JULY, 1888.—Two Eclipses take place this month : the first of the Sun, invisible here, falls in Cancer $17^{\circ} 24'$, the luminaries being in close conjunction with both Mercury and Venus, which planets are conjoined at 2h. 30m. p. m., of the 9th inst., Saturn rising and Mars in the 4th house at the moment of new moon at Greenwich ; the second of the Moon, partly visible here, falls in Aquarius $0^{\circ} 44'$ Saturn rising and Mars being in the 4th house, this time in his own sign Scorpio, at the moment of full moon at Greenwich. This singular resemblance of the two figures of the heavens for these eclipses will bring some trouble on Great Britain, a crop of accidents and great fires in London, some blow delivered against the power and prestige of this country—I trust not a serious quarrel with the French—and some shocks of earthquake in the south, east and north of England. Let extra precautions be taken against accidents in mines from the 23rd to the end of this month. Spain will suffer many troubles, and I fear some disastrous earthquakes near Madrid, for Saturn will be exactly rising there at the full moon. The 4th, 22nd and 23rd, are evil birthday anniversaries ; the 9th, 11th, and 18th are very fortunate ; the 27th and 28th, a mixture of good and ill fortune. Rochefort will now feel the evil effects of Saturn in opposition to his Sun.

AUGUST, 1888.—Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, and Venus in fixed signs, and the Sun in conjunction with Saturn, at the opening of this month, will render it remarkable for the frequency and severity of its earthquake shocks, chiefly about the 1st, 7th, 10th, 12th, 14th, 20th, and 22nd insts. Italy, France, parts of Russia, Turkey, and Greece will suffer most. Some vibration will be felt in the south of England about the seventh inst. In Russia and Turkey, and possibly in Austria, epidemic disease will be very fatal, and it may very likely take the form of cholera. Jupiter in the midheaven, at London, at the new moon (which is a partial Solar eclipse invisible here). is fortunate for British trade and commerce, which should greatly improve this month ; it also promises the passing of an important measure of reform. The square aspect formed between Mars and Saturn on the 12th inst., at 1h. om., morning, brings political excitement if not mob violence in France. The
