

PADEREWSKI TO PLAY IN TORONTO

Polish Patriot Who Left Piano to Rule His Country Back at the Keyboard Again—A Picturesque Career.

(Toronto Telegram)
When Paderewski, supreme master of the piano, entered his native Warsaw to become premier of Poland, roses literally strewn his path. But the great pianist's reception in Toronto would be very different if one Jewish editor of this city had his way, for Paderewski as head of the Polish state is accused by him and others of having permitted pogroms—an accusation which Father Dowling, priest of St. Stanislaus church, Toronto, seeks to refute by stating that Jews who were traitors suffered.

Piano Closed for Years.
Years have passed since the famous Pole with the aureole of one golden and now grey hair, and the intense blue eyes, ran his wonderful fingers across a piano in public. One day in 1916, the master closed down the lid of his piano and cancelled a contract to play at a fabulous fee in the cities of South America. The hour for which he longed was come. At last he could serve his beloved Poland. But he had to serve her in the United States where he then was. Not until December of 1918 did Paderewski and Madame Paderewski reach Warsaw. Four million Poles in the United States were backing him. He was welcomed with shouts of joy and in February, 1919, he headed the list of those elected to the Polish Constituent Assembly. His countrywomen gave him a tremendous vote.

Unconquered King of Poland.
"I love music, but I love my country far more, and the one boon I ask of life is to see Poland rescued from her poverty and slavery," Paderewski had exclaimed to a friend in pre-war days when the land of his birth was an oppressed thrall of Russia. His dream was realized, and he went back to Poland, where from the terraced lawns of his beautiful estate at Racot, near Warsaw, he had often gazed across the hills and valleys to the distant blue peaks of the Carpathians. Even in his former days Paderewski was regarded almost as the unconquered king of Poland. No king could have had a more triumphant reception than he on his return from his musical conquests. The grounds at his house would be brilliant with crowds in gala costume. They would pass before him in procession with bands playing national airs while robed girls carrying bouquets which they laid in tribute at his feet. Afterwards feasting and frolic would follow with the most happy participant with his tenants and friends.

Back to California Ranch.
But, alas, Paderewski's reign as Premier and Foreign Minister was a short one. Thirteen different political factions were too much for him to handle and after useful service at the Paris peace conference, where he declared himself the most representative of the Polish people, he voluntarily resigned in favor of more iron-constituted person to guide a staggering nation through its troubles. And now, after six years in which he scarcely touched the piano, he is back at his art and coming to perform in Toronto. At present Paderewski is resting on the big walnut ranch which he bought a year before the war, in Southern California, which has a large colony of distinguished Poles.

A Professor at 18.
Paderewski's last public performance was by special request before Marshall Joffe and the French Commission at the reception in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in 1917. Born 62 years ago in Poland, Paderewski was taught music when seven years old by a local teacher. He studied harmony and composition in Warsaw and finished his education in Germany. At 18 he became a professor in Warsaw Conservatory. He first appeared before a critical audience at Vienna in 1877, and in 1888 in Germany and Paris. He scored a triumph in London in 1890 and first visited the U. S. A. in 1891.

First London Concert Only $50.
He took Paris by storm, but, strange to say, his first appearance in London fell flat. The receipts did not exceed $50, and the critics could not understand "the fuss that had been made about him." In Paris, but the audience was enthusiastic and therefore he played to crowded houses. By 1894 he seldom gave a London recital which brought less than $5,000—as much as Patti earned at the most brilliant period of her career. Though even those masters Rubinstein and von Bulow had had a few years before to elicit out their concerts in New York with the help of other artists, it was found that Paderewski alone could draw big audiences. Sixty-seven early performances of Paderewski's in New York netted him $180,000, whereas Rubinstein in 1872 had only got $50,000 for 215 concerts. But this was no reflection on that great musician—only an instance of the growth of the country in numbers, wealth, and musical appreciation. Paderewski says he won't play golf. In fact he even stopped playing billiards because it made corns on his delicate hands, whose marvellous suppleness must be preserved at all costs. 'Tis said he used to work them 18 hours a day at practice, and that this countryman of Chopin, and greatest exponent of the piano since Liszt and Rubinstein, has each thumb and finger insured for $5,000.

SIX LANGUAGES IN COURT.

But, English Wasn't Among Those Russian Actress Could Speak.

New York, Oct. 7.—Speaking a half dozen languages fluently, but with none to answer the purpose of the occasion, Mme. Maria Kousnezoy, member of the "Revue Russe" company at the Booth Theatre, appeared before Magistrate E. A. Smith in West Side Court in answer to a summons served on her by Health Officer James Halligan, who had been visiting the actress in her unannounced through Forty-fourth street near Eighth avenue.

