How Stocks Are Affected by the War News-Prices Recovering.

London, April 20 .- The Stock Exchange this morning opened with great excitement. The members of exchange arrived an hour earlier than usual. Though all the securities vere marked down heavily, there was no actual panic. Foreign securities were less effected than expected, and though all opened with a substantial reduction buyers soon appeared, and the declines were mostly confined to

New York, April 20-10:10 a.m.-The prices of American securities on the London market this morning indicated that New York had exaggerated the effect of the Greco-Turkish war yesterday, and had oversold. There was consequently, a lively scramble to cover at the opening, at which prices were up to the London parity, showing recovery of from 1 to 11/2 night's close in the international
