The reproducing point of the new Edison Cylinder Phonograph is a diamond

It was appropriate that when Mr. Edison was seeking the utmost perfection in sound reproduction he should find that this power lay in the diamond. He discovered it in the course of more than 2,500 experiments, always looking toward rarer sweetness, mellower, stronger tone.

He has equipped every new Edison Phonograph with a diamond-point reproducer.

When this marvelously impervious tip rests upon the surface of the unbreakable Blue Amberol Record, the heavier pressure can produce but one result—wonderfully increased volume combined with rarer sweetness. Hear a Blue Amberol at your Edison dealer's today.

Our Negelected Boys

In a great many homes we find that the boys of the family have no par-ticular room in the house that they can call their own, at least not one in which they care to spend any time except when sleeping. Somehow we seem to get the idea into our heads seem to get the idea into our heads that anything is good enough for the boys' room, and usually they have the smallest room in the house, and the furniture consists of an old bedstead, a chair or two and perhaps a cracked leading afters. looking glass.

A writer in Farm and Home recently related an impressive incident that tends to show that boys in general appreciate a place of their own quite as much as girls. He said in part:

as much as giris. He said in part:
"I have a friend who has four children—two boys and two girls. The girls were given rooms of their own as soon as they were large enough to take care of them. The boys had a small bedroom only.

"One evening the boys had some visitors and they had to entertain them in the kitchen. The next morning fault was found with the disorder ed appearance of the room

"If we had a room of our own, such as the girls have, to take our visitors to, we wouldn't litter up the rest of the home, one of the boys said. We like visitors just as well as the girls do, but we haven't any place to take them to, except the barn.'

"The mother to whom this remark was made told me that it set her thinking. She had not thought before, that her boys cared for a room fore, that he of their own.

"'If you had a room to entertain your visitors in, it would make us no end of work, 'she told them. 'Girls take care of their own rooms. Boys don't know how to.'

"There's a good reason why they don't," was the response. "They never have a chance.

"'Do you think you'd learn to if you had a room of your own?' she ask-

"Try us and see,' was the answer. There was a small building near the dwelling in the lower part of which was stored the carriage and some of the smaller farming implements. Overhead was a room in which the boys had as room in which the boys had so room time boys had so room to work shop. Their father had planned to be some time back, to enlarge the storeroom by adding a lean-to to it. But the suggestion of the mother boys came up for considerated to the subject of making a room for the other boys came up for considerating to the " 'Try us and see,' was the answer. came up for consideration. The father consulted them in regard to the matter. Would they like a room over matter. Would they like a room over the addition to the carriage house? "Like it? Why, nothing would please them more, they declared. The addition was built and the boys be came owners of a room large enough to entertain half the boys of the neighborhood in it at one time.

or entertain mait the coys of the neighborhood in it at one time.

"The boys take entire care of their room," the mother told me, 'and it's kept as neat and tidy as the girls' rooms are. When I see how much they enjoy it, I can't help having a guilty feeling, because I was so thoughtless about their comfort. I did not understand boys, but took it for granted that they do not care for the things that interest girls, and so long as they had a place to sleep in and plenty to eat they were perfectly satisfied. Now I know boys better, and I see where so many mothers make a sad mistake."
