Lady Allan Was Adrift On Raft Two Hours

Queenstown, May 10.-Lady Allan of Montreal was one of 38 survivors who were buffeted about for two hours on a life-raft before being picked up by the freighter Katrina. The story was told by N. N. Alles of New York, who said: "I had struggled aboard a life-raft, and about five minutes later we picked up Lady Allan, who had been battling bravely to keep aloft and was now ready to give up. We hauled her aboard and laid her down in the net of the raft. She remained there in a semi-conscious condition after we picked her up. What became of her two daughters I do not know.

WILSON INTO THAT PEACE BE HIS END

Washington, May 11.-The Lusitania disaster resulting from the attack on the ship to-day to hold the intention of official Washington interest naturally in the White House where the President Wilson would indicate to his advisers the United States will present emergency. The meeting is the first to the Lusitania disaster. President Wilson returned from Philadelphia, dressed a gathering of citizens last night. He being widely discussed while the president did not allude to the situation by the sinking of the Lusitania. He thought he intimated the United States would re-endeavour to assist in an endeavour to assist in the Lusitania disaster. The point that her action was of his advisers said the chief aim would be humbler how vigorous the speculation in the Lusitania disaster. The United States continued to-day. President Wilson's attention to the Lusitania disaster. Mr. E. Crombie of Paris, stating that he had been informed that the name of Mr. F. S. Hammond, of Toronto, appeared on the Courier bulletin board as among the latest list of those saved and asking if such was the case, he was able to confirm the good news, much to his satisfaction. Mrs. Hammond had been announced as among the saved, but her husband was thought to have perished. He is a half brother of Mr. Crombie.
