OLD PAINTINGS WORTH MORE THAN $100,000 FOUND HERE BY J. PURVES CARTER

Wonderful Collection of Genuine Masterpieces of Most Famous Artists World Has Known Discovered by Expert—Pictures Owned by Bishop Casey and John F. Gleeson—One Picture Alone Easily Worth $20,000, Mr. Carter Says.

A most wonderful collection of old pictures, genuine masterpieces of the most famous masters the world has known, has been discovered in St. John by J. Purves Carter, a celebrated expert, who has been in the city for several days. Mr. Carter says that the pictures already found and identified will aggregate in value more than $100,000, and this he believes to be a most conservative estimate.

Some of these pictures are owned by the Right Reverend Timothy E. Casey, Roman Catholic bishop of St. John, and were identified in the bishop's palace by Mr. Carter, who viewed them through the courtesy of his lordship. Others, equally fine and valuable, are in the possession of J. Gleeson, ex-secretary of the Exhibition Association. Mr. Gleeson has had his pictures for about three years. Originally they formed part of a larger collection made in Europe many years ago by a very eminent personage who traveled extensively. The collection was broken up and disposed of, and some of the very finest pictures in it eventually came into Mr. Gleeson's possession.

While believing that his pictures held some value, Mr. Gleeson had no idea that their worth was so great until the expert advised him.

Wanted to Make Sure.

The Telegraph has been in possession of the facts in the case for some days, but withheld publication of them at the request of Mr. Carter, who, until he had definitely assured himself of the great value and importance of his discovery, did not wish to commit himself to a statement. Yesterday, however, he announced that the pictures he had already identified were intrinsically worth more than $100,000, while from an artistic standpoint the importance of the discovery cannot be over-estimated.

How They Were Discovered.

The most wonderful feature of the pictures, next to their great value, is the manner in which they were discovered. Mr. Carter, whose status in the world of art is such that his pronouncement upon the genuineness and worth of these paintings will be accepted at its full value, had been engaged in establishing an art museum at Laval University, in Quebec, and also restoring and cleaning some of the extremely valuable paintings in the churches in that city. While in Quebec, he met Mr. Gleeson and, having decided to travel by boat from St. John to Boston as soon as his work in Quebec was finished, accepted Mr. Gleeson's invitation to spend a day or two in this city and look over some of his pictures. When Mr. Carter viewed the paintings he was at once struck with their value, but decided to cleanse and restore them before he made any definite pronouncement. He now says that the St. John pictures are among the finest of their kind in the world today, and on this he stakes his reputation and years of experience.

The Bishop's Collection.

Of the pictures he saw at the bishop's palace, Mr. Carter selects as the most valuable a magnificent work representing the "Adoration of the Magi," which he identified immediately as an exceedingly fine specimen of Jacopo Bassano's art. This painting is a large gallery work, a veritable masterpiece of this great Venetian painter, who was born at Bassano in 1522 and died in 1592. The painting is thus at least 320 to 350 years old and is valued at between $40,000 and $50,000. This rare and beautiful work is now very much obscured through the decay and dirt of ages, but when cleaned Mr. Carter says will reveal one of those treasures which Italy alone was able to give to the world.

Another superb and very valuable work in Bishop Casey's collection represents the Blessed Virgin Mary nursing the infant St. John with Saint Elizabeth standing by her side caressing her. This is by Bartolomeo Schioldone, who was born in Modena in 1600. His works are extremely rare as he died young, and the one in Bishop Casey's collection is pronounced one of the finest other most valuable paintings is a sublime work representing Saint Francis of Assisi, by Spagnoletto, the famous Spanish artist.

Mr. Gleeson's Pictures.

Of John F. Gleeson's pictures, Mr. Carter says they belong to the best periods and schools and are extremely valuable, embracing as they do genuine examples of the work of Guido Reni, Rembrandt, Andrea del Sarto, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Salvator Rosa, Bassano, Fuseli and Peter Neefs. It will be hard to credit the same number of pictures with greater worth in any collection in the world today.

One Worth $20,000.

One of the finest works in the collection which Mr. Carter says is easily worth $20,000 today, is a gallery work by Guido Reni representing Saint Mary Magdalene. Reni was born at Bologna, Italy, in 1575, and died in 1642, which is indicative of the great age of the picture. Speaking particularly of his worth, Mr. Carter says: "It is a far more beautiful work than the Magdalene in the National Gallery of London. It is one of Reni's finest, and is easily worth many thousands of dollars."

One most valuable and beautiful picture in the collection was the subject of a really astounding discovery by Mr. Carter. When a Telegraph representative first viewed the picture, which Mr. Carter said was from the brush of Andrea del Sarto, it represented a boy and a dog. The background was a dark brown and although the picture had not been cleaned, Mr. Carter expressed the belief that the subject of it was the baby Hercules and the mythological dog Cerberus. While cleaning the picture, Mr. Carter discovered beneath the newly added background the lower limbs of a man and a woman and also another dog. Further work revealed wings on the boy, and from this circumstantial evidence the expert deduced that the picture which doubtless originally represented Mars, Venus, Cupid and the two dogs of war held in leash, had been cut in two by some ruthless destroyer of art. The whole picture must have been one of del Sarto's finest works and worth a fabulous sum. As it is it would be regarded, Mr. Carter says, as a rare prize in even the largest public collection, del Sarto's works, Mr. Carter points out being extremely rare the only other genuine one he has seen on this continent being in the collection of Mrs. George L. Bradley in Washington.

