Fun and Fancy.

The blonde is not in fashion, and the brunette has come again. Blondes must dye.

There are poems unwritten and songs unsung. It is this that reconciles us to life.

What is the stuff that dreams are made of? Passionately inquires a poet. In one brief word, sir—piss.

Stage struck—knocked down by an omnibus. The miss take of a lifetime—making a bad choice of a wife.

Doan! think that because a woman likes gay colors she's weak. Nature puts de brightest tints on de finest flowers.

What is the difference between a timid child and a shipwrecked sailor? One clings to his mat, and the other to his spar.

When you see 'road birds' on the bill of fare at some restaurant read 'sparrows' and you will see the truth.

Young lady (at the postoffice)—If I don't get a letter by this mail, I want to know what he was doing Sunday, that's all.

When Bass was censured for leaving one girl for another, he said people usually congratulated a person upon a 'change of heart.'

No waste of shot: 'What did you kill?' inquired a pedestrian of a sportsman on horseback. 'Time,' was the sententious response.

A Western man seeks a divorce because his wife makes bad coffee. Though he has 'ground' for his action, an egg-shell ought to 'settle it.'

'How does the milk get into the coconut?' asks a subscriber. It does not get into it at all. The coconut grows around the milk. Ask us a harder one.

An Englishman claims to have discovered an animal with 11,000 eyes. He intends to keep it chained up where it can watch his daughter and the coachman.

'The greatest folly,' said Sancho 'that a man can commit in this world, is to give himself up to death without any good cause for it, but only from melancholy.'

'What do you think of Fielding?' asked a Boston girl of a Harvard graduate. 'Oh, it's important of course, but it don't amount to anything without good hat-tings.'

A speculator having married a very homely girl, the possessor of a very large fortune, declared that it wasn't the face of his wife that struck him so much as her figure.

In the financial line: 'How did you like that hymn?' 'Which one?' 'Why, the last one that was sung, "Ninety and Nine." 'I think as its name indicates, that it is below par.'

'Yes,' said Mrs. Firelight, 'everybody thinks my new furniture is splendid. It is of the Louis Carthorse pattern, you know. Funny name, Mr. F. says, but I think it's vulgar.'

The following practical advertisement appears in the Aylmer Times, dated Nov. 18th, and signed David Everette:

Eliza, my wife, has grown out of date. She has left her board, she has left my bed, she has given away my best and bread. She has left me in spite of friends and church. She has carried with her all my fruit. Know you who read this paper. Since she has cut the lockless door, I will not pay one single fraction. For any debt of her contraction.

Words of Wisdom.

The noble souls of yesterday are gates of glory through which our children pour along into the fields of our daily bread.

'Give us this day our daily bread,' is no vain, fruitless prayer. And, if we trust, we shall be fed, however poor we are.

All good work, be it amid material things, or intellectual things, or religious things, is done for all.

The saints die as to their labor and weariness, but not as to their usefulness. It is not a bit easier to bring a right result out of a wrong beginning than it is to raise canary birds from canary seed.

I give my store of gold. It is but earthly dross; But thou shalt make me rich, beyond all fears of loss.

He who spends all his life in sport is like one who wears nothing but fringes and adds nothing but sauces.

If a man is honest he does not need to tell it. Staring virtue can afford to keep still, but alid dishonesty has a very busy tongue.

Household Hints.

The hair is now arranged high on the head. Don't crowd your rooms with cheap bric-a-brac.

Hang a thermometer in your living-room, and see to it that the temperature does not go above 72 degrees.

Never be guilty of giving a child paregoric or soothing syrup for the purpose of putting it to sleep.

An excellent practice in cold weather is to rub yourself all over with a crash towel before dressing.

There is nothing more disagreeable for a wife than to hear from her husband how his mother cooked so and so.

It is not economy to go without financial and thick clothing in winter.

Never scold or punish a child if, upon questioning, he tells the truth.

Young ladies, give your gentlemen friends an undertaking that you do not appear as classed at half-past ten or eleven o'clock. If that offends them, it will show that you are rid of their company—gentlemen will think the more of you for it.

Don't compel a child to wear an article of clothing for which he has an especial dislike.

Young married people will find that there will be more happiness for them if they go to housekeeping independent of relatives on both sides.

Label every bottle of medicine that comes into your house, and put poisonous drugs, like paregoric, laudanum, carbolic acid, etc., out of the reach of children—and be sure that they are out of their reach.

It is not 'airs' that make one object to a person putting his knife into the butter or serving himself and others with food from his own knife and fork. Such disregard of other people's feelings is mean and selfish.

A nice way to prepare a very light lunch for an invalid (and to be taken with a cup of weak tea) is to toast three milk crackers, then pour boiling water over them, draining it off immediately, spread jam or marmalade over them, and pile them up, set them into the oven while you make the tea, and take both to the sick one, and it will prove appetizing and refreshing, if unexpected.

