

workers in natural history, but I fear my knowledge of these subjects is too limited to enable me to give credit where it is due.

I am sure I must have wearied you with such a lengthy address. I have but one excuse—my firm belief that the future of Canada depends to a degree not generally recognized, upon our liberality in spending money to exploit our country.