Tipped a Winner.

A deeply religious and benevolent old lady living in South London has had a rather startling experience. The other day her compassion was aroused by a poorly-clad and wretched-looking man whom she saw passing her house.

Taking a half-sovereign from her purse she wrapped the coin in a piece of paper, on which she wrote the exhortation, "Never say die." When the maid delivered the gift to the man he thanked her, looked up at the house, and walked away.

Next day he called and asked to see the mistress. The maid was a little dubious.

"It's the poor man you gave the half-sovereign to, ma'am, and he won't tell me what he wants."

"Is he sober?" asked the lady.

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then show him in."

When the man entered the drawing-room he promptly placed five pounds on the table, remarking, "There you are, lady. It won't right enough at nine to one, and you was the only person in the road what backed it."

Mother Fox and Family

(Charlottesville P.E.I. Guardian, May 5.)

On Friday evening while Messrs. Dan Doyle, Francis O'Halloran and Maurice Butler, Glengarry, were carelessly sauntering through the woods no doubt in search of the cunning Reynard, they came upon a log, which they supposed might be the den of a female fox. Mr. Butler undertook to investigate the premises first, but finally pronounced that he could see nothing. Not being satisfied with his decision Mr. Doyle thought he would take a peep when, lo! he beheld the old fox. Needless to say the excitement was great, but after their sentiments of joy were over they prepared to capture the old fox out with a stick, to which a hook had been fastened.

They then cut the log in two and counted out seven young foxes about a week old. They put the old fox in a bag, which Mr. O'Halloran had very wisely taken with him, while Mr. Butler carefully carried the young ones home. The mother is seemingly a good dark fox and the young are jet black. They are now in Mr. O'Halloran's ranch and are nothing the worse of their thrilling experience.

Glad-Eye Men.

Forty Chicago septuagenarians have formed themselves in a "Club of Borrowed Time." With the object of outwitting Father Time, the following "rules" were drafted for the guidance of members by their president, Mr. A. T. Hemingway, himself a man of seventy-five:

"Remain a boy till the end of time. Be married. Be moderate and temperate in all things. Read your Bible."

"Smile when you retire, smile when you wake, smile when things go wrong, and keep on smiling."

No person under seventy is eligible for membership, and every new member must pledge himself "to keep young and to cultivate the glad eye" for the rest of the time that he remains on earth.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The elimination of Huerta and the establishment in Mexico of a government in which both Huerta and Constitutional factions would be represented, is contemplated in a plan which South American mediators are now working out as a solution for the entire Mexican problem. It is learned that the proposal might be that the setting-up of a temporary Government be undertaken by a commission, composed of five persons, two of them to be named by Huerta, two by the Constitutionalists and the fifth by the mediators.

EL PASO, To-day.
 The plan for the pacification of Mexico, now being worked out by South American mediators in which it is announced they would eliminate Huerta and establish a Provisional Government in which both adherents of Huerta and the Constitutionalists would be represented would not be acceptable to Constitutionalists, according to Constitutionalists officers here.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
 The bombardment of Tampico by Constitutionalists artillery still was in progress last night, according to a wireless report to the Navy Department from Rear Admiral Badger.

Great Bequest For Poor Ladies.

Racehorse Owner's £240,000 Will.

London, May 1.—Nearly £200,000 was bequeathed for charitable purposes by Mr. Ernest Dresden, racehorse owner, of Cavendish Square, W., and Newmarket, who left estate of £244,921 gross value.

Subject to other bequests he left the residue of his property for a home or homes similar to Dresden House, Albion Villas, Hove already established by him, where ladies of not less than fifty years of age, in reduced circumstances, but having some small means, may obtain lodging and food at a reasonable cost.

His bequest to his servants amounted to many thousands of pounds. He left £5,000 to Middlesex Hospital, £3,000 to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, for an "Ernest Dresden" Lifeboat. He directed that any person or institution engaging in litigation against the executors, or any person interested under his will, shall forfeit all interest under the will.

CAPE FISHERY DELAYED.—Several of the western boats that make the fishery at Cape St. John are delayed in their operation to wait for bait. The season promises to be a rather late one, compared with last year, as many of the boats had secured good fares at this time last year.

SALT CARGOES.—About fifteen thousand tons of salt brought by the steamers Havro, Meidowfield and Craigenfield have arrived within the past few weeks and before the present month goes out an equal amount will arrive by those other salt boats which have left Santa Pola and Cadix here.

LOOKING FOR SEAMEN.—The captain of the salt steamer Craigenfield, now discharging at St. John's, has a warrant issued for the arrest of a seaman who has absented himself from the ship on a week. The ship sails on Saturday for Sydney to bunker there proceeding to Meramichi where she will load lumber for England.

Household Notes

Cheese may be added with advantage to a good many salads.

Burlap embroidered makes ideal sofa cushions for a bungalow.

In covering comforters engines are better in mosquito netting.

Remove stains without heating a ring on the material.

A good hat should always be kept in its box when not being worn.

Watch all men's winter clothing for matches before putting it away.

Brown, bone or ivory rings are dyed to use on brown fancy work.

One of the best inimitable and durable is gray Japanese grass cloth.

Mirror frames painted to match the chintz in a bedroom are delightful.

An old flour sifter can be used to hold the eggs while they are being iced.

Children's tools are often excellent for grown-ups to use in the garden.

Creamed codfish is improved by cheese grated over it before being baked.

It is wonderful what a habit glass will do toward cheering dark corners.
