The Gateway

1987-88 hockey season

The University of Alberta Golden Bears hockey club will have a difficult task if they are to become CIAU champions this year, or Canada West champs for that matter.

But taking the long road to become a championship hockey club in any league is a difficult one.

For the past two years however, the Bears have been able to take a short cut into the nationals by being the host. Two years ago, they won the nationals as a wild card club, when they lost in the first round of the Canada West playoffs.

Last year, because they were the CIAU champions, they had the honor of representing our country at the Student Winter Games in Czechoslovakia, winning a bronze medal in the process. Because the Golden Bears chose to do this, they had to pass on the Canada West playoffs and use their free pass into the nationals for a second year.

They then lost to the eventual champs, Trois-Rivieres and ended up third in the country, a disappointment for the then defending Canadian university hockey champs.

This year, the back door is locked. They will have to get to the university hockey championship the hard way. They'll have to earn it.

Last year, the Bears had a club that could beat any varsity team in the country. When you look over their roster this year, a lot of familiar names remain.

The forward lines have the most players returning from last year's roster, and predictably, are the most solid part of the club. At center, they are the deepest, as Dennis Cranston,

Dave Otto, Sid Cranston, and Bret Walter return.

Dennis Cranston notched 38 points in Canada West play last year, and garnered Canada West First All-Star honors in the process. Otto was ninth in the west in scoring with 44 points.

Sid Cranston, Dennis's brother, is expected to be the offensive spark plug for the Bears this year, if he remains healthy. Niggling injuries have kept him out of the lineup for parts of his first two seasons in a Bear uniform.
