History of the

JACK AND THE GIANT ONCE MORE.

furniture went swimming round me—but I recovered when I got into the fresh air. My landlady!—I dared not think of her. I was in the blackness of darkness of despair, when suddenly an idea dawned upon me like a star through a rift in the clouds. Rushing home I entered the house, whistling loudly for the edification of my landlady, and gathering together several scraps of wit and humor, the products of my leisure moments, I studied them in the crown of my hat—and making a bee-line for Front-street entered GRIP office. The bird received me cordially—but gave me an electric shock by saying: "I see you would like to be paid for these in advance?" I tried to protest, but his eye was upon me. He knew all, I could see; what he don't know isn't worth knowing, and going to a drawer he took therefrom a V. bill, and I was saved. Paid my landlady and laundress. Temperature high—sudden thaw—air soft and mild.

Sunday, 8th.—In bed all day.
Monday, 9th.—A letter from Globe office—which I open with palpitating pulses—By Jove! it's accepted!—read this:—
"DEAR SIR,—Please find enclosed cheque for five dollars for editorial services. Yours truly, GLOBE PR'G Co."
Whew! Well now—he isn't a bad fellow after all, is he?

I HAVE been requested to contradict the rumor that the Hamilton Amateur Opera Company were compelled to perform in Toronto lately because there was not room for the ladies of that company to stand on the limited stage of the Hamilton Opera House. It is confidently stated that there was plenty of room and a few feet (ordinary feet) to spare, and the only reason for the ladies and gentlemen referred to coming to Toronto was that they desired to perform in a city. Thus is libel after libel shown up.
