CURRENT . TOPICS THE NORTH-WEST.

The climatic and other features have been very favorable to the immense wheat fields of the North-West and just now thousands of acres are assum ing the golden tinge that betokens full maturity. This season's crop is a record breaker, and should no hitch occur the returns will gladden the hearts and enrich the coffers of our western brothers. The weather continues favorable and there is just one fear that really worries the farmers of the west and that is that they may be short of assistance in harvesting the immense vield. Every fall the population of the North west is increased by about 20,600 easterners who take ad vantage of the western demand for labor to line their pockets and individ ually assist their fellow subjects. The number may fall very short this year. Never was work more plentiful in east ern Canada and farmers in Ontario are today in some places offering an equivalent to the Manitoba wage In dustrial affairs are booming in almost every branch and the towns and cities are without this usual surplus of population, so that the unemployed are scarce. This will certainly effect the annual migration to the west and the demand may greatly exceed the supply. The market for wheat promises to be brisk and we hope that nothing will occur to hinder this being the most profitable of all years for the North-

THE WAR.

Lord Robert's pay day came a few days ago when the house of Commons voted him £100,000 sterling for services in South Africa. The wage is a handsome one but there is no doubt that the gallant "Bobs" was worth it. It is only a short time since the dark days of Magersfontein and Colenso when the Boer confidence seemed to have something to back it up. Everyone will remember how Lord Roberts took command and as if by magic defeats were turned into victories. Had his strategy not been brought to bear at the precise moment it was the Brit ish would have been practically shut

AN ARTISTIC HOUSE. Fine San Francisco Home of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson.

Robert Louis Stevenson. Looking out toward the beautiful bay of San Francisco, the city that he loved next to the ancient town that gave him birth, stands the new home of the widow of that gentlest of romancers, Robert Louis Stevenson. Stevenson loved San Francisco, although his sojourn there was filled with sickness and suffering, and, looking out toward the same ocean that is overlooked by his last resting place in Samoa, his widow has built a house that will be both a home for her-self in her declining days and a shrine to the loved memory of the dead author. Tamaqua's mine fire, which for the amount of valuable coal consum vals the celebrated "burning mine" of Summit hill, unless all signs fail, will soon be a thing of the past. Hemmed n on the one side by a wall of clay and burning down on the other to water level, it is thought the fuel is about exhausted and that the next year will see its extinguishment. According to the information of a reliable authority the fire owes its start the loved memory of the dead author. to a unique cause. Forty years ago the In the Stevenson house that has jus been completed are the books of the deal late John Richard Carter operated a which he loved so well and other colliery at the northern boundary of relics. The house is a low, curious look-ing structure, built on a slope of what is known locally as Russian hill. It is one the town. He was bothered conside bly by coal thieves, and in making an investigation one cold winter's day he of the most artistic residences in San came upon a party of men taking coal Francisco, although only two stories in height. It is a double house, made in a mixed style in which French renais from a mine opening. The culprits de-camped, but left behind them a fire which they had built to keep themselves warm while at work. Carter was much incensed, and, with a kick, it is alleged, he sent the burning embers of the fire flying down the airway. This burning wood ignited the The first intimation of the disasvein. trous effect of the kick was evidenced several months later, when a score of niners narrowly escaped death from the effects of the sulphurous flames. Efforts were at once put forth to sub due the fire, but much headway had Several years later the fire began coming closer to the Greenwood workings, and it was decided that heroic methods must be adopted to save this valuable operation from damage. How Piccadilly Was Named. It's curious how the names of town and streets come from something that has been the fashion of the day. Whe knows where the word "Piccadilly" originated from, the name of that won derful street of which it is written that "some make love and some make poetry in Piccadill?" The street was built by a tailor named Higgins, whose 31tf. fortune was made in a kind of collar called Piccadel or Pickadill or Picca dilley, which was worn by all the beaus of the day. Of course it is not meant that the street as it stands today was built by him, but he erected a few houses to which he gave the name the street now bears.
