NEARLY OVER

The epidemic of typhoid in the city is gradually growing less—in fact, it can hardly be dignified by the name of epidemic now. There are only ten patients in the General Public Hospital now, and all are convalescent. There is one erysipelas case in the hospital, and barring these St. John's health list is clean.

GEORGE WILKS, 1913

This is the simple inscription on the Royal register today. The reporter gazed on it for some time and then a remembrance of Chicago in 1890 availed him. He hurried to find Mr. Wilks to ask him whether his solution of the problem was correct. It was. 1913 signified that Mr. Wilks was from San Francisco, where the big exposition is to be held in that year to commemorate the opening of the Panama Canal.

INSPECTED LOCAL FARMS

An interesting visitor to the city last week was a lady from England, Miss H. J. Harding of Dorset, who was sent out by her brother, a Church of England clergyman, to ascertain if the New Brunswick farms offered as good opportunities to young English farmers as real estate men said. Miss Harding was the guest of Alfred Burley while here and Mr. Burley was showing her over farms in the Grand Lake district, also along the line of the Central Railway. Miss Harding has been an enthusiastic traveler and spent twelve years as a missionary in India. She was delighted with what she saw of New Brunswick and Western Canada and expects a lot of business will result from her visit.

OCTOBER WEDDINGS

Jackson-Lafferty

St. Peter's church, North End, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at six o'clock this morning, when Wilbur H. Jackson was united in marriage with Miss May M. Lafferty. Nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Joseph H. Borgmann, C. S. S. R. The bride, who was given away by her cousin, J. J. Ryan, looked charming in a costume of white satin with princess lace, pearl trimmings and a white picture hat trimmed with willow plumes and carrying a bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel M. Brown, wore pink nylon over pale blue satin, with a black velvet hat trimmed with ostrich bandeau, and carrying a shower bouquet of pink roses. Thomas Lafferty, brother of the bride, acted as groomsmen.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ryan, Clarendon street, after which the happy couple left on the "D. J. Purdy" for a tour of the provinces. The groom's gift to the bride was a muskrat coat; to the bridesmaid, a gold piece, and to the groomsmen, a pearl stick pin. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents, including cut glass, silver and furniture. On their return to the city Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will reside in Bridge street.

O'Brien-Sexton

An interesting event took place in St. Rose's church, Fairville, this morning at six o'clock, when Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sexton, of Fairville, was united in marriage to Edward O'Brien, of Kingsville. Nuptial mass was celebrated, Father Collins officiating. The bride was charmingly dressed in a tailored suit of blue broadcloth with black picture hat and white ravens. She was attended by Mrs. Lizzie Mallaney, a matron of honor, wearing a fawn colored tailored suit. The bridegroom was supported by Leo Mallaney.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left on a wedding tour to Boston and New York, and on their return to the city will reside in Adelaide street. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents, including a check from the bridegroom. The bridegroom's present to the best man was a gold stick pin, and to the bridesmaid a handsome brooch set with emeralds.

DREDGE OVERDUE

Overdue three days, some anxiety is felt in local shipping circles and in the Norton Griffiths Company's offices regarding the fate of the new dredge, Scotland which left Halifax ten days ago for this port and was expected in on last Friday.

The opinion was expressed by a local shipping man this morning that if the gale which swept the coast Saturday met the dredge the latter, being unwieldy in shape, would experience some difficulty weathering it. Insurance is carried on the dredge at Lloyd's. The latest quotations are not available.

NOT THAT HE COULD READ THEM, BUT IT WAS THE DRINK DID IT

Thus The Defendant in a Book Taking Case in Police Court

Daniel Hurley, with a wife and four children, came to St. John not long ago from Pleasant Point looking for work. He found it on the new post office excavations and everybody agreed he was a jolly good fellow, especially on Saturday night. This morning Daniel was in police court charged with stealing two books worth fifty cents from Arnold's book store.

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked the court. "Guilty, your honor; and please—"

"Oh! And were you so anxious to indulge in some pleasant reading that you had to steal the books?"

"Pleasant reading? Not much," returned the prisoner, indignantly. "I cannot read. You see, it was this way. My wife was buying some things in the store, and me 'avin' a little drink in me, you see, jest—"

"So ho!" said Magistrate Ritchie, exclaiming, "It's rum again, is it?"

"If you please, Your Honor," here interposed the witness from Arnold's, "we found a quart of liquor on him."

The liquor was produced. It looked like amber and tasted like the fiery sword of Genesis. One sniff was enough for the court.

"What is it?" he enquired, "brandy?" This child-like innocence of the judge riled the prisoner, and amused those present.

"Brandy!" declaimed the prisoner, disdainfully. "That's Bourbon—an' darned good Bourbon, at that!"

"Well, it's poison, anyhow," commented the judge. "I thought liquor would be at the bottom of a man stealing two books when he couldn't read. Well, I'm going to remand you. You're liable to six months in jail, and I'm not saying you won't get it. I'm quite willing to keep up my newspaper reputation in this respect. Experience has taught me that 99 cases out of a hundred heard before me in this court can be traced somehow to liquor, or poison they sell over the local bars."

IN THE COURTS

Hearing in the case of Myers vs. Gambin was begun this morning on application of the defendant. In this case, application was made last December to set aside judgment against the defendant and the judge made an order in February directing a stay of execution until further order of the court. Action was brought and tried in the Kings County Circuit in April resulting in a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of Gambin vs. Myers for $865.80 which verdict was sustained by the supreme court, on application for a new trial.

The present application is for costs of the application to set aside judgment. The court considers J. B. M. Baxter, K. C. appeared for the plaintiff and D. Mullin, K. C. for the defendant.

McInerney of St. John and his son, Gerald T., when he attains the age of twenty-one years executors.
