KILLED BY AN INSANE MAN JAMES MARTIN'S SAD DEATH

Patient From Guelph Who Was Thought to Be Harmless Committed the Deed.

Hamilton, Oct. 9.—(Special).—The horrible affair at the asylum for the insane at Hamilton, where George Edgely, a patient who belongs to Guelph, killed James Martin, the head baker, by striking him on the head with an ax, is the chief topic of conversation here. The insane man had been helping in the bakery for a year past and was looked upon as being harmless.

While he and Martin were together in the bakery, about 12.40 Saturday afternoon, cries were heard coming from there. When those who heard the cries arrived on the scene, Lingwood was leaving the bakery with an ax in his hand, which was dripping with blood. As he walked out he said, "I have done for him."

Martin was found lying on the floor unconscious with a big hole in the right side of his head just back of the temple. Dr. Wilson and Dr. Russell of the asylum staff were on the scene almost instantly and did what was possible for poor Martin, but the insane man had done too well, and Martin died at 8.30 Saturday night, without having regained consciousness. Dr. Wilson was with him till the last. Coroner Griffin was notified and ordered an inquest, which will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the City Store.

GREATER THAN TELEPATHY.

Goldwin Smith Writes Interesting Letter to New York Sun.

Goldwin Smith, writing to The New York Sun, says: "The latest case of telepathy is a most interesting one. It is the case of a lady who, by the silence of her absent husband, whom she afterwards finds to have been sick. Incidents such as this, dressed up by our retrospective fancy, become mysterious and the materials of a new faith. Our minds are thereby turned from questions of the future to the solution of the past. Yet, yet no question can be asked, 'What does this mean?' It is a question of the future, not of the past. I avoid the phrase 'immortality of the soul' because it cannot form an idea of immortality any more than I can of infinity or eternity, both of which elude conception."

Conscience tells us, that according as we do well or ill in this life, it will be well or ill for us hereafter. Is the evidence of conscience less trustworthy than that of our bodily senses? If the evidence of our bodily senses is trustworthy, on what does their prerogative rest? May we not be in a universe governed by Newton or Darwin?

That death wipes out the score of life and levels the last of the great of men with the lowly is a belief which our physical nature rebels from anything out of the ordinary sense. Positivism, in place of the hope of personal existence hereafter, presents to us the prospect of annihilation. But that which is personal is not ours. After all, in what is the progress to grow wiser? Positivism in the physical catastrophe of our planet. What would the consequence to the deity of the belief, if we were driven to it, that death is the end? Would there be any rational inducement to self-sacrifice or effort for the common good? Would not struggle for the sake of the individual be in fact the true wisdom? Is not a tendency of this kind making itself felt as religious belief grows weak? Positivism points to the military self-sacrifice of the Japanese. Is it more than a military instinct of surviving rebellion with a sort of fatal duty in the form of the military duty of the natural mind? No doubt are falling us. We can no longer hold with the good Bishop Butler that the soul is a being distinct from the body, indelible, and that it survives the body. We know that what we call the soul is the consummate outcome of the general frame of Nature, with Secretaries' consent, and that it is a pre-existence attested by the presence in it of innate ideas. When Secretaries points to the distinction between the life and the melody as analogous to the

HIS WIFE DIED ON LINER HUSBANDS DIES IN A MORGUE

Little Woman Who Eagerly Expects Him at the Pier Will Find Herself a Widow.

New York, Oct. 9.—Somewhere in a ship on the blue Atlantic, straining her eyes for her husband and her future home, is Mrs. Luigi Laperco, a little Florentine woman.

Lying in the city morgue with a gunshot wound in her abdomen Luigi Laperco, alias Peblito, forty-eight years old, was working for the little woman for some time, but she had never seen him. He had been in America for some years, his friends say.

Five years ago Laperco came from Florence to make a home for wife and child. According to a family in the tenement at 100 West 100th street, he had been early and late. He was honest, these friends say, but the police are not so sure.

Laperco's most time writing letters to his wife. Last April he sent money for her to come to America. He had taken all the money for the physician, under the name of Luigi Laperco, to work again, but was a changed man. The people at No. 16 First-street say he was silent and despondent.

A month ago Laperco sent more money for his wife to come. She had been told that he was in the city, but Laperco was in the morgue. QUEBEC NOMINATIONS.

George H. Long Will Oppose Hereafter in Benham's.