One other fine valuable work by Arnold de Gelder, entitled the Tribute Money, Mr. Carter estimates as approximately worth $15,000. It is an exceptionally rare specimen of the work of one of Rembrandt's most celebrated contemporaries.

Other Gems.

Other gems in Mr. Gleeson's collection, which are genuine old masters, embrace Cleopatra estimated at $10,000, three Venetian pictures estimated at $5,000 each, an interior of Antwerp Cathedral by Peter Neefs estimated at $5,000, as well as several others which he has not yet restored, but which he believes are all genuine treasures of great value.

Mr. Carter, who, as stated in the foregoing, is recognized as one of the most skilled art experts in the world.

In the course of his European experience he studied at the Royal Academy of Arts, London, and took artmaster's certificate at the National Art Training School, South Kensington. He worked under the late Henry Merritt, restorer in the Royal Gallery, and also under Sir Frederick Borden, director of the National Gallery, and under Signor Raffaele Pinti, restorer to the National Gallery, and Prof. A. H. Church, F. R. S., expert to the Royal Academy.

Mr. Carter was art teacher at the Charter House School of Art, and the Polytechnic Institute in London. He is the author of the following works: "Songs of Hope, The Cross of Beauty, Art and the Beautiful," well as innumerable essays, art notices and critiques to most journals. He has cleaned and restored, in numerous instances, recined and cradled many of the paintings in valuable art collections in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Providence (R. I.), Montreal and other Canadian cities.

Hopewell Hill, April 6.—The government steamer Stanley, Captain Dalton, came into Grindstone Island again yesterday to complete the work of placing the bay buoy in position. Inspector L. Light, Kelly is on board, and also Mr. Legere, inspector of buildings, the latter joining some surveys at Grindstone for the marine department, which has under contemplation the creation of a new lighthouse. The proposal to replace the present building with a more modern structure and having a light that may be seen from all points of the compass, has been under consideration for some time, and the present visit of the building inspector indicates apparently that renewed action is being taken. Another reason for a new building is the fact that the tides are gradually wearing away the cliff near the present lighthouse which some years ago had to be moved in some distance.

ANTI-BETTING BILL VIRTUALLY KILLED

himself the right of voting against them. But the great difference between the bill, as reported by the special committee, and amendment proposed by Mr. McCall, was that in one case they were trying to prohibit bookmaking on a race track and in the other case they were leaving it wide open. He proposed to vote for the bill with the right to amend it as far as necessary, because he was opposed to bookmaking on race tracks. That was the whole issue.

The minister of justice could not deny that notwithstanding the language of the amendment, and notwithstanding the fact that it might have been drafted by the finest legal minds in England, it was framed to allow bookmaking in its most vicious forms to be carried on on race tracks and in other places. He did not know much about Woodbine and Montreal races, but he ventured the assertion that there had hardly been an honest race in the maritime provinces during the last ten years. Races were sold and the unfortunate playing against loaded dice all the time.

He took issue with the promoters of the bill who declared that betting was necessary to horse racing and that horse racing was essential to the development of a thoroughbred.

Mr. Borden said that while the bill aimed at remedying an admitted evil there seemed to be some provisions in it which were a little too drastic. On the other hand, the amendment was not quite adequate. He thought the government should have taken the responsibility of introducing legislation upon the subject.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it was quite within the prerogative of private members to introduce legislation of this kind. If it was the duty of the government to take a definite position on the bill, it was also the duty of the opposition to do so. The government had given ample time for the discussion of the bill, and he thought that was as far as it was called upon to do.

Mr. McCall moved that Clause 1 of the bill be struck out, and on a standing vote this was carried by 75 to 71, the re-

ONTARIO'S CHEAP POWER SECTOR

Federal Government Fought to Disallow Hydro Electric Law

COMPETITORS PRO

Declare to Ottawa Authority Government Owned Schemes Infringement on Vested Rights Which Millions Have Been

(Special to The Telegraph)

Ottawa, April 11.—The federal government decided today not to disallow hydro-electric power legislation the Ontario government last year. The matter had been under consideration since the application has been made for the disallowance of representatives of the private companies at Niagara and of private duals in western Ontario, who to the conditions under which electric commission was allowed power lines through the land.

The chief objections taken were, in brief, that it was an infringement of vested rights, which millions of dollars of property had been invested on the assumption that there would be no competition with government-owned and operated lines; that injury was thereby done to the credit of the whole dominion for investment in similar private capitalistic, who would hesitate to invest their money in government competition, and that the conditions imposed with regard to private rights were arbitrary and unconstitutional, and that the courts had not been asked to the courts had not been asked.

A copy of the act was approved by the department here on April 11, under the provisions of the British America Act, the federal government a year from that date in the future.

Will Not Disallow Act.

In recommending that the disallowance of the act be practically the same ground as in the case of the Cobalt Law of the Ontario government. It is pointed out that what the view as to the wisdom of the legislation the question one effecting primarily the province and one which the voters should be left to decide.

It is further stated that the act is not a valid case making that the legislation complies, injuriously affected the dominion as a field for investment. Any complaint in this more properly lie against the government's power scheme, in respect to its competition enterprises already established. It may be added that the question authorizes the hydro commission of Ontario to construct power transmission lines and sell power to Toronto, Hamilton and other districts within 150 miles of Niagara. Worth thousands of dollars worth of private companies now established are held by American institutions.
