With other members of the family the

on Sunday was strolling around the backyard. The family owned a large collie dog, which had a peculiar dislike for children, and especially when they went to fondle him. As the child came into the house through the summer itchen the dog stood in the doorway, ind as Leo passed the animal he patted on the head. With a growl the collie sprang at the boy, throwing him to the floor and making several fierce bites at his face.

The cries of the child soon brought the other members of the household, and the animal was beaten off. The boy's head and face presented a pitiful appearance, and medical aid was immediately summoned.
