OTTAWA LETTER.

Liberals Seem to Be Losing Their Heads Just Now.

Mulock's Indiscreet Language Regarding the Franking of Conservative Literature During the Present Session—An Interesting Debate.

(Special Correspondence of the Sun.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—The liberals seem to be losing their heads in the last days of this long session. Perhaps it is due to their physical condition, but it may be that the leaders of the government see the handwriting on the wall and have determined at any price to put the opposition in a bad light before the electorate.

Mr. William Mulock has been equally indiscreet in his remarks during the present session. Since confederation, the opposition has been invariably accused of the privilege of forwarding the literature in printed form, criticisms of the government's policy.

The postmaster general declared that the enormous accumulations "that are seen in the corridors and passages of this building have no business in the possession of the post office and the railway service of Canada. I am speaking of that literature, be it from one side of the house or the other."

Sir William made this dire threat on Saturday at six o'clock, but so far he has failed to make good. Like his leader in the matter of the Grand Trunk Pacific treaties, he allowed his language to carry him away.

The government had another way out of the difficulty, had they been courageous enough to supply the opposition with one of the large vacant rooms in the basement for the storage of literature. They would not consent to any such arrangement and forced the conservatives to make use of the corridors for a few days.

of his conviction or feared the criticism which would undoubtedly follow were he to curtail, in any way, privileges accorded the opposition for years past. The government may have benefited from their line of action, if so they are entitled to all the political capital they have made.

But there is another side to the question which the liberals were not inclined to discuss so freely. At the present time hundreds of thousands of campaign sheets are being prepared from Ottawa under the franks of ministers of the crown.

In this respect the conservative party has a clear advantage. They have paid for the printing of their literature, addressed it, put it in envelopes and delivered it to the postal authorities.

It may be explained that Mr. Macpherson is new to parliamentary life, and that he did not know what he was talking about. In the first place the conservative party have only sent out five hundred copies of literature in all.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—The close of the longest session of the Canadian parliament is at hand. The average working day at Ottawa during the present session has been something like 14 hours, covering committee work and the proceedings in the house of commons.

that the commons would be sitting at Christmas. Sir William Mulock has been playing a double game in his attempt to delay the delivery of conservative campaign literature and he calculated that some 750 bags of matter could only be forwarded at the rate of 40 bags a day.

The conservative party has good reason to feel proud of the splendid fight put up by their representatives at Ottawa during the present session.

To show how absurd are some of the statements made by liberal members in regard to the amount of literature sent out by the opposition, it is only necessary to quote a few of the remarks of Mr. Macpherson of Burrard, who referred to the alleged blockade in the corridors.

be spent on a railway concerning which the government has absolutely no information, and so on pages might be written setting forth the wastefulness of the present administration.

Mr. Bell, in view of this reckless expenditure, deemed it his duty to move the following resolution:

"That the total expenditure during each fiscal year from 1891 to 1903, both inclusive, was as follows: 1891. $40,735,208 1892. 42,372,138 1893. 40,853,738 1894. 40,008,834 1895. 42,872,338 1896. 44,096,384 1897. 47,872,756 1898. 45,234,251 1899. 51,542,635 1900. 53,717,627 1901. 57,982,866 1902. 55,970,008"

"That the regular estimates and the supplementary estimates for the year ending June 30th, 1903, amounted to $64,465,903.17. "That on the estimate of the finance minister the annual expenditure on both consolidated fund and capital account has increased between 1897 and 1902 by a sum of $13,877,244, or on a basis of estimates voted by a sum of $21,480,147.

"That during the period above named the revenues of the country have been unusually large, and yet the public debt has been kept at the point where it stood in 1897, but at the end of the fiscal year, ending June 30th, 1902, showed an increase of $13,331,615.55.
