

A FAREWELL TRIP TO LAST BUT NOT LEAST MEMPHIS

Today Four-Mile Law Is Enforced and Barkeeps Seek Fields That Are Better Irrigated

Memphis, Tenn., July 1.—When bells in churches and the town clock steeples rang the midnight hour, they marked the passing of a law in Tennessee, for at that hour the Holiday statewide prohibition law went into effect.

This law makes it illegal to sell alcoholic beverages within four miles of any school house in the state. Only two cases were left in all Tennessee. Both are within twelve miles of Memphis, near the Mississippi state line.

The nearest school house is six miles from both of these points, but steps have already been taken by the White Ribboners to have the county board of education erect a school house within the distance prescribed by law so there will be no Mecca in the entire state for thirty pilgrims. Thousands of men are thrown out of employment and barkeeps are seeking better irrigated fields.

The passing of the saloon in Memphis and in other cities throughout the state was marked by scenes of unusual hilarity. The celebration started early in the morning and lasted until the moment of closing, when there was a rush to purchase one last farewell drink over the bar.

Grog shops were crowded with lively revelers. Extra police precautions were taken in Memphis. While this good-fellowship of liquor was in progress Prohibitionists held meetings of rejoicing. Mayor Malone declared his intention of enforcing the law throughout the city and state officers say they will do the same in every county.

Sperry, who was supreme equisite and determination which was able to meet the requirements of the custody of $150,000 worth of United States property in the voyage of sixteen battleships around the world, which if lost could not be restored in more than a decade.

"I wish to say with reference to this trip," said Mr. Taft, "that while it was criticized at the time there is no single order of my predecessor, many of whose orders tended so much to the peace of the world, which in my judgment weighed so much as that by which he sent around, not as messengers of war, but as ambassadors of peace, those wonderful mechanisms known as the battleships of the United States."

New York, July 1.—A Mexico City despatch to the Herald says that an Italian giving the name of Alvaro, who the Mexican authorities believe to be the slayer of Detective Petrosino, is under arrest in that city.

The arrest was made on Tuesday of last week but the fact was kept a close secret pending investigation of the New York police that Petrosino's slayer is about 34 years old and despite his assertion that he has been in Mexico for more than four months, evidence is at hand that he reached Mexico less than two months ago.

The despatch quotes the Mexican Herald as saying that Giuseppe U. Ambassador to Mexico, learned from Washington that it was believed by the New York police that Petrosino's slayer had been traced to Mexico. He communicated the fact to the Italian minister, who took the matter up with Minister Mariscal of the Department of Foreign Relations. That minister said that the Mexican secret service took it up.

ENGLAND DECLARES EGGHEAD IS WICK

Rev. Hensley Henson, of Westminster Abbey Says Albion Is Undeveloped and Empire Needs New Patriotism

That England today is practically undeveloped and undeclared; that the notable figures of the present day, and that the Imperial Club of Victoria yesterday.

Mr. Henson declared, moreover, that the clergy of England were neglecting their duty if they failed to point out the need of sacrifice by the people to maintain the heritage which has been handed down to them.

Canon Henson opened his eloquent address by alluding to the fact that the Emperor of Russia some time ago, and during his progress through America he had seen many interesting things. He was in a quandary upon that subject to speak to his audience today.

Sights of City

"This morning," said the speaker, "my wife and myself went to the saw mills, for we heard that they constituted one of the sights of the city. When one thought of the enormous power for which the city is famous, and the fact that the English people are not doing their duty unless we point out the need of sacrifice among the people of the Empire, to maintain their traditions. The religion of Christ is the religion of sacrifice."

England has been following the course of events in foreign countries. Our people have become seriously impressed. We have seen Russia; with all her mighty power collapse before what was hitherto thought a small and unimportant nation. England has watched with anxiety the sharp and brutal methods of diplomacy applied to Russia and France by a powerful state in Europe. It is upon these grounds that the English people are thinking of the urgency of this great question of imperial defence.

Imperialism becomes an intertemporal and non-rational sentiment. Patriotism will always command respect. Patriotism will make a man understand the patriotism of other countries."

Not Nervous

"Don't suppose for a moment that John Bull is in a state of nerves, for the defence has been ascribed to the influence of the newspapers. In my opinion newspapers are more the reflex of public opinion than the creators of people's opinions. Great Britain has not been hurried into a nervous condition by the newspapers. There are two things which have led to the present situation at home. You remember the grave warnings by responsible men.

A REWARD IS OFFERED FOR BLOOD

British Columbia Government Offers Reward of Twenty-Five Hundred Dollars for Ashcroft Murderer

Twenty-five hundred dollars is offered for the British Columbia government for the arrest and conviction of the murderer who, on the 11th of June, shot and killed Isaac Decker, a special constable. While his name is unknown he is described as being tall and thin, with a complexion clear shaven and wearing a dirty white shirt, black pants and an old light-colored Stetson.

Should this man prove to be one of those who held up the C.P.R. west-night ago his apprehension will not bring more than that sum to those who make the arrest, although the government some days ago announced the reward of the amount specified for the capture of the robbers.

Advice received by Superintendent of Provincial Police Hussey state that the search for the hold-up party Murray, with the assistance of a force of the Canadian Mounted Police is doing everything in his power to bring the fugitives to justice.

The trail of the man who killed Constable Decker at Ashcroft was followed for some five or six miles by bloodhounds. At that point, where is located an old disused mine in which it was thought the hunted ones were hiding, the scent was lost. The men were not found there and the hounds were unable to pick up the trail. The Indian trackers also were at fault. These reverses set back the chase seriously but despite these disappointments Hussey is confident that it won't be long before the strong arm of the law reaches the robbers and the man who escape, went to the length of committing murder.

The district in which they are known to have been directed by an impenetrable cordon and news of the coup is expected any day.
