUT BREAD?

Is a boon to the Baker? Because Butter-nut Bread is intended to convert bakers to bread buyers.

The experience of large cities shows that not many such cities go back to home baking. The public requires variety however, and consequently, sooner or later try whatever good bread there is on the market, so every good baker benefits.

AN EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT.

The performance of "Under Southern Skies" at the Opera House last night was one which was a genuine treat to the audience.

The story is that of a young Southern girl, Lella Crofton, whose mother acted somewhat foolishly in her youth. This girl has two suitors but favors one of them, Burleigh Mavor. The other, Steve Daubeny, learns of the girl's disfigurement and using this as a threat secures her promise to marry him. During the progress of the wedding service she discovers the treachery that has been employed and renounces Daubeny. During the action of the play there are a great many interesting and homely scenes, one of the most enjoyable being the scenes of the young guests at the birthday party.

A number of selections by a quartet were also greatly enjoyed. Miss Mabel Trummell who played the leading part of Lella Crofton, is deserving of the highest praise and particularly for her work in the third act. All the other members of the cast offered excellent support, and the play was one of the best that has been seen here for a very long time. It will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night and a matinee on Saturday.

NEW U. S. CONSUL.

MONTEAL, AUG. 24.—The new American Consul Major Charles Howe arrived today and will be the senior U. S. Consul in Canada. He was a manufacturer 10 years ago when he entered the consular service. He has served at Palermo, Italy, Sheffield, England, and Antwerp.

MONCTON, N. B., Aug. 24.—A man who in every way answers the description of the man Collins, the alleged murderer of Miss McAulay, was employed for three weeks with Joseph B. Steeves of Coverdale, Albert county. He left Steeves' employ on the sixteenth of July. Steeves describes the man as being one of the most vicious and most ill-tempered persons he had ever met, and on one occasion in a fit of rage he had threatened to burn down Steeves' house. On numerous occasions he had threatened Steeves with bodily injury and was finally discharged for refusing to work. While in Steeves' employ the man said that he, with one or two others, had left the schooner Edna M. Smith at Albert, and had carried with him a bag of old rags, which he had intended to use as a means of transport for the schooner. He had heard Steeves' story, there exists but little doubt that the man he employed was the murderer of Miss McAulay. The man who worked for him gave his name as Williams Whitley, and on his arm were tattooed in Indian ink the initials "W. W. W." While the man did not have an impediment in his speech he talked with a broad old country accent that was unaccustomed to his pronunciation. He would decide that there was a defect in his vocal organs. During his stay at Steeves, Whitley requested one of the family to write for him a letter to relatives in Scotland. While the man was well versed in nautical knowledge and a good reader, he appeared to be a poor writer, which knowledge had fallen to disuse with him during his seafaring career. After being discharged by Joseph Steeves the man worked for a week in the employ of Squire Full, more, Coverdale, and later with Judson Steeves, Upper Coverdale. Three weeks ago Sunday he was still employed there, but as the place is beyond telephone communication it cannot be ascertained if he is still working there. It is said that Collins was a runaway from the Edna M. Smith, and Whitley said he had left this vessel mutinous. In his movements shed. Here is where the murder was committed. Besides the door leading from the house, the wood house has two doors on each side. Near one of these doors the unsuspecting victim had been ruthlessly killed. The blood stains on the floor of the shed showing where the murdered woman first fell. From there to the stairs leading to a lower portion of the room, the body had been dragged as a trail of blood stains showed, and thrown down at the foot of the steps, which were only three or four in number.

The body was lying on the right side, the head resting on a meal sack, which was saturated with blood from a horrible gash in the throat, which had severed the jugular and cut into the windpipe. The blood stains on the upper floor, when found, were covered with some cloths and a rug, with a garden spade on top of the pile.

A pair of overalls being found covered with dotted blood, having the appearance as if the murderer had wiped the axe which had done the terrible deed on the garments. The man who worked for him has not yet been discovered, nor any instrument with which the murderous act could have been committed.

The funeral of Miss McAulay, the murdered woman, took place today at the funeral home, where the body was lying in state. The funeral was attended by many from the whole country side around. ## POLICE HAVE LOST TRACK OF COLLINS, BUT WILL LIKELY CAPTURE HIM TODAY have become aware of the nearness of the pursuer and have given them the slip. He had not been seen at all till noon today. It was understood at one o'clock at St. George that Detective Killen would return to that place at three o'clock, after having posted a man along the shore, and that he would this afternoon, if his morning search was unsuccessful, strike out in another direction.

ALBERT, N. B., Aug. 23.—The terrible tragedy at New Ireland continues to excite the deepest interest, and furnishes the leading topic of conversation throughout all the surrounding country. The people of the quiet settlement where the crime took place, have been shocked beyond measure by the terrible event, and coupled with their sorrow and sympathy, is the overwhelming wish that the perpetrator of the awful deed be brought to justice.

Last evening, when the Sun representative visited the home of Father McAulay, where the tragedy took place, the grief-stricken priest, worn out by loss of sleep and well nigh prostrated by the terrible blow that had befallen his parish, was in the seclusion of his room and unable to see anyone.

The clergyman's residence, located near St. Agatha's Church, is about nine or ten miles from Albert, and is a large low house with two steep gables, the front and back of which are running all across the front of the building. At the rear of the house, which was in the building, forming an outside kitchen and wood-