A famous caterer gives the following recipe for almond cake: blanch and pound in a mortar thoroughly eight ounces of sweet and one of bitter almonds; add a few drops of rose water, or white of egg every few minutes to prevent oiling; add six tablespoonfuls of sifted sugar and eight beaten eggs, sift in six tablespoonfuls of flour, and work it thoroughly with the mixture, adding gradually a quarter of a pound of creamed butter.

Beat constantly or it will be heavy. Put a buttered paper into a cake tin, then pour the mixture into tin, allowing room for it to rise. The oven should be a quick oven.

FIRE SCREENS.—A very handsome fire screen can be made of peacock's feathers by the following process: Have a frame of wire bent into a half circular or fan shape, and covered with coarse muslin. The wire should be twisted into a handle and made to fit tightly into a small wooden stand weighted with lead. The eye feathers are first glued on around the edge, standing out a good deal beyond it; then a second and third row, and so on, afterward filling up as the centre is approached with the smaller feathers.

Remember, if possible, to use a coarse needle and thread to center with. If you can not get the head, fill up with tiny feathers. Cover the back with paper, red or gold.—Boston Herald.

'Yes,' he remarked to his friend, 'Telegram, sir,' interrupted his clerk, 'Wash up your point, sir.'

'Wire Smith to sell ten thousand.' As I was about to remark, sir, again interrupted the clerk. 'Union Pacific is down three points.'

'Order Smith to buy five thousand.' 'Yes, since I—'

Mr. Wilson wants to know whether you will be at the bank seeing this afternoon,' interrupted the clerk for the third time.

'I'm going down at once, tell him. As I was about to say,' he continued, 'since I retired from active business I have never felt better in all my life.'—New York Times.

Temptation.
Never count a temptation so triumphant over, so bastion of that it will never assault you any more. Satan has been called Beelzebub, or the god of lies, so tell us, because he will not take a repulse; because he comes back again and again; because it is impossible to drive him away that he will not return. Consider the Lord of glory himself. When the tempter, thrice encountered and thrice defeated in the wilderness, led him, it was only as we expressly told, "for a season." There were other hours and powers of darkness still to come, when the prince of this world should make farther proof in the garden whether there was not something which he could claim for his own, even in that Lord who had so foiled and baffled him when he departs from us it is more than for a season? Never so long as you bear about those sinful bodies, count any corruption to be so dead in you that you are perfectly safe from it henceforth, that it can never sin or trouble you again. How much that seems dead by a sad experience, will be shown to have been only sleeping; like snakes, which, frozen in winter, lose for a while their power to harm, appear as though there were no life in them, but brought to the warmth of his and sting again. How many an old corruption is, perhaps, at this moment yet so torpid and inactive in us, which yet only awaits the returning warmth of a suitable temptation to revive in all its malignant strength anew.—Trench.

A Double Purpose.
The popular remedy, Hagyard's Yellow Oil, is used both internally and externally, for aches, pains, colds, croup, rheumatism, deafness, and diseases of an inflammatory nature.

John Morrison, of St. Ann's, N.S. was so seriously afflicted with a disease of the kidneys that dropsy was developing and his life was despaired of. Two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after physicians had failed.

The Best Combination.

The best combination of blood cleansing, regulating, health giving herbs, roots and barks enter into Burdock Blood Bitters—a purely vegetable remedy that cures diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys.

Not an Inducement.
When advertising a piece of property for sale a shrewd real estate agent will mention among the advantages of location, good schools are within easy reach, that churches of different denominations are within easy reach, and that though in a quiet and retired place two minutes' walk takes you to a street car line landing into the heart of the city, etc. Did you ever notice in this enumeration of inducements to buy, the fact that a first class saloon was located on the opposite corner, or that on the next block was a free lunch counter, or the best beer in the city was always on draught, or a pool-room which would be so pleasant and handy for the boys? No, indeed. While the church and the school and the easy access to business are essential to the well-being and maintenance of the home, the others are in every sense antagonistic and inimical to everything that is reckoned dearest and most valued in that sacred place.—American Reformer.

They were standing at the front gate. 'How bright the moon is tonight, George, dear!' she said.

The following is from J. W. Ptolemy, of Winthrop, formerly grain buyer for William Gilbey, of Hampton, England: 'I was for many years much afflicted with Constipation, Biliousness, and ultimately Dyspepsia. I suffered very much and used many different medicines, which gave me only temporary relief and then I was as bad as ever again. I was recommended by a friend, who had been restored to health by it, to try Metcalf's Speedy Cure. I did so, and it was not long before I felt like a new man, and I have enjoyed excellent health ever since. I first purchased a 10 cent sample bottle, February 1st, 1879. Sold by Geo. Rhyman.

In the history of medicines no preparation has received such universal commendation for the alleviation it affords, and the permanent curative effects in all cases, as Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure. Its action in these distressing complaints is simply wonderful. Sold by J. Wilson.

A Wide Awake Druggist.

Sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free. Regular size $1.00.
