TRAMPS: FAVORITE JAILS.

Part of the industry is to find acceptable winter quarters.

"It's very funny how the professional tramp will locate good and bad jails, with a view to spending as comfortable a winter as possible," said the sheriff of a neighboring parish who has had an extended experience with the hobo fraternity.

"You know how an epicure in a big city will hunt for quaint, out of the way restaurants and when he finds one that is really excellent how he will hide the discovery from his friends, for fear that popularity will deteriorate the service. Well, it's exactly the same way with tramps. They all calculate on spending the most inclement part of each winter in jail, and during their summer wanderings they endeavor to locate some 'easy' institution where they will be well fed and warmed and not expected to do any work. When such a place is found, the secret is carefully guarded, so the jailer's heart will not be hardened by too many calls on his hospitality."

"Last month I had a typical educated hobo on my hands for a 15 days' sojourn, and he unfolded his winter programme in an amusing fashion. He said he had two jails located as desirable cold weather quarters, one in southern California and the other in a small town in Florida. 'I don't know anything personally about the Florida joint,' he said, 'but the last four tramps I've met from that country all warned me as a friend to give the town a wide berth. I judge from such solicitude,' he added, 'that the jailer there is dead soft and gives pie at least once a week.' The California lockup was in a small place, as I ascertained, avoided by wayfarers on account of the bad reputation of a former sheriff. 'The bums don't know that he is dead yet,' said my guest, 'and I am doing my best to keep the sad news from reaching their ears. The present incumbent is a peach—no work, three meals a day and plum pudding on Sundays. The jails that are regarded as special 'soft snaps' are generally in remote country districts, out of the beaten track of tramps. The hobo who is yearning for winter shelter will get himself arrested by committing some petty misdemeanor and is often treated more as a guest than a prisoner by his kind hearted captors. The location of such a refuge is a valuable trade secret."

"Sometimes, however, the wanderers make painful blunders, as was the case a few years ago when a small army of vagabonds poured into a town in Pennsylvania which had enjoyed a past reputation for extraordinary leniency. During the summer a new vagrancy statute had gone into effect, and every man arrested was given a year at hard labor in the state penitentiary. My educated hobo was one of the victims and shuddered whenever he recalled the experience. He regarded it as a gross violation of the sacred laws of hospitality."

Fooled the Judge, but it Didn't Pay.

Andrew Reichle, who lives in the neighborhood of Ninth and Norris streets, adopted a remarkably diplomatic way of getting a dime for a drink the other day. He went to Magistrate Ackerman and said:

"Judge, I have been on a spree, and I want to break off. Send me to the house of correction, will you? I can't get rum there. I'll stay till I feel like a man again, and then I'll leave and go to work."

The magistrate, moved by the apparent sincerity of the suppliant, made out a commitment paper and gave it to the man, along with 10 cents for car fare to the house of correction. After expressing thanks profusely Reichle departed and made haste for the nearest saloon.

Constable Scheibel followed him and caught him in the act of swallowing a glass of whiskey. "Come with me," the constable said, and Reichle tossed off the glass and returned again to the courtroom. He was upbraided there for his duplicity and sentenced to three months in jail.

Oranges Under Tests in Florida.

One of the latest and certainly the most curious devices adopted by orange growers in Florida is that of a tent which is designed to cover and protect the trees. The tent will be waterproof, so that it can be used from year to year and will admit the sunshine on one side while it keeps out frosty winds on the other. In each tent will be an oil lamp for heating. One of the government's devices to give warning of an approaching cold wave is particularly ingenious. Malls travel slowly in some of the less thickly populated districts, so the engineers of express trains are required to blow their whistles six times in every three miles to give warning of the coming of bad weather.

Operation Resulted in Death.

The Brazilian surgeon who performed the operation separating the twins Maria and Rosalina has got himself into trouble. The children were so closely joined that they had one pericardium and two livers grown together. One twin, Maria, died; while Rosalina survives, "although a little lopsided as the result of the operation." The surgeon, although a famous man who acted in strictly good faith, has been indicted for murder. The doctors all sympathize with him, for he performed the operation from motives of humanitarianism, but he is charged with not observing the proper precautions, and it is asserted that Maria died from blood poisoning.—Mexican Herald.

The arguments of the strongest have always the most weight.

Nature "makes" all things beautiful in their time. Every one of life's seasons, when life moves in Nature's lines, has its own charm and beauty. Many women dread that period when they must experience a change of life. They fear that face and form may suffer by the change, and that they may fail to please those whom they love. The value of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription in this crisis of woman's life lies in the fact that it assists Nature. Its use preserves the balance and buoyancy of the mind and sustains the physical powers. Many women have expressed their gratitude for the help and comfort given by "Favorite Prescription" in this trying period. Its benefits are not passing but permanent and conducive to mental happiness as well as physical strength.

Shudders at His Past.

"I'll tell you with horror," says Mail Carrier Burnett Mann, of Levanova, O., "my three years of suffering from kidney trouble. I was hardly ever able to do my work. I was in pain all the time. I was so weak that I could not lift mail sacks. I was so tired that I could not sleep. I was so miserable that I was ready to give up. When I began to use Electric Bitters, but six bottles completely cured me and made me feel like a new man. They're unrivaled to regulate Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Putting it Delicately.

"George," said Mr. Ferguson as they went in to dinner, "I wish you would tell Benny in some way, so it will not offend him, that he takes too much sugar in his coffee. It isn't good for him, and I know his mother wouldn't allow it."

