Not a seat was vacant, and many were obliged to stand in Wellington Street Policeman John Edwin Brown told the story of his life at his last meeting before returning to New York. Mr. Brown believes in good church music, and while the Wellington street organ will pass muster on ordinary occasions, Mr. Brown was not afraid to call it a "rattlebox" last night. Just when Mr. Brown was ready to begin a prayer, the organ was seized with a fit of wheezing. Whereupon Mr. Brown delivered himself courageously on the subject of church organs. "If you had half the money that it takes to bring Schumann-Heink to London, you would put a new organ in all the churches in London," he asserted.

FOUR MORE ACTIONS SUSTAINS CALL TO HAVE LICENSED DRIVERS ENTERED FOR TRIAL

Assize Court List Now Looking London Presbytery Ratifies Formidable From Number of Cases.

Release Set Aside by Court.

Four more cases were added this morning to the jury list of cases to be tried at the Spring assizes, making a total of fifteen up to date. As there is still over a week in which to set down cases, the list bids fair to assume formidable proportions by the ime court opens. William Healey, a painter in the em-loy of A. E. Jolly & Sons is suing that firm for $3,000 in respect of an accident which occured in the McCormick building last January. He was at work upon a scaffold which collapsed throwing him to the ground causing injuries.

He claims that the scaffold was not constructed in accordance with the provisions of the Building Trades Protection Act and makes his claim for amages under that act. The defence that the accident was caused by the plaintiff's own negligence, and that he could have avoided the accident by the exercise of reasonable care. Gibbons Harper and Gibbons are actng for the plaintiff and Meredith and Fisher for the defendants.

Wants release set aside. Unusual interest attaches to a suit entered by Frank Leonard Bolton against the McCormick Manufacturing Company in that the plaintiff's solicitor J. M. McEvoy will attempt to set aside a release signed by his client relieving the company from liability. Bolton was injured on June 9, when an elevator which he was operating, dropped. He had hold of a wire cable which slipped through his hand severely lacerating one finger. Blood poisoning followed and he was seriously ill for a long time.

He brought suit against the company, and the case was to have been tried at the last assizes, but in the meantime, a representative of an accident insurance company which had contracted to protect the McCormick Company called upon Bolton at his home and offered to make a settlement for cash. Being in straitened circumstances at the time, Bolton accepted the offer and signed a release. His solicitor however, was not satisfied with the settlement made, and secured a postponement of the trial until the coming assizes. Suit has been entered in the regular way, the defence being that the release signed by the plaintiff indemnifies the company. This contention Mr. McEvoy will endeavor to overthrow.

Agrees With Plan. Emanuel Devlin told the committee that there should be a railway built through the Labrador peninsula to explore its richness, and he saw no reason why this company should not have the right to build if it wanted to. The road would be in the way of no one, if built where it was proposed to build. Committee Hostile.

The attitude of the committee was so hostile that Mr. Pringle offered to take half of what he first asked, and accept a charter from the Labrador coast to the centre of Canada. While this was sinking in, Mr. Barker, of Hamilton, suggester that another consideration of the bill be declared until a later meeting of the committee, and this suggestion was adopted as the easiest thing to do for the time. During the discussion it came out that the company had already obtained from Newfoundland the charter rights to build across the Labrador strip, which Newfour dland controlled.

The comments of the European and American press have created a profound impression on public opinion in this country, showing the anomalism in the country. Orders Woman Out of Town.—Emma showing the enormous injury inflicted on the prestige of Great Britain by the revolt of the officers, and all parties are genuinely concerned about the safety and the welfare of the Empire. We have been long aware of a military plot, carefully engineerd and nursed by the leaders of the Tory party. The Curragheravalry officers for a brief moment of intoxication were under the impression that they had ridden down the commons and the Liberties of the British people and the Liberties of the British people and also killed some home rule, but they have evoked the spirit of and enormously strengthened the Government.

"The Unionist party in a last effort to throw out the Government has raised an issue deeper and wider than home rule for Ireland. It is now bitterly repenting its attempt to use the army as an ing its attempt to use the army as an instrument of party warfare."

Don't Heed the Army. Liverpool, the leader Joseph Devlin, Liverpool, the of the Ulster Nationalists, said: have never asked for the army in Ulster; we don't want it. We are quite ready try. The aristocratic feudal forces were smashed in that fight, and now the question whether the army has a right to take the place of the lords has dramatically sprung up and aroused the whole forces of Democracy.

"Never has there been such a feeling of indignation at a second to be a such a feeling of indignation at a second to be a such a feeling of indignation at a second to be a second to b of indignation at an attempt to bully Parliament and browbeat the Government. Where the lords failed, the people are not going to allow the army to succeed. The forces of reaction have been frightened as never before by the result of an action they believed would

The absence of Mr. Asquith, who was in charge of the bill, was bitterly complained of by the Unionists.

No More Concessions. Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, who spoke on behalf of the Government, said ministers were not prepared to make any concession beyond the six-years' exclusion of the Ulster counties from the operation of the bill offered by Premier squith. The country, he said, must settle the question at the end of that time. Meanwhile, the question of the coercion of Ulster could not arise until after a general election, but if there were sporadic outbursts in that province, force must be used, said Sir Edward, and if an attempt was made to set up a provisional Government and defy the Imperial Parliament, the army must be called upon. No Interference Allowed. Sir Edward Grey added that if there had been a general election last week, it would have been upon a much graver issue than home rule. If the army took, active sides in politics, the country would have faced a graver problem than it had faced in the last three centuries. The Foreign Secretary said that if there was any question raised of government by parliament without interference, he him self took a stand as firm as that of an Labor member.

A Suggestion.

Sir Edward suggested the resumption of the conversations between party leaders in order to see whether the lines of a settlement could not be reached on the basis sidered prophetic of the Government's of establishing a federal system for the whole country before the end of the six years named by the Government in its
