

THE TREATMENT THAT CURES

THE TREATMENT

Drs. Shultz and Camelon's New Treatment, that has lifted the darkness and blight of the word "incurable" from hundreds of these cases of disease in the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, works its curative action for two reasons:

- (1) It reaches every sore spot, from the office of the nose, the deepest part of the lungs, the innermost recesses of the middle ear.
- (2) Instead of irritating, inflaming and feeding the fires of the disease, it soothes, quiets, heals and cures.

What is the treatment that cures these conditions, once regarded incurable? By what process does it restore diseased membranes, remove the poison and relieve the soreness of disease? Let the experience of persons cured and being cured, tell.

BLOOD BELCHED

From the Lungs of John C. Loss, of Vassar, Mich.

"I became so weak," says Mr. Loss, "that the least excitement would throw me into a cold perspiration, and I would take additional cold. While sitting at my desk one afternoon something seemed to give way, and I felt my lungs fill up. I gave a little cough, and threw out GREAT MOUNTAINS OF BLOOD." Mr. Loss will tell enquirers that after he had been reduced to what he believed a hopeless condition, through frequent hemorrhages, he submitted his case to Doctors Shultz and Camelon, who soon restored him to perfect health.

REV. MOSES C. STANLEY

Aged 71 years, of 31 Milwaukee avenue, was cured of severe deafness by Doctors Shultz and Camelon.

MRS. M. BRAUER

of 85 Second street, had a hairbreadth escape from being killed by a street car, because she was so deaf she didn't hear it coming. She has been entirely cured of deafness and chronic catarrh.

J. WELSH, Clerk.

Instead of the bicycle driving the horse out of business the two have come to an understanding and do well together. It is curious how these things do clash for a time and settle down to both work out the inevitable destiny of man.

Distance doesn't lend enchantment to one's view of an expected inheritance.

HOW TO RUN CORRECTLY.

Some Serviceable Advice by a Former Champion and Physical Director.—A Couple of Hours.

Anything faster than a walk in stiff, measured steps is considered by most people undignified, probably because a faster gait than a walk—a good, easy, graceful stride for running—is a thing almost impossible to them. To see many, even of our young men, speeding after a car or attempting to catch the last boat is a sight to make Mercury, the swift messenger of the gods, weep for very shame and to make an old trainer curl his lip with honest contempt.

A speedy and graceful gait, physical instructors say, is easily acquired. But attention must be paid to the proper position one should assume in order to obtain the greatest amount of progression with a maximum velocity and a minimum expenditure of bodily energy.

The correct position to be assumed when running is set forth clearly by Randolph Furber, the internationally famous and half mile champion runner, former president of the I.A.A.U. and Amateur Athletic Association of America, and now the director of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania.

"When running," declared this authority, "no matter what the distance, the arms, or, more properly speaking, the upper extremities, should be used chiefly from the shoulder with precision, and should swing in harmony with the legs or lower extremities. The right arm should move with the left leg, and the left arm with the right leg, in order to maintain perfect balance and to gain greater speed. The trunk and head should be allowed to assume their natural position, which, if a person carries himself properly, will be in the erect posture or nearly so. The runner ought never to lean forward.

All distances used and including one mile should be run upon the toes, while distances over one mile should be run upon the ball of the foot, or the part just back of the ball. Runners should put their feet out in front of them in a perfectly straight line, making the advanced step with one foot when the other is directly beneath the body, keeping each arm in its relative position and the legs close together, in order to concentrate energy. A good stride will cover about seven feet, seven feet two inches, seven feet four inches, or seven feet six inches. It is a great mistake to overstride, because in so doing, an unnecessary amount of energy is wasted, and fatigue comes on more quickly. If one is able to stride seven feet at first he is doing well. It is best to increase the stride by inches. In this way a good stride may be obtained without unduly taxing the muscles.

"Never kick your heels up behind you—that is, behind the axis of the body—because it will cause a loss of momentum and also of time by making the legs trail through a greater space, unnecessarily. As one progresses, alighting first upon one set of toes and then upon the other, or ball of the foot, as the case may be, great care should be exercised in coming down upon the ground lightly. If attention be paid to this the body will escape much jarring, which is important to the muscles and nerves."

ONE WAY TO MAKE A WILL.

An Odd Case That Came Up in an English Court.

A most ingenious, and, to use Sir Francis Jeune's words, "the whole satisfactory," method of making a will was disclosed in the case of Moore vs. Moore, heard before the President yesterday, says The London Daily Mail.

The plaintiff, "Count" A. J. Moore, M.P. for Londonderry, as executor, propounded the will of his sister, Miss Edith Marion Moore, who died last August. The defendants were two near relatives.

A month prior to her death the deceased lady had a stroke of paralysis, which resulted in her being unable to express herself by words. In order to obtain her wishes with respect to her will, two sets of cards were printed, one setting out her various property, and the second the names of her relations.

Her solicitor dealt out the cards, when the name of Arthur John Moore was turned up she indicated by signs that she wished him to have her Ballyconny estate in Ireland. The shuffling of the cards continued in the same way, until she had disposed of all her possessions.

Then came the choice of executor. The cards were again shuffled, and as soon as her brother's name was turned up she indicated by signs that he was her selection. She wanted a second executor to be appointed, and the names of her other relatives were shown her on the cards, but she did not come across the name she desired. She attempted to write it, but she could not do so. She then agreed that her brother was to be her sole executor.

Sir Francis Jeune pronounced for the will, the costs to come out of the estate. His lordship remarked that, as the lady, as he knew, it represented a novel mode of arriving at the wishes of the testatrix.

In Grandma's Day.

Women were straight and strong. They could walk or work side by side with the men of the family. They lived under healthier conditions; there was more simplicity and less strain. To-day it's different.

The woman has all the care of the house and the wear of motherhood with duties superadded which were never dreamed of in Grandma's day. As a natural result she's worn out when she ought to be in the full beauty of mature womanhood.

Women who would preserve their health and strength should guard the delicate womanly organs. When these are diseased the whole body suffers loss of strength and beauty. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases that weaken women. Inflammation, ulceration and female weakness promptly yield to the power of this great remedy.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness for about two years," writes Mrs. Emma Richardson, of Gosa, Wayne Co., Ky. "I could not do my work part of the time. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did."

Dr. J. C. Wells, of Gosa, Wayne Co., Ky., writes: "I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for many years, and it has cured many cases of female weakness, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness promptly yield to the power of this great remedy."
