SCOFFS AT THE SUFFRAGETTES. In a recent meeting of the Civic Club a lively discussion followed the advent of a suffragette. Of course the subject centered upon poor, downtrodden womanhood.

"Things were growing serious for an elderly man who accompanied his wife to the meeting. He belonged to the old school of thinkers, evidently. Toward the last it became difficult for him to 'get' the floor, so great was the zeal of the exponents of 'Votes for Women!'

"Give woman the credit she deserves," cried one fair speaker, "and where would man be?"

"There was an impressive silence broken only by 'that horrid old man over in the corner.'"

"Well, I guess he would be in the work-house, if she got all the credit she wanted," he observed testily.—Philadelphia Times.

Gathering salt hay on the shores of the Swampsport river in New Hampshire last week was a man 65 years old, driving a horse 32 years old attached to a moving machine 40 years old.
