Not of These In Your Desire

was of the utmost importance to the Hon. Evelyn Ashe—some people had a slightly ironical emphasis on the courtesy. Of the great army of those who live by their wits, the skilled practitioners devote themselves to a special class—the young, the old men or women—and it was among the last that Mr. Ashe found his subjects, and for his chosen walk in life he was well equipped. An effective personality—a tall figure, slight and graceful without being unmanly, a well-kept face with somewhat remarkable eyes of an opaque slaty gray, which could look melting or mournful or mocking as occasion required, but which were always as one of his fair friends dubbed them, "inscrutable," a definition which, as supplying a touch of mystery, added admirably to his distinction. That his eyes were not judiciously heightened by vague rumors of some romance, some caustic conduct which had hindered his advance in life. How such reports had originated it might be uncharitable to inquire; but fortunately for Mr. Ashe, "news do not travel as hawks' feet," and though a good many men despised him, and still more despised him, those who knew did not take the trouble to disclose how baseless these floating fictions were.

In his own class he was well enough received because of his fine connections, while amid the great and ever-increasing army of the "nouveau-riche" and the would-be aristocrat he posed as an authority upon the great world, and his services were eagerly sought after as guide and adviser in his untrodden ways. Of course, his El Dorado was a wealthy marriage, but rich women as well as well-to-do, or proved themselves, as V. H. Dudley had as yet done, much too wary and too well aware of the price they could command.

Now, as the autumn afternoon burned away in his brief glory, his thoughts were busy, though he showed no signs of excellent form as a shot, not only for his own credit and pleasure, but also for his invitation in recognized fashion by running up the total of a big bag. V. H. Dudley's talk, half jest, half earnest, malicious, had suggested what appeared a very profitable opening for his special talents.

He topped a long slope, and as the wide view burst upon him he stood still. Far away in the distance he could see the great house looming in the thought of all it implied he drew a deep breath. For a moment he let his racing fancies have full play, then, calculating reason pulled them up. He had better have something to go home before he played Alaschar; meantime the first thing was to get home at Stormont, and then feel his way with the girl herself.

EMERSON CASE INVESTIGATION

Hon. R. W. Scott Seeks Inquiry into the alleged charges against two Canadian Farmers.

Ottawa, Dec. 30.—The secretary of state, Hon. R. W. Scott, has written to Washington to ask the United States government to investigate the allegations of a north Dakota official, who recently held up two Canadian farmers driving along the boundary line at Emerson, and forced them to cross into United States territory, and compelling one of them to sign an affidavit implicating him in an attempt to smuggle wheat across the boundary. The affidavit was signed under protest, and the men were then allowed to return to Emerson. Mr. Scott has represented to the authorities at Washington that the action of the Dakota officer was contrary to international law, and has asked that if an investigation brings out the contention of the complainants that the United States government shall compensate them for any damage they may have sustained.

Frank Ford, deputy attorney general, entertained a party of nine at luncheon at the King's hotel on Friday, the gathering being in honor of A. R. Croelman, K.C., of Montreal, chief solicitor for the C.P.R., who was here for the day in the private car "Earncliffe." The luncheon party consisted of Chief Justice Wetmore and the other members of the bench in the city, and a few of the leading members of the bar.

The Regina Flour Mills Co. shipped another consignment of their strong bakers flour to Liverpool last week. So far they have shipped to England five cars of flour ground from this year's wheat. For the Old Country trade the flour is put up in ten stone sacks. That Regina flour is becoming popular on the English markets is evidenced by the ever increasing amounts shipped, since it was first placed there for sale. The Regina Flour Mills Co. are doing much to advertise this district in the land and deserve much credit.

