GERTRUDE ATHERTON

The Conqueror

BEING THE TRUE AND ROMANTIC
STORY OF ALEXANDER HAMILTON

By the author of "The Californians," "The Splendid Idle Forties," etc.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

"Realizing that Mrs. Atherton has sown political dragon's teeth, certain to bring forth clashing opinions, we can only appreciate the fascination and vigor of her work. Upon the whole, it is incomparably more illuminating than any mass of non-vitalized facts collected by the plodding historian."

—New York Times Saturday Review.

"Among the notable productions of the year must be reckoned Mrs. Gertrude Atherton's brilliant character novel. In intellectual grasp, virility, and compelling interest this fearless author takes front rank."

—Providence Telegram.

"Till now there has arisen neither man nor woman to do what has been done in this exciting narrative of an exciting life. . . . Permeated with the passionate brain vitality of a woman who can write as well as think." — Standard Union, Brooklyn.

"It may start a revolution in the methods of our historical novelists. It is composite yet a splendid picture." — New York Herald.

"It is a fascinating picture of the life of a hundred years ago, and should be read by every one of taste and intelligence . . . ; enthusiastic and imaginatively romantic." — New England Magazine.

"One of the most fascinating and in some respects the most unusual book every written by a woman. . . . A delightful romance and a work which is unique and excellent." — San Francisco Bulletin.
