THE SONG OF THE CAMP.

"Give us a song!" the soldiers cried, The outer trenches guarding,
When the heated guns of the camps allied
Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Redan, in silent scoff, Lay grim and threatening under; And the tawny mound of the Malakoff No longer belched its thunder.

"We storm the for s tomorrow; Sing while we may, another day

Will bring enough of sorrow." Below the smoking cannon, Brave hearts, from Severn and from Clyd And from the banks of Shannon.

Forgot was Britain's glory; Each heart recalled a different name; But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song, Until its tender passion Rose like an anthem, rich and strong— Their battle eve contession.

Dear girl, her name he dared not speak, Yet as the song grew louder, Something upon the soldier's cheek Washed off the stains of powder. Beyond the darkening ocean burned

The bloody sunset's embers, While the Cr mean vallers learned How English love remembers.

Rained on the Russian quarters, With scream of shot and burst of shell, And bellowing of the mortars.

For a singer dumb and gory, And English Mary mourns for him Who sang of "Annie Laurie."

Your truth and valour bearing; The bravest are the tenderest-

The loving are the daring.

was not sufficient in most caser. The daily less of fresh water on such blockade dut was far greater than the supply. Off Santiago no encharge was possift, the ships being more or less under steam all of the time, and such arrangements outlined above proved in the bollers of several of the vessels to make up this loss to a great extent. In time this resulted in over heating and bagging the furnace crowns.

To jack the furnace crowns back into their origins I positions, east-iron formers were molded and furshed on the Victors and the death of the victors of stomach.

That portion of the furnace crown requiring to be jacked up was then heated to a cherry red by an improvised charcoal furnace placed underneath and supplied by hand or electric blower air blast. While at this heat it was readily jacked up into the former natural shape and allowed slowly to cool.