Montreal, Oct. 9.—(Special).—Several important nominations took place on Saturday in this province. Hon. T. Hackett, ex-M.L.A., received the unanimous nomination of the Conservative party in the County of Stanstead, and as the Conservative carried the county for the local a short time ago the probability of Mr. Hackett's return is conceded.

De L. B. Tache, who opposed the late Mr. Blanchet, is again in the field in the County of St. Hyacinthe, the convention taking place Saturday afternoon.

The Conservatives also nominated on Saturday Ernest Nantel in Terrebonne. He is the brother of the Hon. S. A. Nantel and of the Rev. Superior of St. Therese College.

After a great deal of trouble the Quebec Liberals have nominated George Farnham and Premier Parent, as the opponent of Hon. Thomas Chase Casgrain in Montmorency.

Yesterday morning the Prefecture went to Valleyfield and George H. Long was nominated to oppose Mr. Bergeron in Benham's.

THREE DIE TO SAVE OTHERS

To the entrance, so that they might rescue and carry out some of the crew. They had gone but a short distance when the coal gas became stifling and the rescuers were forced to retreat. The rescuers succeeded in crawling to the portal of the tunnel on their hands and knees.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made at the Sarnia end of the tunnel to rescue the imprisoned train crew. An engine with a party of rescuers entered the tube and had proceeded but a short distance when they found John Hately, a track walker, lying unconscious on the track. He was taken out and again the engine plunged into the gaseous atmosphere. The rescuers were overcome, however, by the gas before the train was reached and Brakeman McGrath died.

Switchman Blake, who was a member of the party, after a time made another attempt to penetrate the gas, and by this time succeeded in reaching the stalled engine, coupled it to the cars and ran the train out into the day light. Simpson, Finley and Gill were found dead in the caboose. Fireman Forster was in the water tank of the engine nearly two hours before he was rescued and his escape is little short of miraculous.

WAR SITUATION

Is possible his advance movement will force the Japanese flanking column to withdraw in order to protect their own base. On the other hand, there seems to be a possibility of one or both of the Japanese columns threatening the line behind the Russians and forcing a suspension of their aggressive movement.

INTO LION'S JAW.
London, Oct. 10.—The new phase of the war involved in Gen. Kurapatkin's stirring address to his army is being discussed by English military critics. In the light of probable moves underlying Kurapatkin's decision to take the offensive, it is not forgotten how recently the Russian plan of campaign was represented to be to attack the Japanese northward in order to draw the Japanese communications and hence there is greater surprise at what is considered a remarkable order.

Kurapatkin's mention of the relief of Port Arthur, and the fact that immediately following the decision to take the offensive, a second army, he apparently is about to risk everything in attack by the first army, suggests government officials that the Russian move, in his advance is a sign of desperation; that if he is acting on his own judgment, it is a bold move, and he is a formidable antagonist.

EXPLAINS WAR SITUATION.
Bentlapute Captured From the Japs by the Russians.

Mukden, Oct. 9.—The Russian forward movement has begun and Bentlapute has been captured with a small loss.

In order to a clear understanding of two days ago the Japanese had ten divisions confronting the Russians north of the Taitze River. Their left flank, consisting of two divisions, was on the railway at Sandapung, thirty miles south of Mukden, and close to the Hun River. Their centre, composed of four divisions, occupied the railway between Liaoyang and Chandiapung, twelve miles north of Sandapung. The Russian advance was a single division right along the road between Bentlapute and Sandapung. Their front extended about fifty-two miles. The position at Bentlapute was strongly fortified and intended to withstand attack. It is reported that Gen. Kuroki was there in person. The Japanese had omitted to fortify one hill, which was the key to the position. The Russians, aware of this omission, made a wide detour eastward and seized the hill with little opposition. The hill, once occupied, exposed the whole Japanese position to a heavy bombardment. The Russians also turned the Japanese right, and the fortified positions thus becoming untenable, the Japanese were forced to withdraw hurriedly from Bentlapute, fighting a rear-guard action in which they suffered heavily.

The Russian losses through were small, although severe opposition had been expected.

Reports of the Japanese advance have been confirmed by the Russian press. The Russian southern advance began on Oct. 4, with the occupation of Shakhovskaya station. The next day only a station, which had been dismantled by the Japanese, was restored by the railway. The Russian advance was a single division right along the road between Bentlapute and Sandapung. Their front extended about fifty-two miles. The position at Bentlapute was strongly fortified and intended to withstand attack. It is reported that Gen. Kuroki was there in person.
