

be willing in future to give the requisite information, and that consequently the work will be made still more complete.

It is intended, in the future volumes of the work, to include the names of all who are connected with business, whether housekeepers or not, giving their place of residence and the house with which they are connected, and such other improvements will be carried out as may be considered valuable to the public.

To those gentlemen who have extended their support to the work, both as subscribers and advertisers, and also to all who have aided him with information or advice in compiling it, the Editor would, in conclusion, return his most sincere thanks.
