

ROOSEVELT LEARNS TO RUN A LOCOMOTIVE

Is Given Thirty Minutes of Instruction by the Engineer,
Then Takes the Throttle

Is Very Much Pleased With the Nomination of Straus for Governor of New York

Missoula, Mont., Sept. 11.—Colonel Roosevelt came over the Continental Divide to the Pacific slope today on the last stage of his journey across the continent. He had a quiet Sunday.

The towns along the way were small and far apart. When he was met by little groups of mountain folk at the stations he went out to shake hands and said that he would make no Sunday speeches. He did, however, make a brief speech in Missoula. The exciting adventure of the day for the colonel was a 2-hour ride on a locomotive. Colonel Roosevelt spent the night in Helena and when the train drew out this morning there were two passengers sitting in front and one pushing it from behind to take up the steep grade to the summit. The colonel stayed the locomotive just behind his car and said that he would like mighty well to get aboard. His request was granted.

"Caught on" in Thirty Minutes
The engineer handed the colonel a pair of gloves and took him into his confidence by giving him minute directions as to how to run an engine. After half an hour's instructions, the colonel said that he believed he knew how and wanted to try it. With the engineer at his side, he took charge. He worked the levers, tooted the whistle and said:

"By George, this is bully!"
Once the colonel pulled what the engineer said was the Johnson bar. He pulled too hard and passengers all through the train were mildly startled by a vigorous bump.

When he was ready to go back to his car, Colonel Roosevelt, instead of waiting until the train stopped, climbed out of the cab to the running board. He made his perilous way along the narrow strip, clinging to the handrail, as the locomotive lurched and swayed, and finally stepped down over the pilot and up over the rail to the platform of his car in safety.

Elated Over Straus' Nomination
Mr. Roosevelt saw several commercial travelers on the train today and told them that he appreciated the efforts of traveling men in his behalf.

On his trip through the Far West the colonel has not been able to keep up with the political news and it was not until today that he learned the full details of the nomination of Oscar Straus and Progressive candidate for governor of New York.

"Next in importance to the nomination of the vice-president," said the colonel, "is the nomination for governor of New York. The life and work of Oscar Straus are a guarantee that in the richest and most populous state in the Union the progressives intend, in actual practice, to apply the doctrines they preach. His nomination was in the most enthusiastic way a nomination by the people themselves. I have known him since I was governor in New York. When he was in my cabinet I learned much upon his views upon the nomination of a man could have had. As head of the department of commerce and labor Straus himself is a study and an illustration of the law, was one of those who reached the conclusions as to the needs of our handling of the anti-trust and interstate commerce and similar laws which were substantially embodied in the Progressive platform."

Senator Dixon of Montana, chairman of the Progressive national committee, who met the colonel at Helena, where he had been attending the state Progressive convention, came on to Missoula, his home town, with the former president today. Roosevelt and the senator talked over Montana politics. The colonel said he was greatly pleased with the outlook in this state.

The Colonel in Paradise
Spokane, Wash., Sept. 8.—After an all day ride from Helena, Colonel Roosevelt reached Spokane at 9 o'clock tonight. He went direct to his hotel for the night. Crowds were on hand at most of the intervening stations and were so insistent in their demands for speeches that the colonel yielded and "preached" sermons, as he put it, upon right conduct in public life.

At Paradise, Mont., two young women were in front of the crowd which greeted the colonel.

"This is Paradise," they told him. "Yes, I know that," the colonel responded, "see the angels!"

Prince Albert's Hospital Scandal
Prince Albert, Sask., Sept. 11.—At a meeting last night of the board of directors of the Victoria hospital, to inquire into the charges of mismanagement and unbecoming actions on the part of the staff, Alderman Baker, E. Baker, who laid specific charges in writing, was held up in leaving the building by nurses and efforts made to force him to sign an apology. He refused, and then the women endeavored to turn the hose on him. At this moment, F. E. Armistage, one of the directors, hurried out, hearing the rumpus, just in time to receive the water intended for Alderman Baker.

This is the sequel to the recent fracas in the council chamber when the aldermen came to blows. The board treats the serious charges lightly, however, and only reaffirms its confidence in the matron and staff. The nurses threatened to quit unless exonerated.

Two Men Have Narrow Escape
Regina, Sask., Sept. 11.—Daniel Egan and John Schumann narrowly escaped with their lives this afternoon when the gas tank in the house of Egan exploded with terrific force, badly wrecking the house and severely injuring both men.

At the time of the explosion, which was caused by the breaking of an improvised gas tank, the men were engaged upon an invention in connection with automobiles, and which it was hoped to have completed during the next two weeks.

Trunks, Suitcases and Club Bags

The right place to buy trunks, is where you know they are reliable, with a guarantee back of every one; you can see that they are stylish and handsome; you can see that they are inexpensive, but you have to take the merchant's word for the reliability. A poor trunk may look like a good one, that's why it pays to buy in a safe store, that's why the bulk of Calgary's trunk business comes here.

Shop around, make comparisons, you'll find that quality for quality our prices are invariably the lowest.

But when Mary Tudor was shown "the goodly gear" which Louis was ready to lavish upon his queen—"fifty-six pieces of jewelry, including noble rubies, one of them fully two inches long"—well, what could a poor princess do? "It will give them her one by one," promised the old king. And Mary succumbed, receiving the day after the ceremony the 3-inch ruby.

Louis had been fortunate while he held it. Eighty-two days after parting with it he died; and Mary, scarcely in womanhood, yet a queen dowager, with all of the fifty-six varieties of jewelry in her possession, went home to marry the English duke she truly cared for.
