

THE UNDERWOOD TARIFF HAS BECOME LAW IN U. S.

The Bill Was Formally Signed by President Wilson Friday Night--Presented Gold Pens to Representative Underwood and Senator Simons.

That the new Underwood tariff now being adopted in the United States gives the Dominion the benefit of a greater total reduction on articles enumerated in the reciprocity agreement than was offered in the Knox-Fielding agreement itself, is shown by a comparison which has been made and which may be depended upon as absolutely accurate.

The comparison made does not take any account of the long list of reductions in the Underwood tariff on articles not specified in the reciprocity agreement. It is made only in regard to articles specified in the reciprocity agreement, and is based on importations into the United States from Canada during the fiscal year 1910, according to the return submitted to parliament by Hon. W. S. Fielding in January, 1911.

On that basis the reduction by the United States in favor of Canada under the reciprocity agreement amounted to $4,849,933. Taking the same quantities and values, the reduction under the new Underwood tariff would be $4,955,610. In other words, there is an increased reduction under the Underwood tariff amounting to $105,677 without any concession from Canada.

The Conservative contention in the fight against reciprocity was that the incoming Democrats would reduce the duties against imports from Canada, and that the Dominion ought not to make the enormous concessions involved in the fielding agreement in return for what would in a very short time be given to them for nothing. The comparison quoted also shows that what they are getting under the new American tariff is actually more than was offered them under reciprocity on articles contained in the adjunct agreement.

Surrounded by the leaders of a united democracy, President Wilson signed the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill at 9:09 o'clock Friday night at the White House. Simultaneously telegrams were sent to customs collectors throughout the country by the Treasury Department putting into actual operation the first Democratic tariff revision since 1894.

A happy group of legislators, members of the cabinet and friends encircled the President as he smilingly sat down, slowly affixed his signature with two gold pens. He presented to Representative Underwood the pen that had written the word "Woodrow," and the one which completed his name to Senator Simons, both of whom bowed their appreciation.

In impressive silence the President

rose and delivered in easy natural tones an extemporaneous speech that brought prolonged applause.

The President declared that the journey of the legislative accomplishment had only been partly completed; that a great service had been done for the rank and file of the country, but that the second step in the emancipation of business was currency reform. He earnestly called upon his colleagues to "go the rest of the journey" with fresh impulse.

"Gentlemen, I feel a very peculiar pleasure," said the President, "in what I have just done by way of taking part in the completion of a great piece of business. It is a pleasure which is very hard to express in words which are adequate to express the feeling; because the feeling that I have is that we have done the rank and file of the people of this country a great service. It is hard to speak of these things without seeming to go off into campaign eloquence, but that is not my feeling. It is one of profound gratitude that, working with the splendid men who have carried this thing through with studios attention and doing justice all around, I should have had part in serving the people of this country as we have been striving to serve them ever since I can remember.

"I have had the accomplishment of something like this at heart ever since I was a boy, and I know men standing around me who can say the same thing—who have been waiting to see the things done which it was necessary to do in order that there might be justice in the United States. And so it is a solemn moment that brings such a business to a conclusion, and I hope I will not be thought to be demanding too much of myself or of my colleagues when I say that this, great as it is, is the accomplishment of only half the journey. We have set the business of this country free from those conditions which have made monopoly not only possible but, in a sense, easy and natural. But there is no use taking away the conditions of monopoly if we do not take away also the power to create monopoly; and that is a financial, rather than a merely circumstantial and economic power.

"So I feel tonight like a man who is lodging happily in the inn which lies half-way along the journey, and that in the morning with a fresh impulse we shall to the rest of the journey and sleep at the journey's end like men with a quiet conscience, knowing that we have served our fellowmen and have thereby tried to serve God."

MYSTERY SOLVED OF MAN'S DISAPPEARANCE

Antone Jensen, Norwegian, Aged 33 Years, Drowned Some Days Ago

The body of Antone Jensen, a Norwegian who came here some months ago on board a steamer loaded with sulphur for the Dominion Pulp Co., was found in the river Wednesday afternoon.

The body was first seen by Dick Walker, the Snowball Company's stevedore, and a rope was put around it to secure it to the wharf. Then Chief Coughlan, Officer Naggar and Steve Flemming towed the remains from the wharf to the rear of the Miller Foundry property where it was brought ashore and identified by several people. Among these were John Olsen, a fellow Norwegian, who stated that Jensen was 33 years of age.

Jensen left the sulphur boat while it was in port and for some time was working on the block boats at the Miramichi Lumber mill and boarding at Tom Murphy's, Duke street. On Sunday night, Sept. 21st he went to work at the usual hour but did not return home next day and enquiries were made as to his whereabouts without any information being gleaned. It was finally concluded that he had left town as he had spoken of going to Newcastle and the mystery was only solved by the finding of his dead body Wednesday. It is stated that Jensen reported for work Sunday night, but owing to the fact that he was in an intoxicated condition he was told by the stevedore not to go on the boat but to come around later. It is thought that he must have wandered to the edge of the wharf away from the crowd and there fallen overboard without anyone seeing or hearing him fall. His body had only one bruise, a nasty cut on the face.

After Coroner Benson viewed the remains he ordered its burial and the Alms-house commissioners had it interred in the Riverside cemetery.—Chatham Gazette.

GOOD BLOOD THE SECRET OF HEALTH

To be Healthy You Must Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in any disease caused by thin or impure blood, and the list of such diseases is astonishingly large. Anemia literally means a condition in which the blood is thin and watery. Chlorosis is a form of anemia most common to growing girls. In rheumatism the blood becomes thin more rapidly than in any other disease. After an attack of a gripe or acute fevers the blood is always thin and impure, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the tonic to use during convalescence. When the blood is poor and thin the stomach suffers. The food ferments, gas and certain acids form and the trouble is pronounced indigestion or dyspepsia. The nerves receive from the blood all of their energy and repair waste or damage. Some forms of paralysis are caused by thin blood. The progress of locomotor ataxia is stopped in many cases when the blood is made pure, rich and red. This is only a partial list of the troubles having their origin in impure watery blood and all can be cured by supplying the blood with its missing constituents.

This is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Their chief mission is to make rich, red blood, and this good blood reaches every organ and every nerve in the human body, thus driving out disease and bringing renewed health and strength to thousands of weak, despondent people.

Ask your neighbor. There is not an inhabitant corner in Canada where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not restored some sufferer, and all over this country there are grateful people who do not hesitate to say they owe health—in some cases life itself—to this great medicine. If you are all begin to cure yourself to-day by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
