THE TALK OF THE DAY.

PICTURES OF LIFE AS IT IS IN BLACK AND WHITE.

The Idiosyncrasies of all Sorts of People Under the Brushes and Pens of the Artists and Humorists—The Latest Paragraphs on the Newspaper Wits.

The light that failed.

It is not considered an offense for a switchman to flag at his work.

Most people ask advice in order to secure some confirmation of their own decisions.

"I want a drink" means one thing in the country and something else in town.

When the seizure officers visit a saloon they usually are on a rummaging expedition.

Teacher (in grammar class)—"Tommy, correct the sentence, 'I kissed Susan onct.'" Tommy (promptly)—"I kissed Susan twict."

"So you live in Chicago?" "Yes." "Are you interested in the fair?" "You bet I'm engaged to three of 'em at present."

"They have a skeleton in their closet, I am certain." "You are wrong. It is one of the patent dress forms. I saw it myself." —Harper's Bazar.

He—"I have had you in mind a good deal lately, Miss Helen." She—"You always did try to make me feel small, Mr. Chumply."

Someone says "poets are declining." This is evidently a mistake. Every poet will tell you that it is the editors who are declining.

It always spoils the effect of the sermon on a man when he intends to put a nickle on the plate and absent-mindedly puts on a quarter.

Occasionally Only.—Tenant: "Does this chimney always smoke like that?" Landlord—"Oh no, only when there's a fire in the grate."

"Father," asked a boy, "why do they call this place the Exchange?" "Because, my son, it is where we exchange money for experience."

An Editor's Pleasures.—Visitor: "Don't you enjoy sitting on a spring chair?" Editor—"Yes, almost as much as sitting on a spring poet."

She—"What are the requisites in a college examination, Mr. Youngblood?" He—"A man of my size has to train down to 155, I understand."

Marked Down—George: "A penny for your thoughts, Jessie." Jessie—That's a bargain." George—"Well, what were you thinking of?" Jesse—"You!"

"Do yon really believe in drawing the color line, Miss Weston?" asked Cholly Weston. "Yes, I object to people being green," she replied.

"Just see that trombone player. His face is red as a beet from blowing hard." "Yes, he certainly ought to know what is meant by strains of music."

The Wrong Flavor—Mrs. Beach—I think you have made a slight mistake, Grocer—How so, madam? Mrs. Beach—This sand tastes salty. I wanted it sweetened.

"But, Marie, my dear," said her mother, "Harlow is extravagant." "Better that than meanness, mother. Extravagance may be curbed, but meanness is indestructible."

All the Difference in the World.—She (suggestively)—"They say the little birds have all mated before this." He—"Yes; but, bless you, think how few expenses they have!"

Miss Rhapsody—"You are fond of music, captain?" Captain Barnes (of the artillery)—Well, yes; in fact, I think I may say I like noise of any kind."

Editor-in-Chief (to managing editor)—"I understand that James has resigned." Managing Editor—"James has abdicated, sir, not resigned. James, you know, was office boy."

"What are you always following me around for?" demanded the earth impatiently of the moon. "Oh, I get a few quarters and halves by doing so," replied the moon, nonchalantly.

A Wary Player.—Jackson—"Ri yo' am broke, Sam, put up yoah razzer, an' I'll gib yo' five chips on it." Johnson—"What's dat?—An' leave me 'tirely at yoah mercy! Not much, sah!"

She Had No Desire to Match Him.—Mrs. Pendergrast (in disgust)—"You call these shades alike! Is there anything you can match?" Mr. Pendergrast—"Yes. Pennies."

Uncle George—"Come, Harry, you should forsake your wild ways. It is time you were settled." Harry—"And be like a bill after it is settled—laid away and never thought of again! No, thanks."

Chappie (returning from the seaside)—"What is the mattah, deah boy? What made you faint?" Cholly (feebly, but haplily)—"Found a qualitah in one of me pockets, ol' fel'—found a quahtah."

Took the hint.—"Miss Bessie," he faltered, "do you think you could learn to love me?" "I—I think I might, Mr. Spoonamore," she answered with downcast eyes, "if I were taught." And the next moment he had her taut.

"My theory about Hamlet," said Baconius, mysteriously, "is that he was a printer." "And on what do you base this theory?" asked Criticus. "On that line in which he says, 'Either subdue the devil or throw him out.'"

The small boy always looks with envious admiration at the drum major leading the procession with his gold-headed baton and his big bearskin hat, but the little fellow with the cornet in the back row of the band gets the bigger pay.

"Uncle John," said little Emily, "do you know that a baby that was fed on elephant's milk gained twenty pounds in a week?" "Nonsense!" exclaimed Uncle John; and then asked, "Whose baby was it?" "It was the elephant's baby," replied little Emily.

"Can I read your paper?" asked the man in the rear seat. "I don't know whether you can or not," replied the Boston man ahead of him, "but you may try if you choose," and it took the brakeman, the news agent and the conductor to separate them.

They had been talking of Beethoven, "Vogner," Annie Rooney and other musical celebrities, when she remarked: "Do you know 'Maggie Murphy's Home?'" "No! Is she?" he replied, somewhat startled at the rapid change of subject. "I didn't know she was away."

Serves Him Right

"Have you got any stale bread?" asked Johnny Fizzletop, sticking his head into a baker's shop.

"Yes, I have five or six loaves."

"Serves you right. Why didn't you sell 'em when they were fresh."—Texas Siftings.
