guiding me should intervene between me and my chosen destiny. At present I am on the teaching staff, and have got there only by my own ambitions. Many times I have had a hard struggle and often felt like throwing the whole business up, but something always said "Life is worth more than living, its worth fighting for." As I read in your paper the other day, "There's something more than making a living; making life." But again let me say, I do not ignore the lowly nor yet the one with the lowliest occupation, so long as they are pure in spirit and striving hard to do something better. There is no such thing as standing still; you must either go back, or go forward, and I say the man or woman with the ambition is the one who will fill the latter case to satisfaction.

The young man who goes out west on a homestead, with a team of oxen is all right if his ambitions have led him there and he is determined to make farming a success and a source of happiness. But I say "don't" deprive yourself of all enjoyment and become an old crone, and then marry some young girl who is innocent and beautiful, but has never known much about the enjoyments of life. This advice is not given with reproach, but kindly, for it's quite evident you would harm yourself and (what to me is akin to crime) harm the one who is to share your life. Probably some of you young fellows go west for the sake of having a change of life on the homestead and afterwards sell it. That's all right, you are making life worth living.

I am one who wants fame and love to make other people happy, or help them in any way that lies in my power, but not one who would correspond with any gentleman readers in regard to matrimony. That I consider foolish, but if anyone, male or female, cares to write me, after reading this letter, I will do my best to answer all, and probably I can help someone, through my letters, to be happy.

I am near the end now, dear readers, though I hate to leave you, but I am sure you would not consider my letter finished, without a short description of the writer, which will give you an idea of who is talking and who wishes to be a friend to all, especially the friendless. I am five feet four and a half inches tall, weigh one hundred and twenty one pounds, blue eyes, auburn hair and fairly fair complexion. I dance a good deal and enjoy a nice dance. I love vocal and instrumental music, in which some day I hope to excel. I do not care for a man who chews tobacco or drinks, though I do not mind an occasional smoke of a pipe or cigar, barring cigarettes, providing it's at the proper time and in the proper place. I am sure the former kind of men are not happy and ask them to pay goodly heed to my advice as regards happiness.

Now, I do hope I haven't occupied too much space, and if I have, hope you all will forgive me. I am not coming back for a long time, so I will bid you all farewell, though I shall often think of you, especially those lonely young fellows in the west. This letter is just to awaken you all to the fact that there is such a person living and trying to climb the toilsome hills of life as, "Ambition."

Archibald Criticized.

Gull Lake, Sask., May 4, 1910. Sir.—Just a few lines to tell you how much I appreciate the Western Home Monthly and the good and instructive reading we find in it from cover to cover. While reading the correspondence columns I find some very sensible letters, while others are a waste of time.

Archibald, I do not believe you will ever find a wife to come up to your expectations. I hope not. Would any good sensible man wish his wife to never leave the kitchen—but drudge, drudge from morning till night, and feel that all she is entitled to is a couple of calico dresses. I think it's all very well for the wife to care for the chickens but feed the hogs and milk the cows—no never, unless hubby is away from home. Now I am a wife, and when "my John" is away I gladly do his chores and help him when he really needs it, but I know it is appreciated; when he is driving in town or to the neighbors he comes in and asks me to go. If everything isn't in order he tells me to leave it until we come home; if he is not busy he helps me. Would you, Archibald? It means a good deal for a young wife to leave a good home and live on a homestead.

"Just a Bachelor." You are just all right and expressed my sentiments exactly. Girls, I hope you all keep firm on the liquor habit question, and never marry a man to reform him. There are many good bachelors but they all seem too temperate in the Western Home Monthly, but not so around here. Yes, Rambler, a man can do worse than smoke and I had rather my husband would smoke than play pool, or use profane language.

Boy, give your wives a little spending money; take her with you for a ride occasionally to rest her from the hot kitchen; give her a smile after the day's work as well as to expect her to do the same, for a smile and a kind word from hubby is as restful as a night's sleep. Hoping I have not intruded too long and wishing the Western Home Monthly every success. I sign myself, "A Satisfied Wife."

Skittles is Not Sentimental.

Govan, Sask., May 1, 1910.

Sir.—I have read many of the letters in the Western Home Monthly and have found them quite interesting. A few, I fear, are written in the spirit of fun and mischief. Now, I am going to express my opinions plainly and hope I shall derive some benefit along the matrimonial line from your columns.

Now to be frank, I am thirty-four years of age, quite good looking and sweet tempered and am fond of house work and music. My time, when unoccupied by household duties is spent in teaching piano and violin music. I have not a spark of sentiment in my disposition. In fact, I do not believe that love between man and woman exists in this world. My desire is to find a man with a like disposition, who does not object to work and is ambitious to obtain wealth and a name; who is kind and thoughtful of others. I could make a comfortable home for any man as I am an economical housekeeper and a competent cook. When I find such a man, I shall marry him, enter into a sort of partnership as it were, as I think this is the means of accomplishing the end I have in view. I will admit that I could not bestow upon him that much discussed love, but I could be kind and considerate of his wishes. Of course, I should expect the same in return.

Now I do not wish to receive letters only written for pastime but if any man can conscientiously write that he answers the description of the man for whom I am seeking, I shall give the matter consideration. My address is with the editor. "Skittles."

This One is in Earnest.

Fairfax, May 1, 1910.

Sir.—One of my friends has been made happy for life, through the matrimonial department of your valuable paper, and I am hoping that some good things may come my way. I am always in earnest and this letter is not for fun. Matrimony in my object, and I have a few specifications in regard to my future wife. I would like her to be a good worker, pleasant disposition, and a musician, as I am very fond of music. I am not hard to cook for. I have paid attention to young girls for several years, and find them all vain and frivolous. I want to correspond with a widow not over thirty-five. I am five feet eight and my hair is black and curly. I smoke an occasional cigar and never drink except when I have the tooth-ache. Now don't write unless you mean business, for I am a very busy man, and have no time to answer letters for pastime. Yours, ready to wed. "O. G. Rusalem."

Vigorous Manhood

Two "Health Belt Men." One 50 Years Old, the Other 30. Can You Pick Out the Younger?

I can show you how to restore your youth and how to keep it. A "Health Belt Man" CANNOT grow old; he must be young forever. Years count for nothing in this life, so long as you have great vitality. Weakness, Nervousness, Unmanliness are conditions to be laughed at by the intelligent user of my great appliance, for it gives in abundance, all that vim, vigor and nerve force which the weakened system craves—Worn every night and all night for two or three months, it sends a great, warm, glowing volume of electricity into your body through the nerve centres at small of back; from the first hour's use you experience a decided benefit; there is a great, mysterious force which gets right to work. No drugs to be taken; no conditions imposed except that dissipation must cease. Help Nature that much; the Belt will do the rest. It takes the weakness and kink out of your back; it drives rheumatic pains away from all parts of your body, you will feel and look young and strong again; women and men noticing your physical change will be more attracted toward you on account of your new vitality and life; in two months you can experience the full vigor of perfect manhood, or you need not pay. I give my belt to all sufferers on trial until cured or a discount for cash if you prefer to deal that way.

Let Me send You These Two Books FREE

They fully describe my Health Belt and contain much valuable information. One is called "Health in Nature," and deals with various ailments common to both men and women, such as rheumatism, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder disorders. The other, "Strength, the Glory of Man," is a private treatise for men only. Both sent upon application, free, sealed, by mail.

If in or near this city, take the time to drop in at my office that you may see, examine and try the Belt. No charge for advice either at my office or by mail. If you cannot call, fill in the coupon and get the free booklets by return mail. They are better than a fortune for any one who needs new vigor.
