DUNGANNON WEDDING

That many Conservatives were going around as if they were defeated, rather than victors, Mr. Rowell attributed to their consciousness that the

DUNGANNON WEDDING

Mise Irene Maize Becomes Wife of Mr. W. Hasty.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Dungannon, Nov. 25.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Maize, of Ashfield, when their only daughter, Miss Irene, was married to Mr. William Hasty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hasty, of Crewe. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. Bartlett, of Dungannon, in the presence of about 100 guests. The happy couple will reside on the groom's farm at Crewe.

THE IDEDAY IFARD

bers of the Legislature protested against Sir James' domineering and overbearing manner of rule. "Have you notice," asked he, "how he, who is there to serve the whole people, treats those who don't agree with him, how he treated the last two temperance deputations, and how he treated the delegation from the north? Why, like Gallio of old, he cared for none of those things, and 'drove them from the judgment seat."

The answer of the people to Sir James' question as to their judgment on his proposal to place the hydroelectric power scheme under a department of Government, ought, in Mr. Rowell's opinion, to be an emphatic "No." In the interests of the municipalities efficient and economical management were all important. "Is it not a significant thing," he asked, "that Hon. Adam Beck's voice has not been raised for that change I believe, if Mr. Beck were free to speak his own mind, he would express his desire to have matters remain as they are. What other purpose can be served by the proposed change than that of making it matter of political influence and control? Why should a great public enterprise be turned into part of the political operanization of either party in Parliament?"
