February 1, 1858.

The Peninsular and Oriental company's screw steamer Himalaya arrived at South ampton yesterday week. She left London on Thursday morning, and averaged during her voyage 14 miles an hour. The Himalaya is the largest ship in the world, and is intended for the conveyance of the mails between Southampton and Alexandria. She is ship rigged, not heavily so, and she drew 15 feet of water forward, and 18 feet aft. Of course she is light now, but when she is heavily laden and deeper in the water, the fineness of her lines will be more conspicuous than at present. She has a flush deck, and if a person walking up one side of it and down the other. travels over her lengeth seven times, he walks a mile. She is nearly as long as Bernard-street, a well-known street in Southamptom, which has on one side of it 22 thr.je-storied houses with spacious shops. Her width is as great as many a large metropolitan street. Her depth is enormus. The funnel is 24 feet in circumference, and is scarcely noticed on the deck. A person at one end of the deck hallooing ever so loud could not be heard distinctly at the other end. Relays of officers will communicate the orders of the commander to either end of the ship. On the platform where the commander is stationed there are a series of bells to stationed there are a ser distinctly at the orders of the officers will communicate the orders of the commander to either end of the ship.
