Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHICH ARE YOU?

RUTH CAMERON

I have a friend who is a very successful dentist. He is not a particularly rapid worker. He does not have the great charm of personality that often helps professional men as much as their ability. He is not notably gentle, and his prices are high. And yet people flock to him. He has more work than he can possibly do. Why is it?

Well, I heard him unconsciously give the answer the other day when he was sitting in his waiting room.

His Assistant Was Surprised.

He was working over a piece of bridgework. His assistant came in to the room and seemed surprised to find him doing that. "Why, I thought that fitted about as well as it could when you tried it in Mrs. A.'s mouth," he said.

"If that was as well as it could," said my dentist friend, "we'll have to start all over again, for it doesn't satisfy me."

The last four words were the answer to which I referred.

That is the acid test to which this dentist brings all his work—the test of his own satisfaction with it. If any piece of work doesn't answer that test, it isn't passed. It is either made to answer it or done all over again.

Why His Work Lasts.

That is why this man's work lasts. That is why the work of other men is often brought to him to do over again.

That is why he has more patients than he can attend to.

The Authorman read me the "lead" to one of his stories the other day, and I thought it very good.

"Don't you think that paragraph could be improved?" he asked.

"It might," I said, "but I think it's all right as it stands."

"I worked a whole hour over that paragraph," he told me the next day. "I wasn't satisfied with it the way it was."

Do You Blame Him?

People who know the Authorman but slightly, sometimes speak of the luck he has in selling his stories. The Authorman resents their use of the words luck. Do you blame him?

There are two kinds of workmen in the world. One says of each piece of work he does, "That has got to satisfy me." The other says, "I guess that will do."

Which kind are you?

WILL MASON

"Of course I'll make my will," said Mike, "when I am in the mood, some day; it is a job I much dislike; it brings me visions of decay. But I'm resolved to do it soon; from that resolve there's no retreat; I'll do it ere another moon has waxed and waned, so help me Pete." Then he goes touring on the sea, to breathe some wholesome atmosphere; he winds his car around a tree; then he is placed upon a tier. Then lawyers like the ravens flit from every quarter to his gate; they come with warrant, deed and writ, and divvy up that man's estate. The lawyers gather in the kale that may be hid in safe or till; in vain the rightful heirs may wail—the dead man failed to make a will. He is indeed a foolish skate who puts off duties such as this, for no man knoweth when his fate shall send him to the realms of bliss. At any hour a wrench may drop from some large airship overhead, and land upon your dome, kerflop, so that you line up with the dead. The wise man has his life insured, and makes his will, while strong and hale; then when he lies in the clay immured, the rightful heirs will get the kale.

Mary Pickford Divorced

OWEN MOORE DESERTS HER.

RENO, Nevada, March 3.—Mary Pickford, motion picture star, was granted a divorce from Owen Moore on Monday evening at Minden, a small town near Carson City, on grounds of desertion. She was accompanied to the court room by her mother, Mrs. SmithSmith, and she wept freely while testifying.

She told the court that Moore had deserted her on several occasions, and had only returned in response to her pleas, but that a year ago he left her and has ever since refused to return. Immediately after obtaining the decree she went back to the Campbell ranch near where she has been living. She said she was seeking a quiet place to live and intended to stay near Minden for a long time and to make it her home.

Owen Moore arrived at Virginia City on Sunday night, with a picture man, saying that he intended to take snow pictures for a coming picture, but he could find no hotel accommodations, so he drove down to Minden in a machine and was served with the papers while at lunch the next day. The ranch where Miss Pickford is staying is on the outskirts of the deserted town of Genoa, first settled by the Mormons, in 1847, but now with scarcely an inhabitant.

ABSENT WILLIE WISE.

This is the tale of Willie Wise, who pompadoured his hair. At Kelly pool, beyond a doubt, he certainly was there. He knew the latest dancing steps; at bridge he was a shark. He wasn't very much by day, but a wonder after dark. It mattered very little what the function or affair. Of Willie Wise it could be said he certainly was there.

He was there with all the line of talk that fills the idle hours, At posing in the limelight's glare he had unusual powers. He wore the latest things in clothes and fell for funny hats. He had a watch upon his wrist and dressed his feet in spats. He was perfection all the time; he wore silk underwear. In dress and manner, I should say, he certainly was there.

You could depend on Willie Wise—he'd tell you so himself. In matters social no one here would leave him on the shelf. He knew convention's rules and laws from A to Z, and then He had some little clever tricks unknown to many men. At tea or dinner, opera, show or church bazaar or fair, He'd shine among the shiniest, for he was surely there!

But when it came to honest toil and duties hard to face, It seemed to us that Willie Wise was sadly out of place. He didn't like the office grind and had no use for work. And wouldn't carry any load which somehow he could shirk. He blundered everything he tried, and didn't seem to care. For when it came to making good—he simply wasn't there!

Hats and Clothes.

IMPROPER DRESS CAUSES ACHE AND PAINS.

Does your head ache? Do the pains in your back make you bend double? Are your feet always tired? You can trace the cause of these aches and pains in many cases to the improper dress. Miss Ima Cowles, associate professor of domestic art, Kansas State Agricultural college, says:

"One-piece dresses of medium weight which hang from the shoulders are best for the average women, especially the working woman, whether she works in the shop or in her own home," Miss Cowles said recently. "If the dress hangs from the shoulders the weight is more nearly equalized and there is not so much strain on any one part of the body."

"Headaches often may be traced to hats which are too tight for the head. If they are unequally trimmed, more weight is thrown on one side of the head than the other, causing a strain on one side of the neck. Hats and caps which are too tight, cause dandruff and eventually they will cause falling hair."

"Too much clothing and clothing which is too tight fitting will make your back ache. The clothing should never hinder the movements of the different parts of the body."

"Extremely thin soled shoes should not be worn for street wear by the woman who is seeking good health, for the feet will be damp and wet in cold weather. An abrupt change should not be made from the extremely high heels to the low heel, for broken arches may be the result. The proper care of the feet is essential to good health."

"Because of the present methods of heating houses it will not be necessary for the woman to dress much heavier in winter than she does in the summer, but she should always wrap up well when she goes out in cold winter weather."