"Benny," said Mr. Ferguson a few minutes later, turning to the young nephew who was visiting him, "you don't mix quite enough coffee with your sugar."—Chicago Tribune.

Persons Non Grata.

"No," said Broncho Bob, "Crimson Gulch hasn't any theater. You see, we are a peaceable set, and we don't want any trouble if we can avoid it. A man who comes along and we had to treat him so rough that it spoiled our taste for the drama."

"Did he make himself disagreeable?"

"Very. He did a lot of those sleight of hand tricks with cards and then tried to 'slip into' a friendly poker game."

Realism in Music.

Petted Daughter—They asked me to play at Mrs. Highup's this evening, and I did, but—

Fond Mother (proudly)—Were they not entranced?

Petted Daughter—Hum! When I played "Life on the Ocean Wave," with variations, half of them left the room.

Fond Mother (ecstatically)—That's wonderful! They must have been seasick—Spare Moments!

Another Unmanly Interruption.

"The great trouble with us," said the president of the Pickpocket club, "is that we are inclined to take things too seriously."

"Is that so?" yelled the policeman, who had managed to slip in unobserved. "I'd thought the main trouble with you was that you took things too easy. Come on now! None of that, or I'll smash in your hippanium!"—Chicago Times-Herald.

Free With Every Bottle.

Customer—I hear you give away a dime novel with every bottle of that great tonic of yours.

Barber—Guess that's a mistake, sir. It's so cheap we couldn't afford to. Who told you that?

Customer—A friend of mine. He said every bottle had a hair raising story printed on the label.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Not Afraid of Her.

"Why are you putting all those sharp, daggerlike things in your hat?" asked the husband of Mrs. Strongmind.

"I am hoping the hat snatching woman will grab it in her hands while I am down town," replied Mrs. Strongmind, closing her lips firmly and putting a few more sharp and glittering stickpins in her headgear.—Chicago Tribune.

That Was Different.

"Never mind," said the comforter to the rejected lover. "Don't let one refusal deter you. Ask her again. A woman's no often means yes."

"A woman's no may sometimes mean yes," replied the rejected one, "but I am convinced that a woman's 'nit' means no."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Her Preference.

Jack—Don't you think that woman, as a rule, prefers a man who is her master?

Ethel—Not at all. She prefers one who thinks he is.—Smart Set.

Two Downs to One.

"Oh, Jack, please say my card for me!"

"I spoke a bit brown last night in love (I thought) with naught but her sweetest cheeks and smile."

"I'd waited for her at the ninth. My looks belied my heart."

But as the winsome maid drew near When to the green so radiant Like hint of autumn's blushing, Of gold and sunset tints, she came, A crisis seemed impending.

"Here's a pencil. Now put down The first five each in six."

Then on the sixth I took an eight Due to my slinging tricks. That's—let me see—that's thirty-eight! The longhouse was a ten.

Don't look so grave and sad! I've seen It played much worse by men! Now, on the eighth I made a seven. I tried there. You know where were no caddies, and my club Weigh half a ton or so.

Well still this hole was best of all. I made a crashing drive. You saw me lay it dead in four, Which made my only five.

That's—five times six are thirty. Oh, I add like the old Harry! The column foots a 'naught,' you say; How many's that to carry?"

Deep down within her glorious eyes My gaze dwelled fond and burning; Half started—now her lashes dropped— The truth at last discerning: "They tell me, Madge, I whistled low. 'For each lass is a ladder. And something tells me—I'm wrong! I am your rightful caddy! Dear heart, I've added up the score; This hole's one to carry. And I'm the one. Will you consent Your loving Jack to marry?"

HALF BLIND FROM ECZEMA

Three Children Afflicted. Whole Bodies and Faces Sore, Raw and Bloody Mass.

Tried Doctor after Doctor for 20 Months Without Slightest Relief. Crying Constantly.

Couldn't Sleep. Tried CUTICURA. First Application Gave Relief. Cured in Fourteen Days.

My second child got eczema when seven months old. Three months later my first child got it and following him, the last one, two years old, fell a victim. For twenty months they suffered fearful agony. Their whole bodies, especially their faces, were so sore and raw that the little ones would blink half the time. No words can describe the suffering of my second child, whose whole body was one bloody mass. He was constantly crying, could get no sleep, and he actually did not look human. I tried doctor after doctor, but none afforded the slightest relief. I decided to try CUTICURA. The first application brought relief in each case, and after fourteen days' treatment with CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA Ointment, the worst case was cured, and the whole neighborhood is surprised at the wonderful effect of CUTICURA. I continue to use CUTICURA SOAP for the children, because it makes the little ones look splendid. Nov. 28, 1936.

Mrs. ANNIE HIND,
512 E. 12th St., New York City.

In all the world there is no other treatment so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective for distressing skin humors of infants and children as CUTICURA. A warm bath with CUTICURA SOAP, a gentle anointing with CUTICURA Ointment, relief, permit rest and sleep to both parent and child, and point to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure, when all else fails.

Sold throughout the world. For sale by C. H. Gunn & Co., Druggists, Chatham, Ont.

Dear Sirs, — I was for seven years a sufferer from Bronchial trouble, and would be so hoarse at times that I could scarcely speak above a whisper. I got no relief from anything till I tried your MINARD'S HONEY BAL-SAM. Two bottles gave relief and six bottles made a complete cure. I would heartily recommend it to any one suffering from throat or lung trouble.
