A bevy of young women, some pretty and some indifferent, but all clever, are studying in this school to become teachers of the art of good housekeeping. When the classes reassembling after the summer holiday it developed that in the few brief vacation months no less than 17 members had been ensnared in Cupid's net.

Miss Caroline B. Weeke, secretary of the school, freely admits that, aside from the personal attractiveness of the girls who have married, the men could not have failed to have appreciated the secretary: "The students enter with the idea of becoming teachers." There is an enormous demand for women who have mastered the art. The sear-city is due to the fact that they are

who have mastered the art. The scar-city is due to the fact that they are city is due to the fact that they are so promptly married after they leave the school. It is no mystery why men should claim them quickly." It is claimed that a graduate of the school, when she becomes the mistress of her own home, can make $1 go as far as the average housewife makes $4 go.

Miss Anna C. Hedges, a thoughtful woman, who is director in the faculty, said.

"A girl in this institute is taught to make her own clothes and hats and do household work in the highest form of domestic science. How much she accomplishes depends upon herself.

"I do not like the attitude that this institution is merely to fit a girl to be a wife. That puts a false value upon a sacred thing. It is nevertheless true that a girl with the right spirit would by the very nature of things prove a better wife than the girl who could not superintend the business of her home. "I am heartily opposed to the girl ho makes matrimonial capital out of er education in domestic economy, into love on the basis of her attractiveness or attainments and then cheats him, after marriage, by refusing to accept her portion of the work or fails to continue to make herself attractive.
"A girl with the right spirit may work and help her husband with this education. If it is necessary she may make her own dresses and the cost will be for material only. business in life is to get a husband to support her. American women are raply developing their minds and their elds of usefulness. They are making the independent position they are wor-thy of. They are becoming independ-ent of men, which is right. Under this condition marriage will be for love and will be a sanctified thing rather than an expedient." Of a class of 12 girls in the cooking school last year, five married during the summer vacation, and two more wore engagement rings when they returned to their studies. While the school is co-educational. few marriages occur among students.

Great British murderer for whom the Scotland Yard authorities have long been looking.

The man was a prisoner in the United States penitentiary, serving a five year sentence for a military crime. In prison he was well behaved and liked, but when the warden, following the general order to take the finger prints record of all soldiers, attempting the secure an impression of this man's digits, he met with violent resistance, and was knocked down and roughly handled. Suspecting that his record was bad, the warden sent coptes of the prints to the police authorities in a number of cities.

Within a comparatively short time Scotland Yard reported that the man had committed an atroctous murder in Norta; that he had been sentenced to life imprisonment, and had escapide to America.
