RAIN BROKE UP SOCIAL

LARGE NUMBER DISAPPOINTED LAST NIGHT

Many Interesting Incidents - It Was Very Dark - Travelling Rather Dangerous

The annual harvest social at Mr. E. Duffield's lawn, Maple Grove, under the auspices of the Church of England, Addison, was held last night. During the early part of the evening it gave promise of being a great success, but later rain marred the whole affair, resulting in several hundred being sent home badly disappointed.

Much time and pains had been taken by the committee of management to make the event a success. The large attractive lawns were nicely illuminated with numerous Chinese lanterns and huge torches. Many tables, neatly arranged, were well laden with good things for the guests. Cakes, sandwiches, pies, etc., such as only the Addison ladies can make, were there in abundance. Shortly after 7 o'clock the people began to arrive, and by 8.30 about five hundred were on the grounds. Everything was lovely for a while. The waiters were kept busy at the different tables, happy groups were enjoying a social chat, the everpopular promenades had begun, and everybody all smiles, when the scene suddenly changed. It began to rain. So gently did the drops fall at first that few thought it necessary to seek shelter, thinking that it would not amount to much. It was not long, however, until it began to rain good and hard. Then there was a scramble. Parties sought shelter wherever it could be found. Spreading branches of large trees furnished protection for a few minutes, but soon the trees began to leak. Then there was a general rush for the house, drying shed, top buggies near by, while many had to content themselves huddled together four or five under an umbrella, or any old thing which would protect them from the rain. The tables were left to their fate in the hurried flight. Dressing scenes were witnessed. Young people who had driven many miles and were longing for a good supper, sighed pitifully while witnessing the destruction of artistically iced cakes and other nice things. The sponge cakes alone seemed to stand the test. Many handsome ladies' beautifully costumed were unprepared for rain. Escorts protected them as well as they could, but sad countenances told their own story of a pretty dress probably ruined and nice patent leathers drenched. Apparently the only happy party in the crowd was a quartette out of sight seated on a pile of wood in a dark corner of the wood, who sang "Wait till the clouds roll by." "We won't go home till morning," and other appropriate songs. The program prepared was not rendered. As the Chinese lanterns went out one by one, making the scene more and more dreary, and it became evident that was all up with the social hurried preparations were made for the journey home. The leave taking was certainly very unceremonious, and in the rush to get the vehicles from the various dark corners there was not a little confusion, owing to the prevailing lantern famine. The people were constantly running into each other, nervous young men from town had difficulty in finding their vehicles, umbrella wrecks were numerous, a few excited gents occasionally saw stars by running against the trees, but the saddest incident of all, so it is whispered, in the rush a country dude made a bad mistake and took away the wrong girl. It is said he found out his mistake when on the way home. And still it rained.

But one of those what might-have-been serious accidents did occur. Strange to say one of Brockville's pretty girls was in it, in company with a charming Athens lady and a popular young man from Smith's Falls. They had only gone a short distance on their way home when the horse landed them in the ditch. The horse was quiet, the driver cool and the ladies did not scream—very much, consequently it was not at all serious. A representative of this great family journal was on his way home in deep thought when suddenly aroused by a voice from the dark, exclaiming:

"Holloa! say, stranger, we're in the ditch; can't you help us to get out."

Although only about four yards away it was impossible to see any one. By the aid of lighted matches, however, all was soon made clear. There in the ditch was the buggy, one side about two feet lower than the other but still right side up; kneeling in front of the horse, which was partly down quit as a lamb, was the young man gently stroking the nervous animal's head with one hand while with the other he firmly held the reins. The ladies had jumped out. One stood nearby calmly taking in the situation; the other, a brave girl, had gone to a farm house not far away in search of a lantern. She returned in a few minutes with a gentleman and a light. One or two others having by this time arrived, the rescue work commenced. The horse was unhitched and then the buggy was drawn out without much trouble. Here is the young man's story as told the Reporter.

"We had just left the grounds and turned on the road home. It was so dark we could not even see the road. The horse kept the road nicely for two or three hundred yards, when all at once it took a sudden turn which landed us in the ditch. As soon as I felt the one side going down I instantly yelled whoa, told the lanes not to get excited and whatever they did not to scream. As quickly as possible I jumped out, caught hold of the horse's head. Fortunately it remained uncontrollable. The ladies naturally got quite nervous, but through it all I was proud of the cool way in which they acted. Just as I was jumping one exclaimed, 'oh, dear we're going over, for goodness sake jump quick.' The other quickly responded, saying hurriedly, 'oh, say don't jump and leave me here alone; let me get out first, and she did. That is about all that was said until both were out. They are bricks. A minute or two later you arrived on the scene and so know the rest. You bet we felt pretty nervous for a minute or two. We had no other mishaps."

KINDNESS APPRECIATED.

Editor Athens Reporter:
DEAR SIR,—Permit me, through the columns of your esteemed paper, to thank the people of Athens who, by their kindness and thoughtfulness did much to relieve my suffering resulting from the severe accident of Aug. 2nd. Though a comparative stranger to most of them their unfeeling kindness will always live as a bright spot in my memory.

Hoping to regain my strength sufficiently to resume my work on the church before its completion, I am,
Yours very truly,