She told Magistrate Smith she had arrived here from Russia a week ago and didn't know dogs had to be muzzled. She was given a suspended sentence. Difficulty was found in hearing the case. Henry Goodwin, assistant district attorney, who speaks French, gave it up after two attempts. A spectator finally went to the rescue.

WOMEN PASTORS FOR NEW SOUTH WALES.

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 1.—(By Mail)—The prospect of women preachers occupying pulpits in many New South Wales churches has arisen as the result of a proposal which is to come before the next Anglican Provincial synod, that women be permitted to conduct church services under certain conditions. The proposed ordinance suggests that the archbishop or bishop of a diocese may issue a license to a deaconess to perform any of the following duties: to prepare candidates for baptism and confirmation in the absence of the pastor, to read morning and evening prayer and the litany, except such portions as are assigned to the priest only and to instruct and to exhort the congregation to conduct services for women children.

FIREWORKS VICTIM DIES.

Woman Succumbs to Blood Poisoning—One Held by Court.

Mrs. Nancy Panella, fifty-two years old, of 890 New Jersey avenue, Brooklyn, who was burned on the legs on September 28 by the explosion of a bomb set off during a religious celebration, died in Kings County Hospital this week. Blood poisoning which set in caused her death. It was said. The explosion injured about thirty persons slightly. Five of the six men arrested on charges of shooting off fireworks during the celebration without a permit were discharged in New Jersey Avenue Court by Magistrate Folwell. The sixth, Vito Pastoro of 120 Mulberry street, Manhattan, was paroled until October 9.

The new Alexandra Chapter, I. O. D. E., held its first meeting last evening with Mrs. R. A. Corbett presiding. Mrs. Walter Gregg read the report from the municipal chapter telling what members promised to do their best to fulfill this charge.

PROTEST DOOM OF OLD OAK

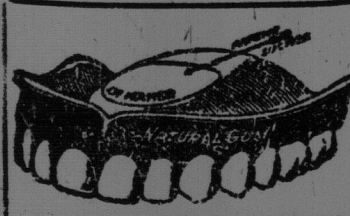

Residents of Green Creek Strive to Save 200-Year-Old Tree.

Cape May, N. J., Oct. 7.—Residents of Green Creek, nine miles northwest of this city, are up in arms because the Cape May County Board of Freeholders wants to cut down the giant oak that has stood at Schellenger's Corner, in the village of Green Creek, for more than 200 years. The oak is nearly seventy feet in height and measures several feet in diameter. It was under this oak that President Woodrow Wilson made his now famous speech to the Delaware Bay fishermen when he was a candidate for Governor of the State of New Jersey.

It is said that more than one hundred years ago the Leni Lenapes, the Indians, lived in Cape May County, and their tribal meeting under a friendly branch. President Lincoln, Grant, Harrison and many others have visited the tree. Minister Wu, the fang of China, when he visited the tree while he was at Cape May said the tree was no oak in all China like the oak of Cape May County.

other machines of war. The crusaders marched to a moonshine camp bent on doing all that Carrie Nation would have done, and more. Doubtless moonshiners, who braved the "revenue agent" in better days heard of the enemy's approach and fled like school boys.

Without opposition the "tippers" wives took possession of all the stills, apparatuses and beer vats in sight, and when they got through not a snifter was left to tempt the vagrant eight. The women were neighbors in the town of Moberly, Cumberland County, according to the dispatches carrying the tale to Chattanooga.

MAKES PREDICTIONS

AS TO AIR TRAVEL

Bellefonte, Illinois, Oct. 7.—One third of the population of the United States will be flying in dirigibles in the near future, according to a prediction of A. Leo Stevens, chief instructor of aeronautics for the United States army at Scott Field, near here. Mr. Stevens, in 1902, made the first dirigible flight in this country.

The dirigibles, Mr. Stevens said, will range in size from the small "vest pocket" type to mammoth machines carrying from ten to twenty motors. The dirigibles of the future will have pontoon-like, he asserted, "and the water will be helpful for landing places. The machines of the future will carry from ten to twenty motors. The dirigibles in the large airships will be equipped with safety berths. The seating of a button by the commander will cause every passenger to descend to earth at the same time. Each berth will have all necessary equipment for dining and floating its passengers to safety.

"The army of the future will travel rough the air and it will be nothing to see a thousand or more men transported at one time in one machine. believe it is only a matter of a short time when one-third of the population of this country will be flying in dirigibles. aerial contrivances, and we will have 'vest pocket' size dirigible for those who don't care to own a large craft."