Mr. Jas. Miller, one of the old timers in Regina, and an old timer in the employ of the C.P.R. has been pensioned by that company for his faithful services. He is one of the first employees of this division of the C.P.R. to partake of the privileges of the pension system. Mr. Miller has been with the C.P.R. since the beginning. He came west on construction in 1880 and upon the road being taken over by the operating department was given charge of a section at Regina in the fall of '82, which position he held continuously until about a year ago, when his failing health, made it impossible for him to longer continue in the position. For the past year he has had charge of the gates at the depot crossing at Regina. During his whole twenty-seven years of service with the company he never lost a day through illness or other causes.

TERRIBLE CYCLONE

Sweeps British Columbia—The Worst within the Memory of the Oldest Settlers—Trees Mowed Down.

Vancouver, Dec. 30.—The worst storm that ever occurred on the northwestern British Columbia coast within the memory of the oldest settlers, was that of today, when a series of cyclones swept over the main land and the northern end of Vancouver Island, cutting a clean avenue hundreds of feet wide in the heavy forests. Several large steamers were caught, and narrowly escaped destruction, but it was in the great forests, where thousands of trees were mowed down, that the greatest damage was apparent.

The steam tug Leonora, of Vancouver, was left anchored while her crew went ashore at Minster Island. The vessel was sunk so quickly that when the captain and mate hurried down to the shore, not a vestige of the vessel was to be seen, and her hull has not yet been located.

Field, B.C., Dec. 30.—Two muckers named Maretti Paulo and J. Duffy were blown up and killed in an accidental explosion of dynamite at McDonnell and Crowsfoot grading contract near here. The explosion was due to stray dynamite that got mixed with the dirt. Several gangs working in the vicinity had narrow escapes from flying rocks.

SAD SHOOTING ACCIDENT

Young Man Accidentally Shot at Qu'Appelle.

Qu'Appelle, Sask., Dec. 30.—News has just reached the town of a most distressing shooting fatality, that occurred about 1 o'clock this morning in the Edgley district, about eight miles north west of here. From information to hand it appears that Norman Cass, a young farmer, about twenty-two years of age, residing with his parents, left home early this morning accompanied by his father, Alfred Cass, to procure wood, while on the return journey the deceased was riding on a load of wood holding the loaded rifle in his hand, and by some means or other the rifle accidentally went off, deceased immediately crying out, "Oh, father, I'm shot!" on his father looking around he found that his son had fallen off the load to the ground, and when the good parent hastened to deceased's aid he found that the shot had entered his side and that death had been instantaneous. Universal sympathy is expressed on all sides with the grief stricken family in their sudden bereavement.

A Sad Story of Consumption in a Canadian Town

The Local Hospital Unable to Care for the Patient, and the query is What to Do?

In a little booklet issued by the National Sanitarium Association under whose auspices has been established the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have the story told of a sad case of consumption.

A young woman, apparently friendless, came in on a train reaching Fort William, and immediately procured work as a domestic. A doctor was called in to examine her case, and she appeared to be a consumptive, and she was at once pronounced a bad case of tuberculosis.

She was placed in the small local hospital of the town, and everything possible for the moment is being done to help the patient.

But writing to the Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, the Secretary of the Board of Health asks: "Is it possible to make room for this patient in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives? The local hospital is crowded for room, and there is really no place for this poor girl."

(Continuing the Fort William official adds "I may say that as far as being able to pay is concerned, she, as far as we can tell, has no friends who can afford to pay for her in an institution.")

It is to meet just such cases as these that the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives has been opened.

The official reports of the past year show that more than half the patients who entered the institution were absolutely free—their maintenance not costing them a single farthing. The others only paid a nominal sum ranging from $1.50 to $8.00 a week, only a few paying the larger amount. The average of each patient was less than 50 cents a day. The actual cost of maintenance to the institution is over $9.00 a week so that our readers can readily see how strong a case is made out by the Trustees in their appeal to make provision for just such a patient as that from Fort William—only one of scores who are constantly seeking admission.

Contributions on behalf of this work may be sent to: Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Vice-President, Osgoode Hall, W. J. Gage, Esq., 84 Spadina Avenue; J. S. Robertson, Secretary-Treasurer, National Sanitarium Association, 347 King Street W., Toronto, Ont.
